The Senate's $12,000,000 for the Missouri river geographically balances the $11,000,000 for the Cape Cod canal. As the downtrodden taxpayer would say, a fair exchange is no jobbery.

COBB AND SPEAKER AIDED IN "FIXING" GAME, LANDIS TOLD

STARS DENY BETTING ON CONTEST IN 1919

Managers Resigned to Avoid Exposure, Is Belief of Baseball Officials.

Chicago, Dec. 21 (By the Associated Press).—Two of the greatest baseball players in the history of the game—Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker—today were named by Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis in an expose of a scandal that went back to 1919, the year climaxed by the famous crooked world series between the White Sox and Cincinnati Reds.

Cobb, famed as the "Georgia Peach," and Speaker, the famous "Spoke" of the Indians, had their names linked with "Dutch" Leonard and "Smoky Joe" Wood, both former American league pitching stars, in a conspiracy to bet on an alleged "fixed" game between Detroit and Cleveland, played at Detroit on September 25, 1919.

Cobb, until after the close of the 1926 season, was manager of the Detroit club, and a star player on it for twenty years, while Speaker held the same managerial position with Cleveland. Both resigned, suddenly, after the finish of the 1926 pennant race.

The scandal, breaking today, was the third that has rocked the major leagues since the barring forever of the eight White Sox players for conspiracy to throw the 1919 world series.

$600 Involved in Bet.

The sum of money involved in the latest scandal was $600, bet by Leonard, a one-time Tiger pitcher, and Wood, against $420, on the Tigers to win. Detroit won the game. Nothing in the 100 pages of testimony or letters made public by Commissioner Landis reveal that either Cobb or Speaker wagered on the game, but it indicates they had knowledge of the betting.

The scandal came to light when Leonard, pressing a claim against the Detroit club, turned over two letters, one from Cobb, the other from Wood.

These letters were presented to a secret meeting of the board of directors of the American league, held here last September. Ban Johnson, the American league president, immediately presented them to Commissioner Landis for investigation.

Leonard, Detroit pitcher, asserted that he, Cobb, Speaker and Wood, pitcher for Cleveland, met "under the grandstand," of Navin field, Detroit, on September 24, 1919, and agreed that Detroit should win its game with Cleveland on the following day, thus clinching third place for Detroit in the American league pennant race.

Plan Did Not Go Through.

The four planned, Leonard asserted, to benefit by betting on the outcome of the contest, with Cobb putting up $2,000, Leonard $1,500 and Wood and Speaker $1,000 each. The former Detroit pitcher said that the plan did not go through, because Cobb and Speaker did not put up their share of the money, but he said that he and Wood won $130 apiece, when Detroit defeated Cleveland 9 to 5.

The story of Leonard, denied unqualifiedly by Cobb, brought in its wake the tacit admission of baseball officials that its impending revelation prompted Speaker's unexpected retirement some weeks ago as manager of the Cleveland club and that it was a factor in Cobb's resignation, soon after the 1926 season ended, from the managership of the Detroit team.

Cobb denied this today, asserting that his resignation was voluntary, and in furtherance of a desire to retire from a club with which he had no hope of winning a pennant. Speaker, here with Cobb yesterday to testify be-

WOMAN SUES BROKER ON ASSAULT CHARGE

Joseph E. Walsh Accused by Milliner in Action for $100,000 Damages.

New York, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Suit for $100,000 damages for alleged assault was filed in the supreme court today against Joseph Edward Walsh, a member of the curb exchange and of the Broadway brokerage firm of Frost & Co., by Miss Katherine Tormey, 23-year-old milliner, of Jersey City, N. J.

Miss Tormey alleges in her complaint that she went to Walsh's office early one evening in November, 1925, and he assaulted her. Later, she said, he told he he could not marry her, as he already had a wife. Walsh was arrested on December 17 last on a civil order of arrest signed by Supreme Court Justice Crain and released in $5,000 bail.

From their first meeting, Miss Tormey asserted, Walsh made ardent love to her and led her to believe he intended to marry her.

7 HURT, 40 SUFFER SHOCK IN COLLISION OF 2 STREET CARS

Crowded Trolleys Meet at North Capitol and H Streets.

A one-man street car knocked another car off the tracks at North Capitol and H streets last night, causing injuries to seven persons and the shaking up of twoscore others.

Sixty persons were on the car that was derailed, and nearly all of them were thrown to the floor. The impact hurled one man through the door into the street. A moment after the crash women began to scream, and there was a stampede toward the doors.

The cars, both the property of the Washington Railway & Electric Co., collided at 6:48 o'clock. The one-man car, which was in charge of Motorman B. W. Hess, was going north on North Capitol street. The other car, operated by Motorman Edward Perry, was traveling east on H street. When the latter car was struck by the one-man car, it traveled about 25 feet in a wobbling fashion and then its rear wheels left the track, skiding toward the gutter.

Lays Blame on Brakes.

Motorman Hess told police his brakes failed to hold, causing the crash.

The injured are:

Archie H. McCrevy, 50 years old, Philadelphia, cuts and bruises.

Earle R. Carlisle, Monroesville, Va., bruises, possible sprained hip.

Fred Flester, 47, 711 Fourteenth street northeast, cuts and bruises, possible dislocated shoulder.

James H. Wallace, colored, 56, Fairmont Heights, Md., contusions and undetermined injuries.

Mrs. Lottie Bentley, colored, 42, 633 Third street northeast, injuries to abdomen.

Arthur Smith, colored, 33, 246 Fifty-seventh street northeast, sprained back.

Sinclair Co. Reported Obeying Mexican Law

Mexico City, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—The newspaper Excelsior says Stanford & Co., a subsidiary of the Sinclair Oil Co., has announced its willingness to apply for confirmation of oil rights on land holdings in fee acquired before 1917.

The Mexican department of industry, commerce and labor, however, has made no official announcement.

LAWYERS DECLARE FALL AND SINCLAIR FACE PERSECUTION

Congress Action Assailed in Plea for Motion to Quash Charge.

COURT WILL DECIDE ON POINT TOMORROW

Littleton Declares "Senatorial Vesuvius Pours Lava of Criticism" on Case.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

After hearing arguments for and against the motion to quash the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy indictment, in connection with the so-called Teapot Dome oil lease, Justice Jennings Bailey of the District Supreme court yesterday took the question under advisement until tomorrow morning when he will announce his decision at the opening of court.

Both defendants, Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, and H. F. Sinclair, oil magnate, were in court yesterday and ready to plead and Justice Bailey has directed that both be in court tomorrow morning.

The purely legal skirmish yesterday, which lasted about an hour and a half, had much the same stage-setting as the Fall-Doheny case, concluded last week in Justice Adolph A. Hoehling's court when the jury returned a verdict of not guilty. But the tension and the overflow crowds were lacking. The usual crowds associated with the court's routine business were excluded while the arguments were heard.

Line Up for Legal Battle.

Owen J. Roberts and Atlee Pomerene, government's special counsel, and District Attorney Peyton Gordon had seats in the front row near the judge's bench inside the rail. Defense counsel included William E. Leahy, who has joined counsel for Fall. Mrs. Fall and her daughter, Mrs. Chase, were among the spectators. Frank J. Hogan, of counsel for E. L. Doheny, watched the proceedings from the side lines. He has no connection with this case but the outcome may admittedly affect the bribery indictments still pending against Doheny and Fall.

Motions to quash the present indictment were filed by both Sinclair and Fall and argued yesterday by counsel for each, with the government counsel opposing the motions.

Martin W. Littleton, of counsel for Sinclair, made the opening argument, in the course of which he indirectly referred to the speeches which Senator Heflin has made on the floor of the Senate since the Fall-Doheny verdict was returned.

"At last, when defendants are ready for trial," said Mr. Littleton, "we find ourselves confronted from the Senate with criticism which flows like lava from this senatorial Vesuvius dripping down on this community and besmirching everything it touches. If we say we are ready for trial, we are charged with attempting to delay trial and are told that we have arranged for an acquittal."

Littleton took the ground that the indictment should be quashed on constitutional grounds because his client

Schuneman Confirmed As Treasury Official

First Lady Spreads Cheer Among Invalid Children

Mrs. Coolidge Takes Yule Spirit to Hospital With Familiarity for Older Patients and Baby Talk for Younger Ones.

The Christmas spirit stole into Children's hospital, Thirteenth and V streets northwest, yesterday in the person of the first lady of the land, who in her annual Christmas visit bestowed upon the ill and invalid children a soft word of cheer, a pat on the head and left with each, by way of a souvenir, a red and pink carnation.

Mrs. Coolidge arrived at the hospital in the White House car at 3 o'clock and was received by officers and committee heads of the board of women visitors. She passed on to the wards through a double file of the student nurses of the hospital, who appeared in their blue and white uniforms for the occasion.

She visited every one of the six wards, distributing flowers among 102 children. She talked familiarly with the larger ones and talked baby talk with the small. Many of the children were gleefully surprised and many of the tots, who, of course, were too young to know who she was and were even too young to appreciate what carnations were, showed a buoyant response to her infectious cheerfulness.

In one of the colored wards a 3-year-old girl to whom she handed flowers, replied:

"Miss, I sure would like to have a piece of candy in my mouth."

Mrs. Coolidge told her she regretted she did not bring candy. However, it was learned the child is in the hospital because she swallowed a quantity of lye and that she can not swallow now, but must be fed through a tube.

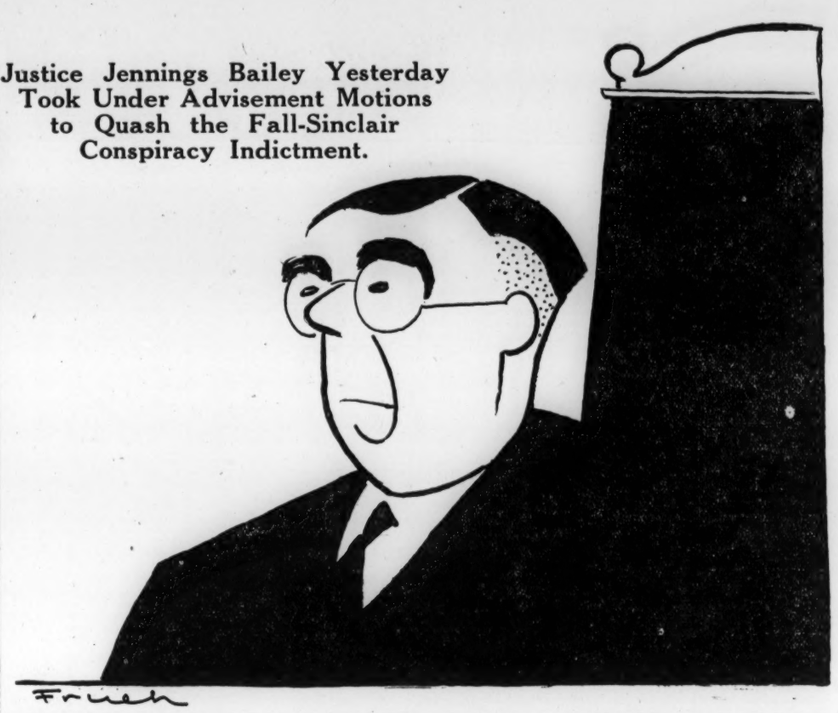

When she arrived on the third floor she was greeted by Francis Matson, who has been in the hospital three years. Two or three children who remembered her visit last year greeted her gladly. Robert and Rachel, 15-month-old twins recently brought to the hospital, received special attention. She tarried by them several minutes.

All the children were prepared to receive her, each of them just having had a bath and clean dresses.

One of the children she knew, "Buddy" Bowie, son of Mr. and Mrs.

LOS ANGELES THRONG GIVES DOHENY OVATION

GIRLS KISS MILLIONAIRE

Special to The Washington Post.

Los Angeles, Calif., Dec. 21.—Edward L. Doheny, multimillionaire oil magnate, who, with Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, was acquitted by a Washington jury on a conspiracy charge following a sensational trial, was tendered a monster reception today when he returned to his home. More than 6,000 fellow citizens and employes of the Pan-American Oil Co. were gathered at the railway station to greet him.

A parade of hundreds, all seeking to shake the hand of the oil man, and scores of women and girls kissing him and Mrs. Doheny kept the party at the station for 30 minutes. Tears came to Doheny's eyes as he said:

"I am deeply touched by this splendid reception given me by such a representative committee of my friends in Los Angeles."

As Motley H. Flint, one of the most prominent financiers of the city, grasped the hand of Doheny, the oil man said:

"Of course I am happy over the outcome at Washington, but it merely emphasized the faith I have always had in the courts. I knew that if the matter was properly presented before an American jury justice would be done."

As the train bearing the Doheny party came to a stop at the station, Doheny's hundreds of employes who had been given a day off to greet their chief, set up a mighty cheer. Edward L. Doheny, jr., was the first to reach his father's side. Grasping his mother he kissed her and turning to his father threw his arms about him. Dignitaries crowded about the oil magnate as a battery of newspaper photographers who had deserted the crowd around Will Rogers and his group of film luminaries, snapped the Doheny party. After Flint had extended the greetings of the citizens committee and congratulated him on his acquittal the oil man shook hands with each of the members of the committee:

"Ed's never been kissed so much in his life," Mrs. Doheny said.

PADLOCK RAIDS SHUT 58 NEW YORK CLUBS

Cafe, Cabaret and Restaurant Men Also Find Selves Personally Enjoined.

New York, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Padlock proceedings against 58 of Manhattan's best known night clubs, cabarets and restaurants were begun tonight in raids by seven parties sent out from the office of Federal Attorney Bucker.

Mr. Buckner's men started serving temporary personal injunctions and bills of complaint at 10 o'clock tonight on various establishments in the Broadway district and in Greenwich Village. The serving processes were expected to keep them busy until dawn. Service of a personal injunction is a new procedure by which Mr. Buckner and his assistants believe the alleged sale of liquor will be checked.

Among well-known places on the raiders' list were the Three Hundred club, Club Anatole, Tommy Guinan's Playground, Del Fey club, Cafe de Paris (roof floor of Century theater), Embassy club, and Club Biarritz.

SEES AMERICANS IN PERIL

Managua, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Gen. Rivera del Gadillo, commander of the conservative troops, reports a fierce attack by liberal forces at Las Perlas. The battle, which began yesterday, lasted seven hours, and is continuing today.

The liberals, according to Gen. Rivera's report, attacked with infantry supported by artillery and machine guns. The entrenched conservative forces repulsed the attackers by heavy machine-gun fire. The rebels then withdrew.

(By the Associated Press.)

Threat of disorders at LaCeiba, Honduras, reported by the American consul, prompted the State Department to ask that the navy send a warship to that place immediately. The department announced yesterday the consul had reported the situation as serious and "might possibly endanger the lives and property of Americans and other foreigners residing there."

The trouble at LaCeiba, officials said, apparently was a recurrence of the disorders last October when local military forces seized the town and burned the courthouse after liberating prisoners at the penitentiary. Consul Ernest E. Evans described that situation as having no more than local political significance and he reiterated that statement in connection with his request for a warship, made public yesterday. Secretary Wilbur said he had authorized Rear Admiral Julian Latimer to dispatch a vessel to LaCeiba.

Diamond Exceeding Grand Conde Stolen

PAN-AMERICAN PLANES COMPLETE FIRST LEG

Taking Air at San Antonio, Five Airships Descend Near Brownsville.

OFF TO TAMPICO TODAY

Brownsville, Tex., Dec. 21 (By A. P.). Riding tonight on the gentle waters of Laguna Madre, 20 miles east of here, the army's five Pan-American flight planes had completed the first leg of the 20,000-mile journey they began at San Antonio shortly before noon today.

The winged messengers of peace to neighboring nations to the south lay close into the shore of the once-pirate island of Padre, ready to start on the next lap of the flight tomorrow morning, with Tampico, Mexico, scheduled as goal.

While the pilots were being feted in Brownsville tonight by officials of the United States and Mexico, the planes were under the watchful eyes of coast guardsmen from Point Isabel.

The 260-mile hop from land to water was made in 2 hours and 40 minutes, the planes averaging about 90 miles an hour.

All the ships were functioning normally as they roared down toward the Gulf and circled the land-locked laguna. Coast guard launches scurried out to the ships as they struck the water, throwing high the sparkling spray. The aviators were taken to Brownsville by special train to be entertained at dinner. All were ordered to retire at 10 p. m.

At Tampico, on the east coast of Mexico, arrangements have been made for a welcome befitting the squadrons first landing on Latin-American soil and expressing the spirit of confraternity among the nations of the North and South American continents.

The pathfinding voyage into the hearts of many peoples started at San Antonio with the roar of motors as the only ceremony, the amphibian planes

Father of 34 Claims Paternity Record

Washington, N. C., Dec. 21 (By A. P.). Reuben Bland, of Martin county, does not understand why President Coolidge and the House of Representatives became so excited last week over a Georgia farmer with "only 28 children."

Bland has 34 children and claims he is the father of the largest family in the United States. He is thinking of going to Washington to show the President and Congress a father who is a father.

RADCLIFFE GIRLS PEN GREETINGS WITH TOES

Freshmen Forced to Take Unusual Exercise to Develop Arches.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 21 (By A. P.). Two hundred girl freshmen at Radcliffe college struggled today to pen dainty Christmas greetings with dainty toes. It was generally conceded, however, that the finished cards failed to approach in daintiness the feet that inscribed them. The greetings were not voluntary—at least in form. In fact, the gymnasium office ordered it.

All freshmen are required to take "gym" and all freshmen were required to hand in Christmas greetings written with their toes. So there was nothing to do but to toe the mark.

It was explained the request was not to give the students an opportunity to prove their versality. The real reason for the request was that this form of toe exercise is the most effective for developing and correcting the arch.

'SHE'S DEAD, $10,000!' HOUCK CRIED, HOTEL ATTENDANT ASSERTS

Employe Tells the Hornell Police of Hearing Man Shout in Room.

HUSBAND UNDERGOES SANITY EXAMINATION

Friends, in Statement, Say Wife Feared Mental Lapse for Herself.

Another sensation came last night in the mysterious case of Mrs. Gladys W. Houck, missing a week today, when a hotel attendant in Hornell, N. Y., told police there of hearing her husband, Dr. Knutt Houck, shouting in his room.

According to an Associated Press dispatch from Hornell, the hotel attendant told police he heard Dr. Houck shout:

"She's dead! She's dead! Ten thousand dollars!"

Mrs. Houck disappeared from her home, 3127 Nichols avenue southeast, last Wednesday following a quarrel with her husband the night before. Later in the day Dr. Houck started for Canada. He got as far as Hornell, where he was arrested while walking through the streets in his underclothing and after he had created a violent scene in a hotel.

Testing Houck's Sanity.

Dr. Houck, who has been a psychiatrist at St. Elizabeths hospital, was brought back to this city two days ago and put under mental observation at Gallinger hospital. At the same time a policeman was assigned to guard him.

Although Dr. Houck has said and done many things that convinced police and others he was mentally deranged, psychiatrists at Gallinger hospital are not yet entirely convinced this is the case.

Tests were begun yesterday to determine the mental condition of Dr. Houck. These tests are being given by Dr. Grover C. Kirk, of Gallinger hospital, who eventually will have to officially record his impression of Dr. Houck's status.

A psychiatrist, well-versed in neurology, could "fake" insanity and convince almost anybody that it was real, Dr. Kirk said yesterday.

Feared Lapse, Friends Say.

Mrs. Houck was at times afraid she would become mentally deranged, according to a statement yesterday by relatives and friends.

The statement issued by "relatives and friends" said:

"He (Dr. Houck) firmly believes his wife is alive, discounting suicide except as a result of mental derangement of which she also at times had been afraid."

The Potomac river was frozen at Giesboro point yesterday, and police were unable to carry out their plan to drag the bottom. However, a squad of harbor police went on foot to the point for the purpose of making a survey. They will begin dragging operations as soon as the ice breaks.

Police officials decided to drag the river after Dr. Houck had told detectives Mrs. Houck frequently had threatened to commit suicide. They said he also told them he had walked to Giesboro point Wednesday morning after he discovered his wife was gone.

Called Happy Couple.

According to an Associated Press dispatch from Canton, Ohio, John Walter, father of Mrs. Houck, declared on his return there yesterday that he had formed no opinion as to whether his daughter was murdered, committed suicide or is in hiding.

Dr. and Mrs. Houck, according to the statement issued yesterday by their relatives and friends, were a "mutually devoted and happy couple, intent on and successful in bringing up their child well, and both intensely interested in the doctor's work."

"A few years ago Dr. Houck had a nervous breakdown," it said, "and Mrs. Houck, during the week preceding her disappearance, had become apprehensive of another attack. Dr. Houck had been excessively active and had been studying intensively. He had been unusually irritable and had become quite argumentative with his wife. There absolutely is no foundation for reports of physical abuse or destructiveness, their difficulties having been mostly verbal."

Say Houck Slapped Wife.

Dr. Houck told detectives he slapped Mrs. Houck, they say.

The statement said Dr. Houck and Mrs. Houck had visited a nerve specialist and that he had advised them to separate temporarily. Preparations then were made for Dr. Houck to visit some relatives in Pennsylvania. About 9:45 o'clock Tuesday night, the statement said, Dr. Houck and Mrs. Houck had a quarrel over an insignificant occurrence earlier in the evening. When they retired, it was stated, they were on the best of terms. The statement continued:

"Dr. Houck, feeling restless, took a sedative and slept soundly until about 7 o'clock Wednesday morning, when he saw his wife fully clothed, take the child to the bathroom. He fell asleep and, getting up an hour later, found that Mrs. Houck had gone. She left

MALL DEVELOPMENT SEEN IN RELOCATING OF BOTANIC GARDEN

Second Big Step Toward Carrying Out L'Enfant Central Composition Plan.

COOLIDGE'S APPROVAL OF BILL IS EXPECTED

Unbroken View From Capitol to Monument, Fine Arts Officials Say.

Senate and House conferees yesterday agreed to the bill relocating the Botanic garden, which was passed by the House Monday. It now goes to President Coolidge, and his approval is expected.

Relocation of the garden, its buildings and the Bartholdi fountain in that area is regarded by the commission of fine arts as a second great accomplishment toward carrying out the central composition of the plan for the National Capital as designed by L'Enfant in 1792.

Commission members were elated over passage of the bill and announced that the result would be an unobstructed vista from the Capitol to the Washington monument and Lincoln Memorial.

With settlement of the location of the Agricultural Department buildings, the path virtually is cleared for development of the Mall according to ideal arrangement, time alone being necessary to bring about changes indicated.

Bordered by Park Roads.

The plan contemplates first an expanse of undulating green park a mile and a half in length and 300 feet wide, extending from the Capitol to the monument. This central green space is bordered by park roads, flanked by four rows of American elms, under the shade of which are walks and resting places.

Back of these rows of trees, other roads will furnish access to public buildings like the National museum, the Agricultural building and the Freer gallery, which have been located according to the plan, the driveways forming an uninterrupted park connection between the Capitol and White House groups.

The first great step in the Mall plan was the removal of railroad tracks from land outlined for its development. In 1901, when the Senate park commission began its work, it realized that the greatest obstacle to bringing the city back to the original plan devised by Washington and L'Enfant, was the presence in the Mall of the Pennsylvania railroad passenger station and tracks.

Confirmed by Company.

These locations had been confirmed to the company by legislation providing for elimination of grade crossings, a new station building, and completion of the complete reconstruction of the railway through South Washington, involving an expenditure of $14,000,000 on the part of the company.

The park commission was able to come to an agreement with the president of the railroad whereby he arranged to remove the station and tracks from the Mall and create a union station, provided Congress would undertake to share the expense of building under Capitol Hill a tunnel necessary for connections with the South. This arrangement was carried out and the present Union station is the result.

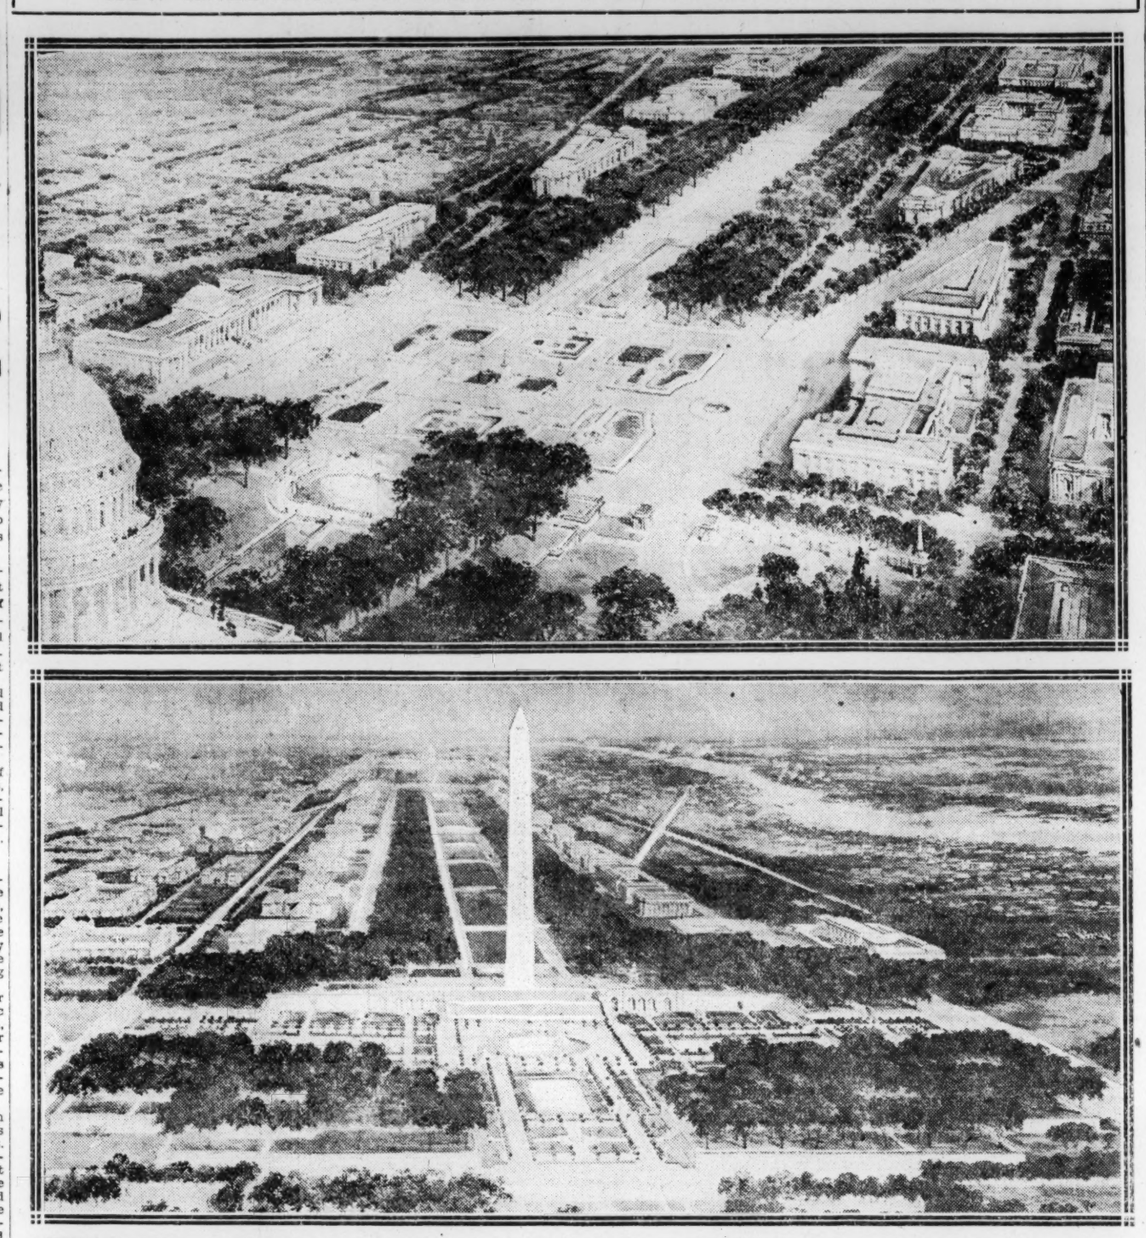

The second step, according to commissioners, comes at a time when Botanic garden has outgrown the contracted space allotted to it and when the old glass houses are made dangerous by age and decay.

Wider North Carolina Avenue Is Opposed

A plan to continue North Carolina avenue northeastward to Anacostia park along the present line of C street brought a delegation of property owners before the coordinating committee, National Capital park and planning committee, yesterday, with the announcement that while they did not object to some widening of C street, they did object to widening it to 160 feet.

The avenue now is 160 feet wide from Lincoln park to Sixteenth street northeast, and the committee believes it should be continued at that width to the Anacostia park, but no action was taken, the question being whether the thoroughfare should be carried at this width to the park by widening C street, or whether some less width from Sixteenth street should be adopted. The matter will be decided today.

FORMER MRS. GRACIE SEEKING ANNULMENT

The former Mrs. Constance S. Gracie, 1527 Sixteenth street northwest, is preparing to sue for an annulment of her marriage in 1924 to Humberto de Urbino, a citizen of Chile, who said he was a count and who was exposed as a dishwasher. According to a dispatch from New York, where Mrs. Gracie is staying with friends, she will ask for an annulment on the ground of fraud.

A year ago Mrs. Gracie declared De Urbino had chocked her, had passed a check for $5,000 in her name and had fled with her money and jewelry. She asked the Chilean government to extradite him to this country to face charges of larceny and forgery, but it announced recently that the request would not be granted.

Mrs. De Urbino's first husband, Col. Gracie, died of exposure following the Titantic disaster. She and De Urbino were married in New York in April, 1924, when she was 41 years old and he was 31. The papers for annulment are being prepared by Bernard H. Sandler, counsel for Mrs. De Urbino.

Identifies Dead Bandit as His Robber.

J. C. Bladen, of 1652 Park road northwest, yesterday identified the body of the colored holdup man at the District morgue as the man who held him up at the point of a pistol Saturday night and robbed him of $168. The holdup man was shot and killed later the same night by an intended victim, William Robb, colored, who later died.

C. OF C. PUTS BLAME ON BUDGET BUREAU FOR ALL SCHOOL ILLS

Limiting Appropriations for Needs Is Called Bad Logic by Fairchild.

Responsibility for conditions now prevalent in the public school system in the District was laid to officials of the bureau of the budget by the Washington Chamber of Commerce, meeting in the Willard hotel last night.

Milton Fairchild, chairman of the public school committee, reported that the "bad logic exercised by officials of the bureau of the budget," in setting a limit to estimates of appropriations necessary for school needs, was the cause of all school ills.

The dangerous and unsightly condition of school property and grounds should be given immediate attention, Fairchild added. Before any proposal for the establishment of a junior college here should be given consideration, Fairchild declared, school authorities and those responsible for school appropriations should give the problem of school maintenance their attention.

Move for Salary Raise.

Representative Charles Eaton, of New Jersey, and Commissioner Sidney F. Taliaferro addressed the meeting.

The organization adopted a resolution introduced by Col. Robert N. Harper, calling for an increase in the salaries of District commissioners from $7,500 to $10,000 a year.

President Martin A. Leese announced that plans were progressing for an industrial exposition here March 9 to 19. Industrial development policies of the organization will be announced at the January meeting.

One of the greatest problems of the country today, Representative Eaton declared, is in having fewer but more capable men to handle public affairs. The only way the government can get better officials, however, he said, is by offering them a good salary.

Cites Diplomatic Service.

Representative Eaton cited the diplomatic service as an example of now prevalent conditions. Two official representatives of the United States to foreign countries are forced to live in "mud huts" because of the extremely low salaries paid men in this service, he said.

Commissioner Taliaferro declared it was his aim to help make Washington the model city of the world. The city, as originally planned, has outgrown itself, the commissioner asserted, adding that it now rests with the authorities for the responsibility of laying permanent foundations for a greater Washington that will endure for all time.

Leese announced that the officers and ten new directors of the organization would be elected at the next meeting. The mid-winter banquet will be held in February, he said. E. C. Graham, president of the Board of Trade, and Ross P. Andrews, president of the Merchants and Manufacturers association, were guests of the organization. Music and a buffet supper followed the meeting.

COOLIDGE-SENATE WAR SEEN IN I.C.C. NAMING OF WOODS

Appointment Will Bring About Biggest Clash of Session, Is Prediction.

COMMITTEE TO HOLD HEARINGS ON FITNESS

Opponents Say the President Seeks to Influence Decisions of Commission.

By NORMAN W. BAXTER.

There appeared to be real war in the making yesterday between the Senate and President Coolidge. There has been disagreement on a good many questions since the opening of Congress, but the nomination of Cyrus E. Woods, of Pennsylvania, to be a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, bids fair to be the major dispute of the session between the executive and the upper legislative branch.

It took only a few moments yesterday morning for the interstate commerce committee of the Senate to decide the Woods appointment was a matter of too great concern to be settled off hand. Hearings on the fitness of the former Ambassador to Spain and Japan will be held beginning January 6.

Members of the committee said yesterday afternoon it would be surprising if there were four votes in that body in fator of Woods' confirmation.

Protests from the coal-producing regions, other than Ohio and Pennsylvania, poured into the Senate yesterday. The Northwestern States, which benefit by the present differential, which enables coal from the West Virginia and Kentucky fields to be laid down on the lakes at the same rate that applies from Ohio and Pennsylvania, joined in the objections.

The major point, however, in the view of the senators in opposition is, they say, that the President is seeking by his appointive power to influence the decisions of quasi-judicial bodies set up under the authority of Congress. They charge in naming Woods to replace Frederick I. Cox, of New Jersey, he has been guidded by a desire to change the entire character of the body charged with railroad control, since the commission as now constituted almost is evenly divided on many matters of policy and the shift from a man of Cox's ideas on rate matters to Woods will tend to reverse the general attitude of the commission.

This, however, is only the major point in the opposition which centers around the Woods appointment. Some senators believe and say the appointment of Woods is part of an agreement between the administration and Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, that he would be given his choice in the next vacancy on the Interstate Commerce Commission in return for abandoning his opposition to the appointment of Thomas F. Woodlock, most recent appointee to the rate-making body.

Senator Reed has been actively and openly at odds with the White House for some time over the question of patronage. He has insisted because his State was regarded as safely Republican it has failed to get its share of the political plums and fought to obtain greater rewards for his constituents. It was on this basis, it was understood at the time, that he opposed the appointment of Woodlock and has threatened warfare in other forms to gain his ends.

Coal States Fight Woods.

The selection of Woods is fought by senators from the coal States of West Virginia and Kentucky on the ground that Woods' connection with Pennsylvania coal interests makes him unfit for service on a body so largely concerned with railroads and coal. Some years ago Woods was counsel for the Pittsburgh Coal Co., a legal connection which he no longer has, but members of the Senate feel that influences of that association may have their effect after he becomes a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

There is, in addition, some criticism due to the fact Woods was the titular manager, if nothing else, of the campaign of Senator George Wharton Pepper and Gov. Fisher in the Pennsylvania primary. Friends of Woods insist he was engaged in a work of harmonizing the various political elements in the Republican party in Pennsylvania and not in touch with the expenditures made in behalf of Pepper and Fisher.

Senators who have been interested in the investigation of the Pennsylvania primary say, however, that Woods was manager in fact and that they wish to examine him to determine just how close his connection with the $1,000,000 fund distributed in behalf of the two candidates for whom he was working.

Another nomination which was deferred until the same date by the interstate commerce committee yesterday was that of Abram F. Myers, named on the Federal Trade Commission. A number of progressive senators have asked for investigation of certain acts with which Myers was concerned while serving as a special assistant in the Department of Justice.

COL. GREEN CLEARED ON EVERY COUNT OF DRY LAW CHARGES

Jury Acquits Him, Even on Those Discussed During Present Trial.

MAY ASK GEN. ANDREWS FOR REINSTATEMENT

Former Prohibition Officer Wishes to Resign With a Clean Record.

San Francisco, Calif., Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Col. Ned M. Green, former Federal prohibition administrator here, was acquitted by a jury in the United States district court late today on a charge of embezzling confiscated goverment liquor stores.

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney General, closed argument for the prosecution late today, after Theodore J. Roche, chief defense counsel, characterized the charges as ridiculous, pointing out that while Green had access to millions of gallons of liquor he was accused of taking only six or eight bottles.

The jury went out at 4:17 p. m. and reported at 4:33 p. m. that it had reached a verdict. Judge A. F. St. Sure was sent for and the clerk of the court read the verdict of acquittal. The jury not only exonerated Col. Green on the eight counts remaining in the indictment but on the three additional counts that were dismissed during the trial, giving the colonel a "clean slate."

Theodore J. Roche, chief defense counsel, announced immediately after the verdict that he would telegraph to Gen. Lincoln Andrews in Washington asking that Col. Green be reinstated as Federal dry administrator so that he may resign with a clean record.

When the verdict was returned there was a demonstration in the courtroom that had to be suppressed by the bailiffs.

Col. Green said that he might accept reappointment by Gen. Andrews if conditions demanded it, "but the whole thing is poison to me now."

Mrs. Willebrandt Sums.

Mrs. Willebrandt reviewed the case in detail, stressing particularly government testimony that Green had withdrawn liquor supplies in the prohibition administrator's office.

The chief defense counsel made the observation that "any man who would accept the post of prohibition administrator should be examined for his mentality, for no man who accepts that office can hope to emerge from it untarnished." He characterized the investigation against Green as a "conspiracy to oust him from office."

"We have established that Col. Green had entirely reorganized the permit division," he said. "He also changed the warehouse situation and stopped wholesale thefts and the watering of liquors. It was inevitable that the enforcement division was the next branch due for an overhauling and it was not strange that some of those in that division who have testified against Col. Green here would participate in any plan to make their positions more secure.

"Col. Green, although he had absolute control of millions of gallons of liquor, is charged here falsely with the embezzlement of only seven or eight bottles. Ridiculous on the face of it."

Roche reviewed the former friendship between Col. Green and Ivan Johnson, newspaper reporter and a son of Col. Samuel I. Johnson, Green's chief assistant, and charged that young Johnson violated that friendship by flouting confidences Col. Green had placed in him.

Will Rogers May Preach If Job as Mayor Gives Out

Special to The Washington Post.

Beverly Hills, Calif., Dec. 21.—As mayor of Beverly Hills I arrived today amid big demonstrations. They mistook me for Ormiston. If not a success as mayor, they offer to change city hall into a tabernacle—me to preach and Doug and Tom Mix and Bill Hart to take up collection, Ben Turpin to run radio, so there will be no chance of a scandal.

Honest, they gave me a great welcome and I want to thank everybody from the bottom of my heart and President Coolidge for a lovely nice wire. And also Al Smith, and my opposition, Jimmy Walker, of New York, also Hiram Johnson and Shortridge.

The only mayor that hasn't made a mistake so far—his honor, of Beverly Hills, the best town west of Nantucket lightship.

WILL ROGERS.

89 PER CENT BELIEVERS IN GOD, CENSUS SHOWS

65,000 Votes Cast in Religious Canvass of Sixteen Typical American Cities.

New York, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Eighty-nine per cent of the residents of sixteen "typical" American cities who voted in the recent religious canvass expressed their belief in God, according to a final summation published tonight by the commission of 100 clergymen for the church advertising department of the International Advertising Association.

A total of 65,000 votes were returned from the sixteen selected cities: New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Washington, Pittsburgh, Kansas City, St. Louis, Buffalo, Denver, Newark, N. J., Grand Rapids, Minneapolis, Birmingham, Tampa, Fla., Nashville, and Richmond, Va.

Belief in immortality was indicated, the statement said, by 86 per cent of the voters; 84 per cent expressed belief in prayer as a means of personal relationship with God; 82 per cent believed that Jesus was divine; 81 per cent believed in the inspiration of the Bible; 73 per cent said they were members of churches; 72 per cent regularly attended religious services; only 16 per cent said they would be willing to have their families grow up in communities in which there were no churches; 39 per cent regularly had family worship in their homes; 89 per cent were brought up in religious homes; 69 per cent sent their children to schools of religious instruction; 86 per cent believed in some form of religion as a necessary element of life for the individual and for the community.

DEATH TOLL OF LAUNCH TRAGEDY NOW PUT AT 51

21 Still Are Missing From Vessel That Capsized in the Hudson River.

THIRTY BODIES ARE FOUND

New York, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—The probable death toll due to the capsizing of the launch Linseed King in the Hudson river was set at 51 today, when police announced that 21 passengers were still unaccounted for. Thirty bodies were recovered, and 29 persons were saved from the ice-choked river.

The launch left the Ninety-fifth street pier on the Manhattan shore early yesterday morning, loaded with laborers answering the advertisement of an Edgewater (N. J.) plant. The advertisement offered 47 cents an hour for unskilled labor, and the applicants were singing for joy as they left the pier at the thought of obtaining employment.

The river was jammed with ice floes down from the upper river and in midstream the launch capsized. Tugs and other river craft pulled from the freezing water all who had been able to get out of the cabin. Police check up today showed there were 80 men on board, although the captain, himself among the survivors, said there were but 60.

Three bodies were found floating in the ice where the launch overturned, and the rest were taken from the cabin after the boat had been carried upstream several miles by the ice.

Capt. John Rohweider, of Jersey City, was under police guard today in Knickerbocker hospital, suffering from shock and submersion and charged with homicide and negligence. He was picked out of the river as he was swimming through the floating ice for the Jersey shore.

$100,000 Suit Filed Against Magazine

New York, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Because she charged she is represented as the heroine under her own name of a story in the current issue of True Story Magazine, Miss Agatha Miriam Samuels, of Scranton, Pa., today filed suit in the State supreme court asking $100,000 damages from the True Story Publishing Corporation.

The story is entitled "The Revealing Kiss" and its "unsavory" narration is alleged to constitute libel. Miss Samuels is a student of singing.

Philippines to Ask Admission to League

Manila, Dec. 31 (By A. P.).—The Herald says it has learned that the next insular legislature will be asked to enact a resolution appealing to the League of Nations for recognition of the Philippine islands government and admittance to league membership, as India and Canada have been recognized and admitted.

The Herald says the idea is sponsored by Resident Commissioner Gabaldon after having visited Europe.

LADY CYNTHIA MOSLEY'S HUSBAND WINS ELECTION

Leiter Granddaughter, With Socialist Spouse, Wage Hard English Fight.

CONSERVATIVE IS BEATEN

Smethwick, England, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Smethwick more than justified the confidence of the laborites today in the by-election for parliament by returning Oswald Mosley, laborite, by a huge majority over his conservative opponent, J. P. Pike, and the liberal, W. Bayliss. The vote was Mosley, 16,077; Pike, 9,495; Bayliss, 2,600.

The result, received with frantic enthusiasm by Mosley's supporters, shows that the socialist-laborites of Smethwick were undeterred by the aristocratic extraction of Mosley and his wife, who was Lady Cynthia Curzon, granddaughter of Levi Z. Leiter, and their wealth from giving him their confidence.

Mr. Mosley said after the announcement: "The result shows that the government has entirely lost the confidence of the country."

Mr. Pike said: "The electorate seemed to have been hypnotized by Mosley's worldly possessions. The main lesson is that the conquest of the labor party by wealthy aristocrats has begun."

Betty Baldwin, daughter of the conservative prime minister, and her brother, Oliver, a pronounced socialist, again today were leading figures in the election battle. They fought in opposite camps.

The speech making closed last night, but there was not the slightest abatement of the excitement and enthusiasm, and hundreds cast their ballots today who failed to vote at the last election.

Every possible ounce of personality was engaged in attracting doubtful voters to the rival booths. Betty Baldwin, driving her weather-stained open runabout, took the conservative candidate boldly through the streets where most of the laborite voters live.

There was much chuckling when they passed the huge limousine in which the socialist candidate, Mr. Mosley, was well sheltered from the bitter wind. Eventually, Lady Cynthia, garbed in furs, joined a group of school children leaving the school with their attendant mothers in the direction of the polling station.

Two Rival Judges Sit in Same Court

Denton, Tex., Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Attempts of two judges to occupy the same bench in District court here has resulted in some confusion at the bar. A. C. Owsley, elected last November over Judge W. S. Moore, who was appointed by Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson, was sworn in Friday following a series of suits on the balloting.

Owsley opened court yesterday, entered orders in a suit and left for lunch. During his absence Moore reopened court, issued instructions regarding the same case and adjourned the tribunal until Friday. Owsley presently returned and resumed business. Both maintain they will continue to function pending settlement of the election dispute.

ARMY IS UNDERFED, MEN DEMORALIZED, SAYS GEN. REILLY

Desertions at Rate of 1,000 Monthly Declared Due to Discontent.

STRENGTH OF REGULARS AND OF GUARD REDUCED

All but 10,000 of Horses and Mules Over 17; Shacks Used as Barracks.

New York, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—The United States army was pictured today by Brig. Gen. Henry J. Reilly, Rainbow division war veteran, as a demoralized group of underfed and unhappy men, trooping dejectedly across the military scene on aged, undernourished nags and living in shacks unfit for habitation.

American soldiers, he said, are deserting at the rate of more than 1,000 every month in protest against being made the victims of excessive governmental economy.

In an article entitled "Our Crumbling National Defense," in the January number of the Century magazine, issued today, Gen. Reilly said the country's defense is in a precarious condition due to economy measures of the past six years.

The man-power of the army, he wrote, has been cut from the 297,700 officers and men provided for the National Defense act of 1920 to a total of 121,700, and that the contemplated strength of the national guard under the same act has been reduced from 454,600 to 174,270.

Morale Also Damaged.

"Definite retrogression," he continued, "has set in our military establishment, both in material and in morale, owing to existing conditions, nearly 14,000 men deserted from the army last year, and many others, seeing their chances of promotion gone, are taking their discharges. The regular army officers discouraged over the state of affairs, are beginning to lose heart.

"The American soldier today, in the midst of national prosperity, is being fed with a lighter ration and less variety than before the war. His horse, if he is a mounted man, is given less forage, and in the artillery his mules are underfed.

"Of 40,100 horses and mules in the regular army this year, the average age of over 30,000 is 17 years. The excessive age of the animals renders them unfit for vigorous drills or marches.

"In a majority of cases the officers and men of our army are living in tumble-down wooden shacks, built as temporary structures when we entered the war ten years ago. Frequently they must go into their own pockets if their quarters are to be made comfortable.

"In every war we have fought, not excepting the last one, we have suffered unnecessary defeats and excessive casualties because of unqualified officers."

Has Brilliant Record.

Gen. Reilly, son of an army officer killed in action in China in 1900, is a West Point graduate, class of 1904. He has served in infantry, cavalry and artillery branches of the army and until America entered the world war he was in the British and French ambulance service. He was with the Rainbow division from its organization and for a time in 1918 was in command of the Eighty-third infantry brigade, although holding the commission of a colonel. In 1921 he was commissioned a brigadier general in the Illinois national guard. He holds several decorations for bravery, both from this country and France.

America Defenseless, Patriotic Bodies Claim

New York, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—The United States is defenseless and playing into the hands of its enemies "in pursuing its present policy of undue economy in army and navy expenditures" was the opinion expressed tonight in a resolution passed by officials representing fourteen patriotic bodies with a national membership of about 1,000,000 persons.

It was decided at the meeting, under auspices of the National Security league, at the Army and Navy club, to appoint a committee to urge upon Congress, "the proper maintenance of our defense forces."

Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, U. S. N., retired, asserted no one could truthfully deny the "American naval situation is one full of peril for the nation." He saw a menace in the "concerted action of Great Britain and Japan in the east."

Maj. Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, U. S. A., retired, characterized as absurd the position taken by Congress with regard to expenditures for armament.

S. Stanwood Menken, chairman of the board of the league, said the need for preparedness was as great today as it was in 1914.

Represented at the meeting were: The Army and Navy club, Military Order of the World War, Civil Legion, National Civic Federation, American Defense society, the Government club, Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, Military Society of the War of 1812, the Military Order of Foreign Wars and the National Security league.

RIVERS-HARBORS BILL IS PASSED BY SENATE

AMENDMENTS ADOPTED

(By the Associated Press.)

The rivers and harbors bill was passed last night by the Senate by a vote of 57 to 9.

All provisions proposed by the Senate commerce committee as amendments to the House bill received approval.

The bill as approved by the Senate would authorize the expenditure of about $70,000,000 on river and harbor improvements in all sections of the country. The figure is higher than the House provided, and on account of the Senate amendments the bill now goes to conference for adjustment of differences.

Supporters of the bill were confident that an early agreement would be reached and that the measure would be in the hands of President Coolidge well before March 4.

In addition to providing for purchase by the Federal government of $11,500,000 of the Cape Cod Canal, the bill carries, among other provisions, authorization for the improvement of the Illinois river as a link in the Lakes-to-the-Gulf waterway.

The Illinois river improvement, which would cost $3,500,000, was originally proposed by Representative W. E. Hull (Republican), Illinois. It calls for a channel 9 feet deep and 200 feet wide between Utica and the confluence of the river with the Mississippi.

Under a compromise reached in the Senate an amendment was added that nothing in the bill was to be construed as authorizing diversion of water from Lake Michigan at Chicago.

Provision also is made for a 6-foot channel in the Missouri river from Kansas City to Sioux City, Iowa. The first appropriation would be restricted to $12,000,000.

Senate Blocks Plans For Holiday Recess

(By Associated Press.)

Quitting last night without adopting the joint resolution calling for a holiday recess from today until January 2, the Senate temporarily blocked House plans for adjourning over the full Christmas and New Year period.

The House had agreed to meet today and adjourn immediately, while, under present plans, the Senate probably will try to get started on the interior supply bill before it adjourns. House leaders probably will wait a short time before quitting to see what the Senate plans to do, but in any event they are determined to take a vacation. Under the Constitution, one body can not adjourn for longer than three days without the consent of the other, and Representative Tilson, the Republican leader, and a few other members propose to remain here and formally meet and adjourn every three days.

U. S. Inquiry of Stock Dividend Gifts Asked

(By Associated Press.)

A Federal Trade Commission investigation of the practice of corporations in giving stock dividends was proposed in a resolution yesterday by Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, who said such dividends were given as a means of protecting stockholders from income taxes.

he resolution made no mention of recent large stock dividends, merely asking the trade commission to report on the amount of such issues declared before and since the Supreme Court ruled they were not subject to the income tax. It also would have the commission report on the status of stock dividends under the antitrust laws.

You will know plenty about what to give for Christmas when you read the "Holiday Hints" appearing every morning in The Washington Post.

SMALL ANNOUNCES SMITH ACCEPTANCE OF SENATE PLACE

Appointee to Present Credentials in Washington Soon After First of Year.

SENATORS WILL FIGHT TO BAR HIM FROM SEAT

Ashurst Confident of Majority for Refusal to Permit Administering of Oath.

Chicago, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Acceptance of the appointment as United States senator, to succeed the late William B. McKinley, by Frank L. Smith, was announced here tonight by Gov. Len Small, but Mr. Smith refused to affirm or deny any such action.

"I am not yet ready to say anything," Smith told the Associated Press by telephone from his home in Dwight. "I do not think Gov. Small would speak anything but the truth. When I get ready to talk I shall have a statement to make, but until that time I will not talk."

That he will go to Washington and present his credentials some time after the first of the year was the statement of Gov. Small, however.

"No man ever refuses an appointment for the United States Senate by the governor of Illinois," the governor said, indicating that he had a very definite understanding with Col. Smith before the senator-elect was named for the short term.

Acceptance Was Foreseen.

"Nothing can deter an acceptance to such a high office."

Senator Smith's acceptance was telegraphed to him last Sunday night, Gov. Small said.

In many quarters it had been a foregone conclusion that Smith would accept the nomination, despite efforts of certain friendly senators in Washington to prevail upon him to remain away from the present session of the Senate rather than precipitate a fight over his seating, which might necessitate an extra session of Congress.

Since the first outburst against him, Senator Smith has refrained from the issuance of statements of his intentions.

"When I feel it incumbent upon me to speak or act, I shall do so; until then, I shall have nothing to say," has been his one statement reiterated repeatedly.

Senators Sought Delay.

The announcement of Gov. Len Small, of Illinois, that Frank L. Smith had accepted appointment to the United States Senate and would report here after the holiday recess in an effort to take his seat, was taken yesterday to mean that the Illinois man had decided to disregard all advice from Washington and make his own fight for admission.

The last suggestion made to Smith by men interested in his cause was that he should stay away from Washington until the latter part of January so as to enable the Senate to dispose of some of the appropriation bills.

The feeling was, and these sentiments were transmitted to Smith, that if Smith did not insist on disrupting the order of business with the dispute over his case it might be possible to win over enough senators to enable him to take the oath of office before voting on his right to the seat.

Senate belief yesterday was, however, that if Smith comes here immediately after the holiday recess the members of the Senate will be governed by much the same feelings that they were when the appointment was first announced and deny him the right even to enter the Senate doors.

Senator Henry F. Ashurst, of Arizona, said yesterday that he intended to press his resolution to deny Smith the oath whenever he appeared and that he felt confident that he would be supported by the majority of his colleagues. Similar statements were made by leaders on both the Republican and Democratic sides of the chamber.

Visit Was Like Dream, Queen Marie Says

(By the Associated Press.)

Queen Marie of Roumania regards her recent tour of the United States as "a dream, leaving a great glow of love and gratitude." The greeting was sent from the royal palace in Bucharest to William Nelson Cromwell, of New York, president of the Friends of Roumania Society, and delivered yesterday by him to President Coolidge. The message read:

"My visit to America has passed like a dream, leaving a great glow of love and gratitude. For myself and my children I send Christmas greeetings and best wishes to the people of wonderful America, to one and all, to the humble as well as the great, to those we met and those we regretfully could not meet. MARIE."

10 CRUISERS NOT NEEDED NOW, COOLIDGE BELIEVES

Should Complete Plane Carriers and Submarines First, Is His View.

FUNDS ASKED ON 3 SHIPS

(By the Associated Press.)

Immediate construction of ten light cruisers, which would be authorized under the Butler bill, now on the House calendar, is unnecessary in President Coolidge's opinion.

His view, as outlined yesterday at the White House, is that the navy's building program is ample for the present. After present construction, including that on airplane carriers and submarines, is completed, he feels it will be possible to provide funds to begin work on the cruisers without greatly increasing naval appropriations.

To an extent, at least, the view of the President appeared to jibe with that of members of the House naval committee, which has reported the Butler bill to authorize a $105,000,000 appropriation. They point out that the measure merely would authorize the cruiser construction and that there is no intention of attempting to get an appropriation at this session of Congress to begin work on any of the ships.

Members of the committee, however, do feel that funds should be provided at once for the three cruisers already authorized by Congress, for which the budget made no provision. Mr. Coolidge has not indicated whether he has changed his position that money for this purpose should be held up until it is seen whether there is to be another arms limitation conference.

The difference of opinion on the question of starting work on the three cruisers is expected to stand out more clearly after the Christmas recess when the naval supply bill comes before the House. Several members have indicated that they will seek to provide funds for the three ships, and an extended debate is anticipated.

CHURCH AND FASCISM CLASH ON CONTROL OF ITALIAN YOUTH

Pope's Stand on Allucation Held Based on State Views on Education.

Rome, Italy, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—An entirely new issue arose this evening to cloud the horizon of Premier Mussolini's consistent efforts to achieve permanent friendly relations between the church and the state. The Italian government interpreted the criticism of the administration contained in the Pope's allocution yesterday as contesting fasism's right to control the education of Italian youth.

This point, an official spokesman asserted to the correspondent of the Associated Press, is the fundamental feature of the allocution, which is considered the most important political utterance since the beginning of the present pontificate.

The Pope's expressed disapproval of the fascist conception of the state and his condemnation of sporadic acts of violence against Catholics are considered by the government as secondary details. The acts of violence, upon which the pontiff lengthily dwelled, it was pointed out, are so definitely things of the past that the reference in the allocution to them came as a shock and surprise, not only to the government, but to both political and ecclesiastical circles.

Cites Words of Pontiff.

In view of the duce's prompt steps to nip i nthe bud any antichurch manifestation and his unfailing policy of conciliation, the informant declared, it was obvious that the Pope's true intention in criticizing the regime could be found in another paragraph of the allocution, namely:

"It seems that an obscure menace, confirmed by clouds of suspicions, interferences and difficulties, hangs over the activities of Catholic organizations, for the most part concerning the youth of the 'Catholic Action organization,' which is the apple of our eye. It seems that the education and formation of Christian youth, which is an essential part of our mandate, 'eundis docete,' is imperiled."

The Pope's remarks, it was stated, obviously refer to the strength of the fascist balilla and vanguard organizations which are intended to train boys between the ages of 8 and 18 years for their eventual entrance into the fascist party or the black shirt militia.

New Statutes to Be Published.

The Holy See fears, the informant declared, that these organizations in themselves are antireligious, and, furthermore, potential dangers to the continued existence of the various Catholic youth organizations, notably the "Catholic Pioneers," which is the equivalent of the Boy Scouts.

The government, on the other hand, is insistent that the fascist and church organizations for the youth can continue to coexist amicably, provided the former will scrupulously steer clear of religion and the latter of politics. To dispel the Holy See's fears, Mussolini intends to hasten the publication of the new statutes of the balilla, to prove that there is no foundation for alarm.

Beyond doing this, it is avowed, the government does not intend to recede in the slightest from its policy of controlling the education of the youth, which it considers to be a fundamental right provided by the fascist conception "everything in the State, everything for the State, nothing outside the State."

The issue which was brought to a head today has been brewing for nearly a year and has been marked on several occasions by open clashes. The international congress of Catholic Boy Scouts, which was to be held in Rome last summer, had to be called off after clashes between the factions, which went so far as the destruction of the offices of the local headquarters in provincial cities.

The fascists objected to the Catholic organizations, first, because they were essentially international, and, second, because, it is claimed, in many parts of Italy they are still allied with the popular party adherents, who are antifascist. The Catholics maintain that the accusation of meddling in politics has been used as a pretext for an attempt to interfere or destroy their organizations, which, they assert, being purely religious should not owe allegiance to any political or state power.

ALIBIS INTRODUCED IN MELLETT TRIAL

Canton, Ohio, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Tom McDermott, of Nanty-Glo, Pa., who surrendered his brother, Patrick Eugene, to authorities who sought him as an alleged slayer of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, took the stand in his brother's defense at his trial for murder here today.

Most of his testimony was dictated in a whisper to the court stenographer out of the jury's hearing and concerned the alleged transactions between the McDermott family and the prosecuting attorneys prior to McDermott's surrender.

Floyd Streitenberger, of Fairfield, Ohio, former Canton police detective, testified that Louis Mazer, indicted jointly with McDermott, was at the Streitenberger home at the time Mellett was murdered. He said Mazer visited him at his request to confer about a police dog. Half a day was devoted to testimony of members of a party which, the defense contends, Ben Rudner, also indicted for the murder, was attending at the time the slaying occurred.

The alibis of Mazer and Rudner were introduced by the defense to refute the State's claims that a conspiracy existed among Rudner, McDermott and Mazer to kill the editor because of his editorial attacks on the "underworld," of which the trio are alleged to have been leaders.

Count de Chambrun Gets Vienna Post

Paris, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Count Charles de Chambrun, French minister at Athens, who was seriously considered for the Ambassadorship to the United States to succeed Henry Berenger, today was named Ambassador at Vienna by the cabinet.

The appointment is in the nature of a promotion for Count de Chambrun, who is a descendant of Lafayette.

THOMAS F. LANE DIES.

Thomas F. Lane, 57 years old, 69 Shepherd street, Hyattsville, Md., died yesterday at the home. Funeral services will he held today at 10 a. m. at the Gasch funeral parlors, Hyattsville. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln cemetery.

Before coming to Hyattsville Mr. Lane lived at Cape Girardeau, Mo., and for many years was prominent in Democratic politics in that State. He had been connected with the legal division of the general accounting office here for the last several years. He is survived by the widow, Mrs. Mary E. Lane, two sons, Bryan J. Lane, of St. Louis, and Howell C. Lane, of Washington, and a daughter, Mrs. Abigail Brown, of Washington.

JUDGE MEEHAN RITES HELD.

Funeral services were held yesterday at the Church of St. Thomas the Apostle for Judge Charles V. Meehan, of the municipal court. Following the services the body was taken to Springfield, Mass., for burial.

Delegations from the local bench and bar, the American Legion and the Knights of Columbus evening school attended the services. All branches of police court, except the clerk's office, were closed. The Rev. William G. Carrol officiated at the mass.

CITY HEADS ASK U.S. AID IN FOOTING BILL ON PARK LAND BONDS

Send Modification Requests for $10,000,000 Issue to Budget Bureau.

The commissioners yesterday sent to the bureau of the budget recommendations for modification of the $10,000,000 bond issue for purchase of park land in the District, proposed by the National Capital park and planning commission.

It had been suggested to Brig. Gen. H. M. Lord, director of the bureau, by Maj. Gen. Edgar Jadwin, chairman of the park and planning commission, that $2,000,000 of the bonds be issued each year for a period of five years. Gen. Lord sent the Jadwin letter to the District commissioners with a request for their views.

The District commissioners sidestepped a direct verdict on the proposal, but suggested that the Federal government pay half the bill for retirement of bonds if any be issued, and further suggested that the program be limited so that not more than $600,000 would have to be met by District taxpayers in any one year. These suggestions if carried into effect would limit the annual issue of park bonds to $1,200,000 a year instead of $2,000,000.

Police Fines Thrown Out.

The commissioners also voted to ask Congress not to order further reductions in the cost to the District for street lighting. A communication was addressed to the District committees of Congress setting forth that in 1926 the cost of street lighting in Washington has averaged $21 per street lamp, whereas the average cost per lamp in eighteen other cities was $51, including some cities with municipally operated plants. A reduction just has been effected to less than $20 for 1927, and the commissioners told the members of Congress they did not think the rate should go any lower.

The annual remission of fines of policemen who lately suffered penalties, as a sort of Christmas expression of good will, was made by the commissioners. Sergt. Milton D. Smith, who had paid all but $35 of a $100 fine for using abusive language to an attorney in court, was the beneficiary of the wiping out of the unpaid remainder. Policewoman Glayds I. Black benefited to the extent of $5. The others and the amounts remitted were as follows:

A. S. P. Griffin and F. S. Marshall, $25; W. H. Kellum and R. E. Nalls, $20; J. H. Fling and E. D. Gemeny, jr., $15; F. W. Steele and L. G. Miller, $10; $5 each to R. B. Carroll, L. E. Batchelor, H. H. Carper, M. T. Mullen, Jeff Vane, H. H. Wilson, M. W. Settle, Sheridan Jones, F. R. Gue and F. L. Arrington.

A pocketbook valued at $10, containing $5 and a $12.75 check was stolen from the desk of Miss Ruth Barton in the office of Representative Oliver. Miss Catherine Bowling told police her pocketbook containing small photographs and keys was stolen from the office of Representative Lindsay.

PERU TACNA-ARICA PLAN PUBLISHED IN BOLIVIA

Reply to Kellogg Proposal Would Restrict Tract to Be Ceded.

PROGRAM STIRS CRITICISM

Lapaz, Bolivia, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—What purports to be the reply of Peru to the proposal of the American Secretary of State, Frank B. Kellogg, for the settlement of the Tacna-Arica dispute between Chile and Peru is published today by El Diario with editorial comment.

(Secretary Kellogg has proposed that differences between Chile and Peru be composed by the concession of the territory in dispute to Bolivia. The Chilean government accepted the proposal "in principle." Peru has as yet made no official reply.)

El Diario set forth the Peruvian reply as follows:

1. Peru will remain in possession of Tacna and the city of Arica, including the Morro.

2. Peru and Chile in common agreement, without demanding any pecuniary or territorial compensation, will cede to Bolivia all territory south of Tacna and Arica as far as the river Camarones.

3. Chile will retain possession of the Chilcaya nitrate field.

4. Bolivia will remain in possession of the port of Vitor, which is the only one that exists in that zone.

The newspaper, in its editorial comment, says:

"Peru does not show a generous attitude in her proposition, which is a substitute for the Kellogg formula. It is an unsatisfactory concession because Peru wishes to retain the best and the only valuable territories in dispute. The south coast of the provinces is abrupt and almost inaccessible. The inlet of Vitor does not satisfy the aspirations of Bolivia."

Commenting Peru in refusing indemnification, El Diario adds:

"The Peruvian attitude confirms the rights of Bolivia, which have been recognized by the United States and Chile."

WATCH YOUR THROAT!

The warning signal

MORE serious illnesses than you can count on the fingers of both hands start with the warning signal, an irritated throat.

A tickle in your throat is nature's way of saying "Look out—Danger ahead: the bacteria are getting the upper hand!" Naturally, too, because the throat is the open door for infection. It is the ideal breeding place for disease germs.

And in spite of this, so many of us neglect throat protection! A good, healthy body will be able to throw off the attacks of many bacteria, but very often the human system is not in the proper condition to fight them back.

When you think of your throat in this way, it seems amazing that more people do not take the proper precaution against illnesses that start with throat infection. Particularly, when the safe antiseptic, Listerine, is as near at hand as any corner drug store.

Be on the safe side these winter days. Use Listerine regularly as a mouth wash and gargle. Also, then, you will be on the polite side with regard to that insidious condition, halitosis (unpleasant breath).—Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, U. S. A.

AMERICA ARMS ITS ASSAILANTS.

The aggressions of the Mexican government against Nicaragua have brought about a situation in which the United States government finds itself a participant in the process of extending communism in Central America. It is permitting the Calles government to obtain arms and ammunition, which is sent to Nicaragua to destroy republican government in that country.

After the United States had recognized the Obregon government in Mexico, in accordance with the solemn promise of Obregon to fulfill international obligations and to respect the rights of Americans in Mexico, a revolutionary movement was started against Obregon. The United States, as an act of friendship toward the Mexican government, placed an embargo upon all arms shipments from this country to Mexico, except those ordered by the Obregon government. With this help Obregon put down the revolution. The embargo is still is effect.

The Calles government is therefore free to import from the United States all the arms and war munitions it desires, and it is now obtaining these supplies. They are finding their way into the hands of the Mexican communists and Nicaraguan revolutionists who are supported by the Mexican government. In the meantime the United States has recognized the Diaz government in Nicaragua, and is supposed to be willing to aid it in maintaining its constitution and public order.

Thus with one hand the United States is supporting constitutional and republican government in Nicaragua and with the other is furnishing arms and ammunition to Mexico with which to destroy the republic of Nicaragua.

The Calles government, instead of recognizing the Diaz government of Nicaragua and refraining from intermeddling in its affairs, has recognized the communist revolution there and is sending it arms and war equipment obtained from the United States.

For some undisclosed reason the State Department is failing to perform its plain duty in dealing with Calles. By its failure it is sacrificing life in Nicaragua and actually assisting communist conspirators under Mexican and Russian direction to make inroads upon the governments of Central America. All the assaults made by communism will have to be met by the United States sooner or later, and the stronger the communists are permitted to become the greater will be the job of exterminating them. Why does the Department of State stand mute and hesitating in the face of this attack upon the integrity of republican government in this hemisphere? Is it afraid to enforce the Monroe doctrine?

FIGHTING TWINS MAKE PEACE.

War has raged near the laughing water of Minnehaha for so long that the memory of men runneth not to the contrary. But now Minneapolis and St. Paul, the fighting twins, have decided to bury the hatchet and smoke the pipe-stone pipe of peace.

Once the twin cities were ten miles apart, and even so late as the time when McKinley was almost nominated by a woman waving a flag from the gallery of the convention hall at the Minneapolis convention, the territory between the two was known as the "Interurban Tract," the residents on which were scorned by the one city and hated by the other.

But time has eliminated the rural space between the two, and only the imaginary boundary exists. To all intents and purposes Minneapolis and her saintly twin are one municipality. The other day the armistice which has existed for a decade was made into a treaty of amity and peace, and it was ratified at a "get-together dinner" whereat were read letters from President Coolidge and several members of his cabinet, all of which breathed congratulations over "the tidings of great joy" which had floated out of the west.

It is regrettable that the late chief of the money order division of the Postoffice Department could not have lived long enough to hear of the rapprochement of the rivals. Mr. MacDonald had more trouble over Minneapolis than over any other office from which money orders were sent abroad. Owing to the great number of Scandinavian immigrants who resided there and who were constant senders of money to "the old country," the receipts from money orders exceeded the payments by more than 100 per cent. St. Paul, being the headquarters of the northwestern division of the railway mail service, had constant use for more money to pay the railway mail clerks than was received in the ordinary course of business. So Minneapolis was ordered and directed to turn surplus money order funds over to the postmaster at St. Paul.

Instead, the Minneapolis official sent the funds to Washington. He was given peremptory orders to obey MacDonald. But he chose to transmit to Chicago. Then he tried New York, and was ordered to Washington for explanations. MacDonald insisted that he be disciplined or removed from office. His name was Ankeny, and the Postmaster General was John Wanamaker. Upon his appearance in the office of the latter he did not wait to be questioned, but blurted out:

"Mister Postmaster General, you don't know anything of the feeling between the two cities. Minneapolis money won't go to St. Paul. I'll be damned if I will send a dime from my office to that burg. You may appoint some one else in my place, but it will make no difference. He won't be allowed to remain in Hennepin county if he dares to commit such a crime, and you may as well realize that right now."

Thereupon Chicago was made the deposit agency for Minneapolis postal funds.

MUSCLE SHOALS.

Efforts are to be made to have the Muscle Shoals report referred to the Senate committee on agriculture. Apparently it is hoped that the committee will report in favor of rejecting all bids and recommending that the government operate the Muscle Shoals plant.

The special committee of Congress which received bids for operating Muscle Shoals made a careful inquiry into the subject and recommended the acceptance of a certain bid. This action was taken after a committee of experts, headed by Gen. Jadwin, chief of engineers, had made an analysis of the bids and had reported in favor of the bid which the congressional committee finally approved.

The pigeonholing of the Muscle Shoals report would probably result in continued delay and dispute, with loss to the government and the country. Agriculture is now being deprived of fertilizer and Southern communities are being deprived of power because of the failure of Congress to act. Now that an acceptable bid has been made, which will insure the effective operation of the plant for both fertilizer and power production, without any additional appropriations by Congress, there is no valid excuse for further delay. The bid should be accepted by Congress. If Congress can not trust its own joint committee, its chief of engineers, and its best qualified scientific officials, it is evident that nothing will ever be done with Muscle Shoals. The plant will fall into ruins and millions of public money will be lost.

HER MAIDEN NAME.

The alleged refusal of the register of copyrights of the Congressional Library to decide that a married woman may take out a copyright in her maiden name seems to have stirred some of the ladies to deep resentment and loud protest. The stir created induces the New York Herald Tribune to issue a warning to the register wherein he is threatened with the fury of the National Woman's Party unless he "makes it snappy" and gets his decision into print without delay.

But there will be no furious attack upon the register by the ladies, for the simple reason that, in the vernacular, they "have no kick coming." The register merely informs the authoress that it is unusual to grant copyright to a married woman in her maiden name. He further suggests that complications may arise, but if the applicant insists the necessary record is made and the protection of the copyright law is extended forthwith.

The common belief that when a woman marries she loses the right to retain her original name in the transaction of business affairs, such as the purchase and sale of real estate, is without basis of law in the District of Columbia. Some of the States require a woman to designate herself by the surname of her husband after becoming "Mrs." But there is no national law on the subject. Even the Department of State allows a married woman a passport in her maiden name although the name of the husband is attached, as a matter of identification.

Under the circumstances there appears no cause for the National Woman's Party to get into a tantrum over the alleged official interference with the right of the fair sex to ignore their married names if they so elect.

GOVERNMENT RESTRICTION.

There appears to be a movement on foot to solve the surplus question by employing some form of government restriction. For instance, it is proposed to solve the cotton surplus problem by establishing a Federal agency to control and restrict the amount of cotton planted and raised for the markets. Likewise there is a movement on foot to establish a Federal agency to control and restrict the amount of corn and wheat to be raised and marketed.

This opens up a large question involving a disturbance of established economic principles, especially that of the law of supply and demand. The proposed plan seeks to control and restrict the amount of food products and farm products so as to raise the price to consumers. Such an exercise of power, if successful, would upset many accepted theories and principles of political economy.

The question arises: If the government can control and limit the production of agricultural products in order to raise prices, why can it not control and limit the production of all commodities, through Federal agencies dealing with leather, wool, timber, ores, machinery, and all other articles consumed by the public? If there is authority for taking control of cotton there is authority for taking control of wool. The end of the process would mean government control of all industrial and agricultural activities. The result of such a procedure is perfectly clear to all who think.

By suggesting such a plan, are not its promoters approaching the problem from the wrong end? Instead of government restriction of the production of agricultural or industrial commodities, an increase in their consumption should be promoted and encouraged.

Ever since the world war the tendency in most foreign countries has been to produce more. Production of agricultural products has more than kept pace with population and consumption. Production of manufactured commodities has well nigh reached that point. The only factor that saves the United States in this regard is the constantly expanding consuming power of the people. This expansion is manifested by the large volume of foreign commodities consumed in this country.

If the problem of balancing production and consumption is to be controlled and regulated by government restriction in production, it will soon involve the government in economic chaos.

MONTGOMERY COUNTY.

Maj. E. Brooke Lee, delegate-elect to the Maryland house of delegates, and candidate for the speakership, made public last Monday a plan for the creation of a new suburban zone in Montgomery county, to include the general territory of the Washington sanitary suburban district, to be governed by a board of commissioners, for the purpose of providing immediately for the future growth of the county in full consonance with the growth of Washington and the National Capital area. Maj. Lee recently was appointed by Gov. Ritchie to cooperate with officials of the National Capital park and planning commission.

The plan was offered because of disapproval of several proposals now pending to incorporate some of the existing towns and the creation of other subdivisions of the county as special tax areas. Such a program might possibly make impossible any future large public improvements, and undoubtedly would make more difficult the work of the park and planning commission, which would find it necessary to conduct individual negotiations with a large number of small separate units. Suburban areas require tax incomes over and above farming areas, however, to provide such services as trash removal and fire protection, and the first method to suggest itself of obtaining such funds in a county containing both types of areas is by incorporation of the villages and towns. This plan invariably works against cooperative development.

It has become generally recognized that the development of Montgomery country hinges upon and must keep pace with the development of Washington, for the dividing line in most cases is geographical rather than physical. Possibly the Lee plan would provide a proper solution, and the Maryland legislature will do well to give it full consideration.

CONGRESS INSUBORDINATE.

Congress has not only failed to obey the orders of Wayne B. Wheeler in the matter of appropriating $500,000 for the undercover squad of the prohibition unit, but the Senate has gone still further in the way of disobedience of orders relative to the judiciary.

During the last session, late in June, the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill to authorize the appointment of extra district judges in several of the States. Included in the authorization, and in harmony with the requirements of the Antisaloon league, were three additional for the southern district of New York. It was pointed out that the crowding of the dockets of the district courts in the eastern and southern districts had gone so far that years must elapse before pending cases involving the trial of offenders against the prohibition law can be reached. The administrator for New York city and the eastern and southern sections of the State said in an interview that instead of three additional courts to try such offenders, 50 or more could be profitably employed in the task without affording sufficient facilities.

The Senate committee on judiciary appears to take the view that there are sufficient court officers in New York and Brooklyn without the creation of additional courts. The House bill, therefore, has been amended in the committee, and as it reaches the Senate calendar it is without the paragraph authorizing the additional judges for the southern district of the State, although the provision for an additional "up State" judge remains.

It is of course possible that the paragraph eliminated by the committee may be restored on the floor when the bill is called up. But the probabilities are that this will not be done. The friends of the bill in the House will not jeopardize its chances by insisting on disagreement with the Senate amendment, fearing that in doing so they may place the whole bill in jeopardy.

The spirit of insubordination seems to be rising in Congress.

SAFEGUARDING FUTURE PARK LANDS.

Separate bills were introduced last Monday by Senator Capper, chairman of the Senate District committee, and Representative Zihlman, chairman of the House District committee, designed to prevent improvements being made on property sought by the National Capital park and planning commission while negotiations for the acquisition of the lands are being conducted. In brief, the bills provide against making improvements after the commission has petitioned the courts to condemn the property, provided the President has approved the petition. The commission would be required to set up a fund as evidence of good faith, and if after the property had been condemned the commission had not taken it over within two years, all proceedings would be stopped and from the established fund the commission would be required to repay the owner for the loss sustained during the two-year period in which the property had been allowed to stand idle.

Apparently several cases already have arisen which make such legislation desirable. In one case the owner is reported to have gained knowledge that his property had been selected for a playground site, whereupon he hastily contracted for a large building, the removal of large quantities of material to the site, and for a quick excavation, which so greatly increased the value of the property that the project had to be abandoned.

The legislation sought would prevent similar practices. Apparently it is so worded that both the commission and the public would be afforded complete protection, not only during the process of the negotiations, but also if it should be found necessary to abandon any contemplated project. The taxpaying public is entitled to protection against citizens who try to barter the public benefit for individual gain, and who frequently succeed in blocking public improvements.

A great and prosperous nation, which does not need the money, is exacting payment from impoverished countries in a way which arouses bad feeling far in excess of any value received.—Baltimore Sun.

If the countries in question did not overextend themselves in trying to swallow and digest territories taken from the enemy they would not be so impoverished.

All Set!

PRESS COMMENT.

Admirable.

Ohio State Journal: One thing, among others, which we have always admired Vice President Dawes for is that he never even hinted that some conscienceless Democrat had put a sleeping-powder in his coffee on that historic occasion, not that we wish to suggest anything in the line of future policy to conscienceless Democrats.

Cynical Democrats.

Brooklyn Daily Eagle: 'Twas a miserable cynic who insisted that the proper place to cut a dog's tail off was right behind the ears. Some Democrats have much the same notion about the slashing of public revenues by Congress.

Prohibition and the Farmer.

Buffalo Courier-Express: The farmer cares not at all who makes the nation's prohibition laws so long as he makes its cider.

Ravages of Time.

Queensboro News: Such are the ravages of time that what the governor of North Carolina said to the governor of South Carolina is of far less importance than what the governor of Alabama said to anybody that happened to be along.

Sex-Equality Coming.

Brooklyn Citizen: For the first time New York city sees one of her alert policewomen put on trial for drunkenness. The limit of sex-equality hasn't been reached yet. We shall come to it in due time.

Variants.

Philadelphia Inquirer: Quoting Senator Sheppard's statement that the "wets" have as much chance of modifying the Volstead act as a humming bird has of "flying to Mars with the Washington monument tied to its tail," the Boston Transcript says "the honorable senator thus furnishes variant for the much-quoted observation concerning the snowball in the nether regions." And, it might be added, the Elbert Hubbard classic relative to the chance a celluloid mouse has when being chased through the same place by an asbestos cat.

Pay First.

Philadelphia Record: In many of the stores one notes a blanket invitation "Please take small articles along with you." Presumably the management does not expect the shopper to neglect the little formality of paying for them.

Compromising With Evil.

Philadelphia Evening Ledger: Six River Rouge (Mich.) bootleggers have declared their willingness to provide every poor child in the town with a pair of shoes and a pair of rubbers for Christmas, and five clergymen have agreed to help find the children. If that's compromising with evil, there appears to be some excuse for it.

A Progressive Champion.

Binghamton Press: Mickey Walker, having dropped his welterweight title, picks up the middleweight championship; now, if he continues to take on weight, and somebody knocks him out from under his present crown, he can bob up and challenge Gene Tunney.

America.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: Our national trait of lavish expenditure has at last justified itself. The soap produced in the United States in 1925 was valued at $270,273,000.

We may be a nation of spendthrifts. We may throw away millions yearly on synthetic gin, chewing gum and other superfluities. But at the same time we buy soap.

We may, as even our most charitable European critics tell us, be one of the backward nations in most of the so-called higher accomplishments of civilization. Our music may be primitive, our art may be imitative and our literature may be little more than promising. But at least we do bathe. We are, as a nation, offensive to neither eye nor nose.

Hard To Satisfy.

Minneapolis Journal: First, the franc fell, causing much hardship; then, the franc rose causing much hardship; now, it's standing still, and there is the deuce and all to pay.

Troubles.

Cincinnati Enquirer: No, you're wrong. That statement about troubles coming not as single spies but in battalions, was not written by Edward W. Browning, husband of "Peaches." But he agrees with it.

Tip to Janitors.

Detroit News: If the janitor won't send up any heat, the least he could do as a matter of ordinary humanity would be to pour some anti-freeze mixture in the radiators.

Why Not Cancel Reparations?

New York World: As long as the European allies insist that European peace can be stabilized around the payment by Germany of a sum which is now more than $300,000,000 annually, they will not persuade America that the peace of the world is seriously endangered by payments to America of sums which are from a half to a tenth of the German obligation.

The German settlement sustains all the others, and because of its size refutes all the arguments about the burden of the settlements and their impracticability. The settlements having gone so far as they have, we shall have to go on with them until Europe starts a movement for complete revision of all the settlements, the German included. Until such a movement is inaugurated a plea for revision, however, righteous in itself, will fail. It will be a plea for leniency to governments which are not themselves lenient. Until a program for general revision and liquidation becomes practical politics in Europe, a plea for revision of the American settlements is an argument for sacrifice without sufficient compensation.

Farm Relief!

St. Mary's Enterprise: Money made the mare go, but it is credit that runs a lot of automobiles, and let us not forget that a good deal of St. Mary's prosperous appearance is due to driving a mortgaged car over a bonded road.

Mr. Ford's Dances

Louisville Courier-Journal: Parents of school children at Dearborn, home of Henry Ford, have petitioned the trustees to discontinue, "in the interest of a higher standard of morality," instructions in old-fashioned dancing paid for by Mr. Ford. Discontinuance in the interest of higher standards of scholarship might be more to the point if dancing lessons have been included in the curriculum to the loss of time on other lessons. The parents may have been actuated by the discovery that Mr. Ford's efforts to standardize the dance step have not been so successful as his venture in the mechanical branch of locomotion.

Elusive Differences.

Richmond Times Dispatch: The difference in taxes before and after the change is as elusive as the size of the deficit.

Buzz-Saw Tourists.

Seattle Times: It is hard to sympathize with those 250 American tourists who visited Damascus at a time when the Druse tribesmen were staging an assault. Always there are persons who are consumed with curiosity to see if a revolving buzz-saw has teeth.

Rights of Widows

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MEN are curious creatures who think property very important—so important that they wish to "own" it while they live and control it after they die.

Having labored long to acquire a property about as significant as a pebble on a mountain side, man not only values it greatly because of the labor it cost him, but derives a sense of importance from the fact that he has it.

He feels that he alone can utilize the property in exactly the right way. Moreover, he feels that he alone has a right to utilize it, now and hereafter, and resents the fact that somebody else will get it when he is dead and no longer has use for it.

This feeling appears between the lines of his will. He decrees that the property shall go to this or that in case his wife marries again. Some fellow may come along and get the woman, but no scalawag will get a chance to spend the money and dissipate the property he so laboriously collected.

Now observe the situation. Here is a young widow with an income sufficient for her needs. She is lonely. Because she has been accustomed to the companionship of a man, she is lonely now for the companionship of a man. But she mustn't fall in love with one—not if he is poor; for to marry him would be to sacrifice her property and the comfort it affords.

The first husband, trying to play Destiny and direct the living from his grave, has made a pretty mess of things.

What right has he to butt into the game after he has withdrawn? He had certain trifling pawns to play with while he was here, but he surrendered all right in them when he died. Let him keep his meddlesome finger out.

The widow's right to the property is greater than the right of anybody else. Let her have it. And once it is hers, let her do with it as she may please. This is a free country. If she wishes to give the whole of her estate to some cow-eyed loafer, no dead man has a right to interfere. He's through, resigned, gone. What happens now is none of his business.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Science of Government.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a picker up of crumbs that fall from the scientists' tables I have for the greater part of a century failed to note any mention of discussions on the science of government.

On the 27th of this month the American Association for the Advancement of Science will meet in Philadelphia. Therewith will foregather no less than 39 minor associations, including a Sullivant Moss society, an American Fern society, an American Folk Lore society and even the "Potato Association of America." Of course, there will be the expected major scientists, agronomists, anthropologists, astronomers, biologists and so on down the alphabet. But not one of them seems to represent that very backward science, the science of government, political science, call it what you will.

To me it appears that of all the world's needs the most urgent is that very science in government. Surely there is nothing less scientific than the perpetual international turmoil that results in recourse to the idiotic anachronism of war for settlement. Three centuries ago John Milton wrote "What can war but endless war still breed?" Is it not about time for science in governments to replace the eternal folly of war? I am, of course, aware, being a member thereof, that we have an American Institute of International Law; but in place of representing any science, that international law simply consists of a crystallization of the usages of war; those usages, as we all know, in no way represent international justice, but simply seek to justify the rule of "tooth and claw," euphemistically exalted as "lex talionis."

We owe so much to our scientists. Can they not add to our indebtedness by giving us science in government sufficient to rule out the idiocy of war?

Civil War Widows.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The pension bill for the widows of civil war veterans is certainly discriminating. What matter if these widows became wives prior to or ten or fifteen years after the close of the war. When the soldiers returned from the battlefields disfigured or crippled, did the young womanhood of that day refuse to mate with them? Most emphatically they did not, but instead followed them to the altar with the light of love and sacrifice shining in their eyes.

I will ask our legislators to turn back to that early period when they didn't have the facilities to work with that we have now and witness the young wife who often was compelled to do rough, heavy work for which her soldier husband was incapacitated. And also to remember that the pension in those days was meager indeed.

And I ask why in the name of justice should this rich and prosperous nation deny a living pension to these widows who lent so freely of their young strength during the restoration period after the close of the war. When I think of our present prosperity, based as it surely is on the shoulders of these splendid women, I reflect with the deepest shame that they have been denied the allowance necessary for their comfort.

Let us earnestly hope that our legislators will hasten to correct their grievous mistake, and that in so doing they will have the hearty support of our President. DOLLIE DARING.

Ziegfeld's "Betsy" Looks Good in Capital Premiere

Cut down to the ordinary running time of a musical comedy, "Betsy," the latest offering from the studio of Flo Ziegfeld, probably will prove one of the hits of 1927. It is scheduled for New York around New Year. Last night, in its premiere at the National—first time before an audience—the first act was over just about the time regular performances let out, at approximately 11 o'clock.

With all its length, "Betsy" can be shortened—and in jig-time. It has the elements of huge success, a clever book, melodious music, canable character interpreters and, best of all, a dancing chorus that has no equal. Although Ziegfeld advertises the glorification of the American girl only in his "Follies," the new musical comedy has a comely gathering of youth, girls who come very near running away with the show, as the saying goes.

"Betsy" marks the musical comedy debut of an old-time vaudeville favorite, Belle Baker. In all her stage career, Belle Baker never was better than last night, upon her entrance into the Ziegfeld arena. Heralded far and wide as a singer of popular songs, she gets a chance to play a role. She is Betsy, self-sacrificing daughter of Mama Kitzel, an East Side mazoth-lady blessed with three strapping boys and a second daughter, Ruth, who has all sorts of opportunity for marriage. So have the boys—one a tailor, another a barber and the third a chef. They are engaged to daughters of millionaires, young women doing settlement work.

Ruth has a birdman in love with her, a fellow who leads a carefree, happy existence feeding pigeons and sparrows on the rooftops. Alas, poor Betsy. Lovers she has none. So the old lady enacts a pledge from the boys that they will not marry until their elder sister has been led to the altar. There, then, is the plot and working basis of the story around which Ziegfeld and his able cohorts have attempted an elaborate musical comedy. It is not by any means a finished product, but it has possibilities.

No money was spared in costuming. The whole production was staged alvishly. The opening scene is one to set all New York agog showing, as it does, Jersey City from a tenement roof, the river below, Brooklyn Bridge in the foreground. A masterpiece of stage setting and effect.

Interspersed in the cast that has only one featured player are favorites of the variety halls and musical comedy field—with Borrah Minnevitch and his Harmonica Symphony orchestra, getting the biggest hand of the night. They are direct from New York triumphs—and ready to go back. Borrah never has been seen or heard in public performance here, until his debut with "Betsy." His orchestra is composed of 10 urchins, harmonica players and all champions. In a spot by himself, the master harmonicist plays "Rhapsody in Blue," to the delectation of gallery gods. How they roar approval!

Jimmy Hussey, elongated comedian with slow Jewish drawl, is the tailor boy. Ralph Whitehead is his brother, Joe, a barber, and Dan Healy—of nimble feet—is the third brother aiding and abetting "Betsy" in a matrimonial essay, while the girl has stage ambitions. Evelyn Law, one of the greatest dancers of her time, is back again, with Madeline Cameron gaining new laurels. Allan Kearns, Barbara Newberry and Bobby Perkins have goodly parts. In all, a fine array of talent trying to find itself in a maze of opportunity and riches of musical comedy.

There were songs that will be played on the machines and in the dance halls. Jazz predominates. Yet there is a bit of philosophy packed into a sort of sob stanza, rolled off the tongue of Belle Baker, called "This Funny World," and set loose for the wise heads; something to think over on long winter nights. "Betsy" will improve with age. All it needs is compactness, a closing-in, getting the talent and time in focus.

After the 11 o'clock toast had been given in the Elks club, Mr. Ziegfeld's army of beauties and vaudevillians tripped back to the footlights—to carry on, and on, and on, 'til way after the midnight hour.

Those who walked out on the premiere, when the last call of the night clubs had sounded, missed one of the high spots in the performance, by far the best song, "Shuffle," and a stage setting as beautiful as any seen here in what might be called eons. Here were spotted specialties, mostly dances by Evelyn Law and Dan Healy, with a return to the vaudeville numbers of Belle Baker.

Whatever else may be said of "Betsy," in its present shape—and there are many who see in it too much of the music halls—it has a chorus that stands head and shoulders over any visiting in this vicinity since Grant took Richmond. Girls, after all, make the show. This is the answer. Flo Ziegfeld knows beauty when he sees it.

AUTO VICTIM'S WIDOW TAKEN ON DRY CHARGE

Three half-gallon jars of alleged liquor were hurled from an automobile at Ninth and I streets northeast late yesterday when the car finally was halted by police after a pursuit of 2 miles. Capt. C. L. Piemmons and Detective Oscar Mansfield, of the Twelfth precinct, were driving in Bladensburg road northeast, near Mount Olivet cemetery, when they spied the car and pursued it. When the jars were hurled to the street Mansfield said he mopped up some of the liquid with a sponge and emptied it into a bottle to use for evidence.

Mrs. Johnson is the widow of Robert W. Johnson, who was injured fatally November 17 while riding in an automobile with her; Miss Bernice V. Hutton, 1739 Thirteenth street northeast, and Stephen S. ANYWHERE TO ANYWHERE—BY TELEPHONE

There is a way to SAVE on your LONG DISTANCE CALLS

ISN'T this about the way you make most of your long distance calls?

When the operator answers you tell her "I want to speak to John Y. Evans, the Ajax Manufacturing Company 234 Pearl Street, New York City." She must then connect you with Mr. Evans and no one else.

Here is a way you can do much of your long distance telephoning for less money and with greater speed. Mr. Evans is probably in his office when you make your call and if not, someone else can talk for him. Then why not tell the operator "I want anyone at the Ajax Manufacturing Company," or simply give her their telephone number if you know it. On a call of say 150 miles to a particular person, the charge is $1.20; the rate when we simply connect you to the out-of-town telephone is 95c.

The first way of calling is termed person-to-person service; the other and simpler way is station-to-station service. The latter makes less work for our operators with less use of our lines and we pass the savings along to you.

Think of this when you are making long distance calls, either business or social. Telephone users are turning more and more to station-to station service as a speedier and cheaper way of doing their long distance telephoning. Over half the messages we now handle are on this basis.

How to make a station-to-station call:
If you know the number, tell the operator:
"This is Franklin 1234. I want Chestnut 2468, Philadelphia."
If you don't know the number of the desired telephone, say:
"This is Franklin 1234. I want anyone at the telephone of L. Q. Jones, 172 Broad Street, Philadelphia."

How to make a person-to-person call:
After giving the operator the telephone number or the name under which the telephone is listed, say:
"I wish to speak to Mr. A. B. Smith."

MURDER CHARGE FILED AGAINST BOY'S SLAYER

Croarkin Indicted Five Days After Killing of 6-Year-Old in Chicago.

CROWE TO PRESS TRIAL

Chicago, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Five days after he beat 6-year-old Walter Schmith to death with a backsmith's hammer in the loft of a riding club, Harold Joseph Croarkin, 26, was indicted today for murder. Since his surrender Sunday, Croarkin, the son of a wealthy family, had been held in strict seclusion without a formal charge, but today he was placed in the county jail.

Five witnesses, including the father of the dead boy, and Dr. Jacob Goodman, coroner's physician, appeared before the grand jury. The coroner's physician testified that the lad had not been mistreated, and that testimony was accepted as bearing out Croarkin's confession that he slew the child in fear that little Walter would tell his parents that Croarkin had tried to force him to commit an improper act.

Croarkin was identified today by six little girls as having made improper advances toward them within two months. Croarkin has confessed that he mistreated three little girls and five boys, but he denied that any of the half dozen tots who confronted him today were among his victims.

The date for Croarkin's trial will be set tomorrow. Robert E. Crowe, State's attorney, announced that he personally would lead the prosecution, with a demand for the death penalty.

Mr. Crowe, as chief justice of the criminal courts, sentenced to death Thomas Fitzgerald, an aged eccentric, who criminally attacked and slew 8-year-old Janet Wilkinson, the only death sentence upon a plea of guilty in Cook county in 30 years, and personally led the prosecution of Nathan F. Leopold, jr., and Richard Loeb, who pleaded guilty as the slayers of Bobby Franks. They are serving life sentences in the State penitentiary.

Defense lawyers talked to Croarkin after he had been taken to the county jail, the first opportunity they had to do so since he surrendered Sunday. A plea of not guilty will be entered when he is arraigned, probably tomorrow, and a jury trial will be asked, they said. Before the jury, expert testimony will be offered in an effort to show that Croarkin is subnormal and Croarkin is expected to repudiate that part of his confession in which he acknowledged degeneracy. He told his lawyers that he confessed degeneracy after he had been questioned for more than fifteen hours and in order to get some rest.

"Missing-Link" Skull Held Elephant Bone

Amsterdam, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—The "missing-link" skull, which was reported to have been discovered in Trinil, Java, in September by the Dutch professor Dr. C. J. E. Heberlein, may not be a skull after all.

Prof. Eugene Dubois, who in 1892 unearthed part of an ape-man's skull in the Trinil region, writes to the papers that recently received photographs of Prof. Heberlein's find lead him to believe that part of a leg bone of a stegodon, a prehistoric species of elephant, has been mistaken for a skull. Remains of these animals, he says, are often found in Java.

Rich Dignitaries Crowded Holy Family From Inn

Modern Travelers Inconvenienced by Custom of Centuries That Gives Grandees Right to Exclude All Others From Hotels In Near East.

By WILLIAM T. ELLIS.
Author of "Bible Lands Today; A Traveler's Experience."

Tragedy and pathos touch the tale of Christmas in the luminous words, "For there was no room in the inn." That phrase strikes the strings of the dramatic on the harp of the human heart. That the parents of the world's Saviour should be denied lodging in the caravansary of Bethlehem seems to affront the ordinary sense of fitness of things. Ten thousand sermons and stories have been pivoted on this phrase.

Why was there "no room in the inn?" Is there anything in the continuing usages of Bible lands that explains the plight of the two anxious visitors to Bethlehem from Nazareth? And what is the significance of the refuge in the stable?

Some characteristics are true of the whole Orient. I first approached the East, more than twenty years ago, by way of Japan; and I well remember how I revolted at the still prevalent usage whereby a "daymio" or other grandee could oust all the guests of an inn, so that his nobility could occupy it alone. In 1910, at a town in Palestine, my companion and myself were denied lodging in the one hotel because a German prince was expected, and had commandeered the whole establishment. The proprietor wrung his hands as he told us the bad news.

That is the way of the undemocratic East. On Christmas night some years ago when I was traveling in upper Mesopotamia over the route of the Wise Men I came to the town of Sevrek, which had a good khan, or inn room. Because I bore letters from the Sublime Porte the khanji was all for throwing out the occupants of the room, that I might occupy it, which summary action, of course, my American sense of fairness would not permit. The innkeeper would only have been following the custom which obtained in Bethlehem when the travel-stained, poorly clad carpenter from Nazareth, grave Joseph, applied for lodgings for himself and for his young wife with drawn face.

We have enough facts in the Gospel to enable us to reconstruct the scene in the Bethlehem inn. The census congestion was on. The best rooms in that inn had been requisitioned by Roman officers. Rich merchants had the rest, with perhaps a religious dignitary or two lodging in the innkeeper's own quarters. A poor man simply had no chance. All the private lodgings were taken by relatives, gathered for the census, and it may have been that urgent need for immediate shelter for Mary, her hour upon her, did not permit Joseph to make a thorough search of the town. Nothing is more explicable than why "there was no room in the inn" for a wayfaring workingman.

* * * *

Turned from the door of the Bethlehem khan, with many sincerely regretful expressions on the part of the innkeeper, what should Joseph do? I think the explanation of what followed is the simple, natural one. The drivers, loitering about the door of the inn, as is customary, heard the colloquy. They saw Joseph was of the laboring class, like themselves. Perhaps, also, they perceived the plight of Mary.

With the universal friendliness and fraternity of the poor, they provided help. At the turning of a rich man from the overcrowded khan, they would have laughed, but here was one of their kind in distress. They themselves lodged with their horses and donkeys in the spacious and warm cave stable at the back of the guest rooms. So they offered to share their quarters with the worried stranger from the north, and his girl wife and the donkey on which she rode.

There was nothing extraordinary about lodging in the stable. The Orient lives very close to its animals. There has not been a night, for thousands of years, wherein uncounted myraids of Orientals have not slept in the same room with their beasts. Occidental art has overstressed the hardships of the stable. Multitudes of babies have had mangers for their first cradles. So there was no feeling of abnegation in Joseph's heart when he accepted the hospitality of the friendly drivers, who quickly made a secluded corner in the room for Mary—and, I doubt not, summoned the innkeeper's wife to minister to her.

* * * *

Nearly all of the animals of the Orient are crowded into Nativity pictures by the ancient artists, who were unfamiliar with the customs of the Holy Land. Dogs and sheep and camels and cows are common background for Christmas art. Whereas it is the usage of the East to stable only the donkeys and the horses, the other animals are not kept indoors. Especially is the dog not a household pet: "Without are dogs" is a Bible passage that is literally true. In all probability, the dumb companions of the birth were only the horses and donkeys of the guests of the inn.

Thus it came to pass that the Babe was born as a guest of lowly toilers, in friendly nearness to man's best dumb servants. His first friends were the commonest workingmen of Bethlehem, the horse-tenders and the shepherds.

As Henry Van Dyke sang:

"This is the Gospel of Labor;
Ring it, ye bells of the kirk:
The Lord of Love,
Came down from above,

King George to Give Gems for Christmas

Sandringham, England, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—King George's Christmas gifts to the members of the family are to be chiefly articles of jewelry, but just what he is to give the queen, and vice versa, remains by tradition a secret. The queen's remembrance to the Prince of Wales includes cuff links of enameled racquets, commemorating his recent splendid play in the army squash racquets championships.

An Oriental touch will be given to the royal Christmas this year owing to the arrival of Prince George, the youngest son, from the Far East. The gifts will be distributed at the royal breakfast table.

Most fathers will feel a lot more like Santa Claus after they have looked through the Christmas Gift Suggestions under Holiday Hints in The Washington Post.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup
Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found how to save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for results. It gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, known the world over for its healing effect on membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Cunningham RADIO TUBES

For Extreme Economy, Efficiency, Convenience in dry cell operation

CX-220 in combination with C-299 or CX-299 is the ideal Cunningham equipment for dry battery operated sets.

CX-220 is a power amplifier and when used in the last audio stage to feed the loud speaker will bring your set up-to-the-minute. Tone quality then will be more then a term to you—it will be a definite factor in reception.

CX-299 and C-299, identical except for their bases, are general purpose types, extremely capable as radio frequency and preliminary audio frequency amplifiers, and as detectors. If your set is a late model, CX-299—with the standard CX base—will fit it. C-299 is for the older type of bayonet lock socket.

Consult your radio dealer. He will tell you the right combination of Cunningham Radio Tubes for your receiver.

Mr. Work's Pointer On Auction Bridge

(Milton C. Work, the international authority, will answer your auction bridge questions. A stamped, self-addressed envelope must accompany each request for replies.)

THE point for today is:

Declarer should finesse to catch a Queen whenever he has less than nine cards of the suit in his two hands; with nine or more, he should not finesse.

This pointer, like that of yesterday, must be qualified when conditions resulting from the bidding or the previous play indicate that the finesse should be made or refused. It does not pay to follow a hunch; the thing to do is to follow the mathematical chances. With Ace-King-Jack in one hand, or with Ace-King in one hand and Jack-10 in the other, or with one of the two top honors in one hand and the other top honor and the jack in the other, the finesse should be tried when the total holding of the suit in the two hands is less than nine; but with a total of nine, the Ace and King should be led, with the hope that the adverse Queen either will be alone or but singly guarded.

The double tenace—Ace-Queen-10—presents another special problem, the question being whether to play the Queen or the Ten on the first trick. Again the answer is determined mathematically. If Declarer's two hands contain a total of eight cards or fewer, the double finesse (i. e., playing the Ten) should be taken; but with a total of nine or ten cards, the single finesse (i. e., playing the Queen) should be selected. It goes without saying that the lead should be toward the hand containing the double tenace, and that the play should be suitably varied if the Second Hand play an honor.

The following table summarizes correct finessing by the Declarer.

Total Cards of Suit Holding in Declarer's two Hands	Play
Ace-Queen 11	Ace
Ace-Queen 10 or less	Queen
Ace-King-Jack 9 or more	King
Ace-King-Jack 8 or less	Jack
Ace-Queen-Ten 9 or 10	Queen
Ace-Queen-Ten 8 or less	Ten

Conduct and Common Sense

By ANNE SINGLETON

DOES A GIRL TAKE A MAN'S ARM?

THE custom of taking a man's arm is rather out of date in cosmopolitan places. When we see a woman hanging on the arm of her husband or her fiance or her best young man (who is about to become one and the other) we know she comes from a smaller town or from the country. Not that there's one bit of harm in following a country fashion in a great metropolis, but that the person doing it should be in a position to know that metropolitan people usually don't do what she is doing. Then she can go on if she pleases. She is at least informed. And, after all, she has a right to do as she likes.

A great many customs which came from a feeling on the woman's part that she was more attractive when clinging and helpless, and on the man's that he was more manly for being clung to, have been discarded, and this is one of them. Unless you have to lean real weight on a man's arm because you require the support, you are better off walking beside him. It leaves you both freer, and more comfortable for being free.

In all the social relations between young men and women of the "special world" this mutual freedom is apparent. They are much more comradely than young men and women of the "general world." I often notice that the give-and-take between them is almost as if they were all boys—nice boys—together. Whereas in the general world the more a girl can make her "feller" wait upon her, spend money for her and inconvenience himself in a thousand ways for her showing-off, the better. Girls in that large circle value their conquests by the amount of trouble and expense they can put them to. Like many customs which had their rise in the spoiled-beauty days of feminine fashion, this has spread to the outside world. The center of smartness dropped it long ago, as it drops many fancies and manners picked up by the public and made popular. Women demand civility and chivalry still, but not at the expense of common sense. This is wandering a long way from arm-taking, where it started. But its theme is that to encumber is no longer to enchant.

Clean Water Aids Plant Life

DEAR JIMMY: For a thing so lacking in visible substance, clean water has an astonishing ability to maintain plant life. Maybe you've thought of its horticultural usefulness as being restricted to conditions where water is combined with some recognized plant food, and to keep cut flowers fresh for a few days in bowl or vase. I'll wager you never realized that it is quite capable not only of maintaining certain leafage in healthy greenness for months during the winter, but of actually inducing a little new growth to appear. It's a regular liquid Aladdin's lamp in some ways, if you happen to understand what they are.

What I'm thinking about is not the well-known growing of flowering bulbs in water, but rather the winter keeping of sprays and branches of various shrubs and vines. With the bulbs it's a case of stimulating a growing power which is latent in the corns themselves, whereas the cut twigs face the problem of keeping healthy after their energy has already been put forth.

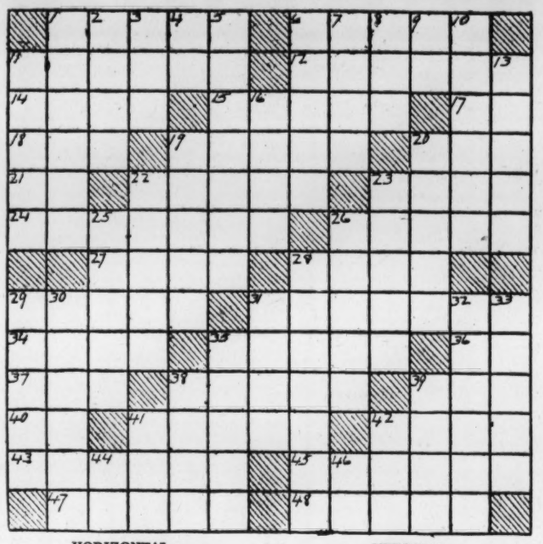

There are several different kinds of plants that are worth experimenting with along these lines, Jimmy, but I'd especially recommend two as being at once easy to obtain, successful to keep, and really delightful when arranged in appropriate vases, jars or bowls. One is laurel and the other is Christmas greens, or club moss, as the botanists call this lovely little ground-creeping evergreen vine. Twigs of the former and short sprays of the latter will keep fresh and green from now until spring if you supply them with fresh water.

There's just one thing that makes me hesitate a little in mentioning these two plants in such a connection, and that is the fact that in many localities they have already suffered so heavily at the hands of a thoughtless public that they have been virtually exterminated. I know they're still abundant in the woods around your neighborhood, but if they were not I'd urge you to gather the few pieces you need from some dealer who grows them for the market, or else not gather them at all! You and Peg will agree with me in this, I know, for you're both conservationists at heart. Yours always,

GARDNER.

The Black Satin Dress

© VOGUE 8774

THERESA writes us that she is 40 years old, but fortunately quite slender. She wants a black satin dress that she can wear now as well as in the spring—one that she can make herself, though she is not an expert seamstress. So we have sketched the dress—spread out, at the right—and worn by Theresa herself, at the left, in her new "Champion" hat, with its black crown and red brim, to add a touch of audacity.

Directions for making the dress are as follows: Place seven rows of running stitches at the left side below the slash, leaving the ends of the thread loose enough and long enough not to come out. Then draw the top thread in to fit the length of the slash and stitch across.

Next, stitch the shoulder and underarm seams, open and press. The neckline may be finished on the inside with a bias fold of the fabric or with bias binding bought at the notion counter.

Stitch the sleeve seam open, and press; then stitch the sleeve into the armhole and overcast the seams together. Try on and adjust the side fullness—drawing all the threads at one time if possible. A lining may be put inside to hold the blouse in place, if your figure requires it. The trimming ends, placed at one side, may be picoted all around, then shirred in a few rows through the center and joined to the frock.

WIVES OF TOMORROW

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Not As Advertised.

DEAR Miss McDonald: Being a disgusted wife, I could not resist answering that article of Wednesday, and telling this young man my opinion of married life—Listen, young fellow, I have gone through the warpath of marriage, and do you want to know what I think of married life? Well, it is a lot of bunk. There is no such thing as love, girls; don't let any fellow try to feed you such taffy. Oh, my! Before you are married you are wonderful. You're the only one in this wide, wide world. But wait, after you are married to him you are the worst woman in this whole world. He only wants you for a slave. He goes out every night. He has clubs for excuses, but that, too, is all bunk. But just let the woman suggest going out one night. O my, that would be terrible. Right away he says the woman's place is at home. And there the poor woman stays. Listen, young lad, would you kindly tell me where a woman has any privileges at all. Who has the worst end of married life? A woman, of course, who has the pain of children. To my opinion marriage is a lottery. A woman these days might as well stay single, because 99 per cent have to continue working after marriage. Girls, it is much better and easier to support yourself than to support a man and a half dozen children. A man thinks a woman is made of iron; she can work hard all day, come in and cook, wash and clean—work, work. A woman's work is never done. There are a few men that consider the woman human, but very few. They are about all alike. If a woman says one word the man says, if you don't like it get out. Listen—I am afraid of marriage and I don't care who knows it. While the woman is home drudging, her dear old beloved husband is out enjoying himself. What I know about married life would fill a book, so I will stop this time, hoping to see this in print. Thanking you kindly,

"TWENTY-SEVEN."

Dear Miss McDonald: Five years ago I married a girl who said she loved me. She now wants to leave me if I do not give her a fine coat this Christmas. The one she wants costs $450. I have just that sum in the bank—and not one dollar more. Is she acting as a wife, or even as a decent woman, in taking such a stand and putting such a price on herself and her love? Did she ever love me. Should I be glad to get rid of her? Should I buy her the darned coat? We don't save over $200 a year as it is, for she buys everything she sees. What should I do?

"BOOB."

What should he do? Of course I think he should let the lady go or stay as she selects—but what do the men think of a he-man would do in a case like this?

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

KEEP YOUR FEET WARM.

A CORRESPONDENT writes that when he was a child his grandfather gave him a health code, one article of which was "Keep your feet warm." Probably this meant that a person should not expose himself to severe chilling, such as is reputed to result in pneumonia. It may have meant that a person should keep his feet warm as he sits in his library, or as she sews in her bedroom. Whether cold feet in that sense has any relation to long life and freedom from disease may be questioned, but it has a lot of relation to comfort and efficiency.

The relatively few physicians who know something about personal hygiene have not been afraid to approve of the present styles for women. They are for the various mutations in women's hair which the last ten years has witnessed. However, they were not strong for the "bootie garage phase of the change.

They are very strong for the corsetless figure. Nothing else that woman has done in the last 50 years has been so helpful. Thanks to the abandonment of the liver squeezing corset, women no longer have chlorosis. Perhaps 25 years from now we will find that leaving off corsets has brought woman's tendency to gallstones down to the level of that of the male. Physicians approved the short dress, as compared with the old street sweeper.

But they do not approve of thin socks. Dr. Parkes Weber says that wearing sleazy socks in winter is making the legs of women turn brown and scaly. Maybe it would be wise for the devotees of thin socks to inspect their ankles for evidence that they are turning to Mesopotamian type.

There are some simple procedures by which the discomfort of cold feet may be overcome or at least lessened. If fashion decrees thin socks and a woman does not feel like disobeying, there is no reason why heavier stockings can not be worn under the thin ones. Probably colors and textures can be found which will not show the thicker stockings underneath. But if the thicker ones do show, what of it? They will look better than the assortment of hairs, varicose veins, adhesive plaster, bandages, and minor wounds which are so much in evidence under the present dispensation. I can not think of anything more disillusionary to the male of the species than is the frequent suggestion of the hairy ape which he sees in his travels unless it be the footprints of varicose veins.

Stockings that fit too snug, or that are tied up by round-the-leg garters, are likely to cause cold feet.

Loose shoes are warmer than tight ones. Rubbers and other means of making the shoes waterproof tend to prevent cold feet.

While some floors are warmer than others, there are no warm floors. Cold floors are more of a factor than thin socks in causing cold feet. Footstools for workers who sit, and small platforms for those who work standing will promote the comfort of workers, increase efficiency and stimulate production.

TEETH IN PREGNANCY.

Mrs F. writes: 1. Will you please give me all the information you can on the care of the teeth during pregnancy? I am in mortal fear of losing my teeth or of having them decay, at lease.

2. Is it possible for a woman to keep her teeth intact and still bear three or four children?

REPLY.

1. Have your teeth cleaned and polished. Have all cavities filled. Brush your teeth and wash your mouth periodically. Eat milk, green vegetables and other foods rich in lime.

2. It is. She must recognize the fact that pregnancy endangers the teeth and guide herself accordingly.

Why desecrate the soul

Why not, though strong or weak,

Why turn your back upon
All that is fine and true?
Why waste your life as one
That sees no struggle through?
Why join with them who choose
The certain way to lose?

Boy, take the sterner way!
Aim high and strike for fame!
Lose if you must today
In honor, not in shame.
Don't choose the ways of sin
Where there's no hope to win.

EMPHASIZING your good points is as important as causing the eye to believe your bad points do not exist. And, this season, the woman with a lovely back can have a decolletage as low as she wishes, secure in the knowledge that the mode applauds.

The dress in the sketch is of cream lace with a deep oval decolletage and a large cluster of nasturtiums placed on the shoulder at the back. Her slippers are of cream satin with rhinestone straps, and, if she has reddish hair, she will be as dazzling as she could possibly wish.

LIQUID NAIL POLISH.

THERE seems to be some doubt in the minds of a great many women as to whether liquid nail polish is in any way harmful or, at least, not so good for the nails as the powder or paste polish.

In my own mind, there is considerable doubt as to whether most women know how to apply this liquid form correctly. I should judge not, from many of the hands that I notice. And this is really too bad, for liquid polish is not harmful and, properly used, is a great convenience. Naturally, it will last longer than other sorts of polish, since it is waterproof.

The nails are horny in substance and do not absorb any of the tint or enamel that is put on them. Therefore they are not only not injured, but they are actually given a protective coating when liquid polish is used. The rare case when it seems not to agree with the nails is the exception to the general rule.

This preparation, however, must be of excellent quality. It should be thin, not gummy or sticky and it should go on smoothly and dry quickly. There are some polishes that simultaneously give the nails a rosy color and a gloss, but the separate tint and polish plan is apt to be rather more successful. The remover is generally a separate preparation, too. Always make sure that the nails are perfectly clean and free from traces of old polish before applying a new coat. Not only should you use the remover generously, rubbing it on the nails with clean absorbent cotton, but you should soak the fingers a few moments in warm soapy water afterward. Then dry the nails carefully; paint the tint on evenly, leaving the "half-moon" and the tip of each nail white; let the tint dry; paint the polish on, also quickly and evenly, and let that dry. For a high gloss, apply a second coating of the polish.

I believe that most of the dissatisfaction that arises from the unsuccessful use of liquid polishes may be explained by the fact that the polish is not skillfully applied. Some people can not acquire the knack, it seems, and for them the professional manicurist—or the house manicure with the paste and powder process—is the solution. But most of us can learn, with a little practice, how to put the liquid enamel on correctly. Have just the right amount on the brush, then cover the small nails with one and the larger nails with two deft strokes. See that the whole of the nail is covered, but not any of the surrounding cuticle or skin. If you put on two coatings, make sure that the first is thoroughly dry before the next is added. If by accident you should touch the nail before it is quite dry, don't try to patch the enamel; instead, apply the remover and start afresh.

CASCADES MAY HAVE BIG NATIONAL PARK

Planned in Connection With Huge Power Project on Ruby Creek.

Seattle, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—A national park rivaling Yellowstone and Yosemite parks in beauty, is planned by J. D. Ross, Seattle electrical superintendent, in conjunction with a $75,000,000 power project now under construction in the Cascades, 100 miles from here.

A 365-foot dam on Ruby creek will form a lake reaching 4 miles to another dam, 520 feet high. The higher dam will create another lake extending northward into Canada. The lakes will be utilized for an inland tourist route, winding through a rugged section blanketed with vari-colored vegetation and timber.

Elevators will hoist passengers from one lake to another. Fishing, boating, swimming and camping will be available. The power plants will be beautified by landscaped gardens and parks.

Porcupine and Magpie Ruin Wyoming Crops

Cheyenne, Wyo., Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—The porcupine and the magpie have been playing havoc in Wyoming.

The winter food of porcupines is largely the bark and cambium layers of trees. The trees often are girdled, and Albert M. Day, State leader of rodent control, says dead trees are evidence of the damage in all the forests. On a ranch in Campbell county the porcupines have damaged the timber and killed nearly all of the native wild fruits. Poison is placed in their dens.

The magpie not only robs the nests of other birds and kills young chickens and turkeys, but pecks holes in the hides of cattle and sheep.

Man Is Turned Blue By Nervous Shock

Paris, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—The case of a man literally "scared blue" is absorbing the attention of the Paris medical world. Following a shock the man, who is of a nervous temperament, turned blue all over.

He is being studied by leading dermatologists and psychologists. There appears to be no hope of restoring him to his normal hue.

Franz Molnar's Wife Promising Actress

Berlin, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Lily Darvas, 22-year-old actress wife of Franz Molnar, Hungarian playwright, was discovered three years ago in Budapest, playing in Molnar's "The Glass Slipper." Max Reinhardt induced her to leave her native Hungary and come to the German stage.

Miss Darvas could speak little German, but within a year she mastered the language and pronunciation so thoroughly that even scholars believed her German born. She now is playing in Reinhardt's German version of "Rain" in Vienna and will come to Berlin later in the season. She is regarded as one of the most promising actresses on the German speaking stage.

Housework Favored As Cure for "Nerves"

London, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Take a hammer and drive nails, or grab a scrubbing brush and clean up the floor, or do any of the other thousand and one duties about a house and the matter of "nerves" will become something of the past, was the advice handed out by Dame Mary Scharlieb to a crowded house of women at the Institute of Hygiene.

"Household work is one of the greatest cures that women may take for 'nerves,'" continued Dr. Scharlieb, who is dean of the British medical women and has been practising here more than 50 years. "Neurotic girls and women can get the greatest advantage from work; work of any kind. The woman who stays at home is able to occupy herself in a variety of domestic tasks which are beneficial to mind and body alike."

Many Titled Women Are Deer Stalkers

London, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Deer stalking has brought out more women for this arduous sport than in the days of lonely Queen Elizabeth, who encouraged princesses and duchesses to engage in the chase as an aid in keeping themselves fit.

The famous women participating in the sport these days include the Duchess of Sutherland, Lady Warrender, Eleanor Lady Torrington, and Mrs. Francis Curzon, sister-in-law of the late Lord Curzon. Mrs. Curzon recently succeeded in bringing down three stags in a day, one of them a ten-pointer. Lord Turner's only daughter, Avril, has grassed her first stag at the early age of thirtene, which is considered a unique record in stalking circles.

RESCUE OF MINERS EXPENSIVE PROCESS

Saving of Five Men in Lehigh Valley Workings Put at $100,000 or More.

Hazelton, Pa., Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Mine disasters unite all available resources, human and mechanical, in the work of rescue.

Unofficial estimates place the cost of rescuing five men, entombed for eight days in a mine of the Lehigh Valley Coal Co., in excess of $100,000. Close ties bind the residents of the little mining villages in the Pennsylvania mountains, so when news came to the village of Tomhicken that a creek had broken through its banks and flooded a mine there was an immediate response to the call for relief workers, and the general manager of the mine labored by the side of his men.

MODISH MITZI

Mitzi Does This Every Year

By Jay V. Jay

Mitzi was in a hurry to do her last minute shopping, but not in such a hurry that she forgot to wear her new little crushable hat of velvet to match her velvet fur-trimmed coat. The bag hanging up is of white calfskin and grey suede.

Mitzi holds in her hand a petticoat bag of black and grey suede with a gold edge. Just below it is a shoulder flower beaded with rhinestones. Next to that is a new perfume with a tassel that spreads all over the bottle.

A tight necklace of pendant amethysts, a long string of pearls, a bracelet of real onyx, crystal and gold would be welcomed by almost anyone. The initialled gloves are just from Paris and are hand-worked in colors.

This season when frocks nearly all use belts there are many fashionable varieties. The very wide leather one is no smarter than the one to the right of belting ribbon or the other, to the left, with links of gold and galalith.

Loading of revenue freight for the week ended December 11 totaled 998,715 cars, the American Railway association announced yesterday. This was a decrease of 9,981 cars under the corresponding week last year but 41,291 over the same week in 1924. Due to the seasonal decline the total for the week of December 11 was a decrease of 59,436 cars under the previous week this year.

All districts except the Eastern, Allegheny and Pocahontas showed decreases in the total loading of all commodities compared with the corresponding week in 1925, but all except the Northwestern and central Western showed increases over the same week two years ago.

Loading of revenue freight from January to December 11 reached 51,586,479 cars as against 49,553,353 during the corresponding weeks last year.

EXPRESS WAGE FRAUD CHARGED AT HEARING

Substitution of Regular Workers at High Pay for Casuals Is Alleged.

New York, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—When an investigation of express company wages was being made, higher paid employes were substituted for "casual" employes, the board of arbitration hearing the application of employes of the American Railway Express Co. for a wage increase was told today. The employes ask an increase of 12 cents an hour.

C. H. Brown, chairman of the general board of the Brotherhood of Railroad Clerks in Chicago vigorously attacked the hiring of casual workers, particularly in Chicago. He charged that while a government check was being made some time ago 200 "casuals," working at the lower wage scale, were discharged and their places filled by men who were given regular places. When the check had been completetd, however, the "regulars" were discharged and the "casuals" were again hired to fill their jobs, the company thus retaining the low wage scale. The witness added that it was difficult for the express men "to make both ends meet" under the present scale of wages.

Directors of the New Mont Mining Corporation declared a stock dividend of 5 per cent, and the regular quarterly of 60 cents, both payable January 17.

Westmoreland Coal Co. declared an extra dividend of 50 cents, and the regular quarterly of $1, both payable January 3.

Central Union Trust Co. authorized an extra dividend of $4, and the regular quarterly of 7 per cent, bringing total disbursements for the year to $32, against $30 in 1925.

BRIBE INQUIRY RECORD HELD BY ATTORNEY

Lawyer Will Refuse to Submit Transcript of Testimony in Gould Case.

Fredericton, N. J., Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Peter J. Hughes, of Fredericton, sole survivor of four attorneys engaged in the investigation in 1911 of the payment of an alleged bribe of $100,000 by Arthur R. Gould, senator elect from Maine, to J. K. Flemming in connection with negotiations for the Saint John Valley Railroad, has in his possession a transcript of the testimony at the investigation but will not turn it over to Senator Thomas Walsh, of Montana, he said today.

Hughes said he received a telegram from Senator Walsh asking if it were true that he had a copy of the testimony and if he would send it to Washington. Hughes said he replied that he had the transcript, but would not surrender it. There is no legal manner in which Hughes can be compelled to turn over the transcript, attorneys said.

Leading Actresses Wear U. S. Gowns

(By the Associated Press.)

The spotlight falling on the leading women in ten outstanding plays on Broadway this season reveals the fact that New York has "out-designed" Paris in contributing new notes to the feminine wardrobe. In only two productions has Paris had a part in costume designing.

And since it is always easier to go to the theater than to Paris, American women, who attend the theater, according to Broadway's best dressed actresses, may take their fashion tips this year from the stage.

Coolidge Disapproves Columbia Debt Plan

(By the Associated Press.)

The statement given out by the faculty of political science of Columbia university regarding war debt revision is not helpful to the present situation, in the opinion of President Coolidge. The Columbia report has not been the subject of any particular attention here.

The White House spokesman said in reply to a question on the subject yesterday that the settlements had been worked out so as to combine as far as possible the interests of the United States and of the European countries concerned.

Señor Don Simón I. Patiño, President of the Company, has summarized his letter describing the properties and history of the Company as follows:

Organization and Property: "Patiño Mines & Enterprises Consolidated (Incorporated) was organized on July 5, 1924, for the purpose of acquiring the Uncia and Llallagua groups of tin mines located in Bolivia. In addition, the Company has purchased the Machacamarca-Uncia Railway, connecting its plants with the main line of the Antofagasta & Bolivia Railway, fifty-seven miles distant.

Earnings and Production: Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co. advise that the earnings of Patiño Mines & Enterprises Consolidated (Incorporated), before charging depreciation and depletion, as shown by the accounts audited in Bolivia by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse, Faller & Co., but charging additional Bolivian profits taxes paid, to the years to which they were applicable, were as below. The production of tin, as shown by the Company's records, is also given.

Nine months ended December 31, 1924	10,284	$5,309,277*	$3.84
Year ended December 31, 1925	10,039	7,016,222	5.08

*At $4.42 per £1 and  at $4.83 per £1, the average rates for the respective years.

These figures are based on the Company's method of valuing the inventory of concentrates on hand at the end of each fiscal period at the estimated net selling price.

For the ten months ended October 31, 1926, production as reported by the Treasurer of the Company was 8,733 long tons and earnings as shown by the Company's books were $5,271,885 (at $4.86 per £1).

The estimated visible ore, which included only 'positive' and 'probable' bodies, as given in the report of Messrs. Yeatman & Berry, Consulting Mining Engineers, of New York, completed early in 1926, amounted to a total of 1,061,000 tons before sorting, having a total tin content of 50,289 long tons.

The General Manager has reported to the Company that there is every reason to believe that the fine tin contents of new ore reserves developed during 1926 will be equal to the total tonnage of fine tin extracted from the mines during 1926.

Distributions on Shares: For the nine months ended December 31, 1924, the Company made distributions on the stock aggregating $3,219,481, equal to $2.33 per share of stock now outstanding. For the year ended December 31, 1925, the Company paid $4,355,469, equal to $3.15 per share; and for the first ten months of the current year $3,015,161, or $2.18 per share. Conversions from Pounds Sterling have been made at the rate prevailing on the day on which the distributions were paid. These payments have been referred to as distributions, rather than as dividends, as, this being a mining company, they must be regarded partly as a return of capital and partly as dividends out of profits on the capital invested, depending upon the life of the mines."

ENGINEERS' REPORT: A thorough and exhaustive examination of the properties of Patiño Mines & Enterprises Consolidated (Incorporated) was completed by Messrs. Yeatman & Berry, Consulting Mining Engineers, of New York, early in 1926. In their report they refer to the properties of the Company as "the two greatest tin mines in Bolivia and probably in the world". The examination, which consumed about six months' time, involved the taking and assaying of over 22,000 samples. This report includes a history and description of the properties, past profits and dividends, and an estimate of the visible ore reserves and of the operating profits to be derived therefrom. Copies of this report are on file in the offices of the Bankers and in the offices of the Company, both in New York, and are there available for inspection.

For more detailed information reference is made to circular containing copy of the letter of Señor Don Simón I. Patiño and extracts from the report of Messrs. Yeatman & Berry hereinabove referred to, copies of which circular will be furnished by the Bankers upon request.

Bears Take Control After Brisk Opening of the Stock Market.

CALL FUNDS 5½ PER CENT

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Dec. 21.—Stocks were irregular today in a quiet market. There were a few strong spots, notably among the rails. Many of the industrials, especially most of those which moved forward yesterday, sagged today under profit taking and professional manipulation. Price movements, as a rule, were narrow. On the whole, traders for the decline had the better of the situation and declines for the day greatly exceeded advances.

Trading opened quite briskly, the best buying centering on General Motors, the so-called Van Sweringen rails and several of the industrials, but the enthusiasm soon was spent and traders for the decline took the reins. They were not at all aggressive, however, and the market became apathetic. Traders generally had more to say about holiday plans than about stocks.

In the selling movement Chesapeake & Ohio, Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, Erie, Pere Marquette, Nickel Plate, General Motors, Hudson and about a dozen of the industrials held their ground fairly well and at the close showed gains for the day ranging from a large fraction to 3 points. Net losses in about the same range exceeded the gains by about ten to one.

Demand for shares of the New York Central stopped abruptly when the office of the road's finance committee chairman announced that there was no truth in the published report that the directors had decided to declare a stock dividend of $50,000,000.

Renewed buying of Chesapeake & Ohio and "old" Nickel Plate were accompanied by a report that the Van Sweringens are planning to make a new move in their merger scheme, with C. & O. as a base.

After a slight show of strength in the early trading U. S. Steel became dull and remained so until the close, when it was fractionally below its opening price. Independent steels moved quietly, with a narrow price range.

The usual procedure of selling on the good news was followed in Otis Elevator, which had enjoyed a brisk run-up as directors went into session, but the announcement of the 25 per cent stock dividend, which had been expected, brought considerable profit-taking under which it yielded abruptly.

Wall street was neither surprised nor nervous over the situation in the money market, where call money renewed and ruled at 5½ per cent. But the rank and file evinced a disposition to refrain from making fresh commitments on the long side for the time being. Yet bullish operations were not checked altogether. A few pools, working in the low-priced specialties, seemed willing to go ahead, presumably on the theory that tax selling in that quarter of the list had been pretty thoroughly completed.

Italian lire dropped more than 5 points, and French francs yielded more than 2 points, while sterling was again a shade lower, but otherwise the foreign exchange market was quiet and quotations were about unchanged.

WALL STREET NEWS BRIEFS

New York, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Business on the Pacific coast and over the Southern Pacific system is expected by William Sprule, president of the road, to compare favorably in 1927 with that of the year just closing. He said there were no misgivings regarding the new year. Building operations and movements of automobiles were the only lines of activity showing a definite falling off in the Southern Pacific's territory.

Net income of American Republics Corporation for 1926 is estimated at $2,760,684, equal after 7 per cent preferred dividends, to $10.30 a share on the common, against $2,857,049 or $10.78 a share on the common in 1925.

Detroit dispatches say the Chrsyler Co. in Canada has leased the Windsor plant owned by Fisher Body Corporation and will manufacture its own bodies, beginning about February 1.

Shares of the Venezuelan Petroleum Co., listed on the New York Curb Market, have been listed on the Montreal Curb Market where an initial transaction today was at 7½.

Richmond Radiator Co. declared an extra dividend of 25 cents on the preferred with the regular quarterly of 75 cents, both payable January 15 to stock of record December 31.

The 1927 budget of the Denver & Rio Grande Western provides for the purchase of 16,000 tons of rails, which it is understood will be ordered from Colorado Fuel & Iron Co.

The Wabash railroad has called for payment March 1, 1927, at par, $1,500,000 of 6 per cent secured gold notes due March 1, 1930.

Harvey D. Gibson has resigned as president of the Textile Banking Corporation to accept the chairmanship of the board of directors, and John D. Maguire, executive vice president, was elected president of the bank.

Stockholders of Hawaiian Pineapple Co. will vote at the annual meeting in February on a proposed increase in authorized capital to $10,000,000 to provide for a stock dividend of 10 per cent, payable February 28. An extra cash dividend of 20 cents was declared.

Lehigh Valley Coal Co. declared an extra dividend of 25 cents and the regular semiannual of $1.25, payable February 1 to stock of record January 8.

An extra dividend of 10 per cent was declared by the Title Guarantee & Trust Co. with the regular quarterly of 4 per cent. Half of the extra is payable January 3 and the other half March 31.

International Telephone & Telegraph earned $11.79 a share on the common stock after preferred dividends in the first nine months this year, against $5.83 a share in the same period of 1925, with net income of $4,725,761 in contrast to $1,631,119.

An extra dividend of $4 and the regular quarterly of $2 were declared by the Lehigh & Hudson River railway, payable December 31 to stock of record December 21.

Elliott Fisher Co. declared an extra dividend of $3 on the common stock and the regular quarterly of $1.50 and the regular quarterly of 1¾ per cent on the preferred, all payable January 3.

A dividend of 20 per cent in stock was declared by the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Co. and the regular quarterly cash dividend of 32 cents.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Dec. 21 (By the Associated Press).—Wheat prices advanced sharply today with buying much more active than of late and with offerings scarce. Milling demand for cash wheat at a premium over future deliveries counted as a stimulating factor and so, too, did the unexpected bullish showing of the government report regarding production both of winter wheat and spring.

Closing quotations on wheat were strong, 1½c to 3⅝c net higher, corn ¾c to 1½@1⅝c up, oats unchanged to ¼c off and provisions varying from 10c decline to a rise of 20c.

Virtually the tip-top prices for the day prevailed in the wheat market at the finish. December delivery led the advance. Bear forces found themselves at a disadvantage right from the outset, commission house buying soon becoming general as a result of overnight study of the government crop figures. Previous sellers of December especially turned buyers and were obliged to bid the market up, with talk current meanwhile that Minneapolis was aggressively purchasing future deliveries, and that Chicago appeared to be the cheapest market for futures.

Unusual strength in the rye market contributed to the upward swing of wheat values, rye scoring net gains of 3⅞c a bushel today in some cases. German advices were bullish as to rye, was noted, together with a much broad- and some new export business in rye er inquiry. The United States government crop report as to rye was construed as decidedly bullish. On the other hand, new export demand today for North American wheat seemed to be at a standstill for the moment.

Corn and oats rallied on account of the pronounced strength of bread grains. Disappointment of bulls regarding government figures on corn and oats had only a transient effect, particularly as to corn. May and July oats touched a new high price record for the season.

Provisions averaged lower, sympathizing with hog values. Besides, cash trade in provisions was reported slow.

WASHINGTON: WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 22, 1926.

SPEAKER RESIGNED TO PREVENT SCANDAL, IS CHARGE

Colonials Win By Single Point

Delaware Five Beaten by G. W., 29 to 28, in Court Debut.

Victors Hard Pressed to Hold Lead in Rough Game.

GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY'S basketball team is in for a strenuous season if last night's opening game is a sample of the brand of battles to follow. Meeting the University of Delaware five, the Colonials managed to turn in a 29-to-28 victory, but not until the roof of the Colonial gymnasium seemed in danger of swinging down on the excited players and spectators.

From a brilliant struggle in which first one club and then the other went to the front, the game developed in a rout for George Washington and then settled back into a point-for-point exhibition with Delaware barely falling short in a late rally which threatened to annex the victory.

While the Delaware team was forced to accept defeat, it produced the best individual player in the game. He was Barton, a tiny and fast forward, who kept the Colonials guessing through, and accounted for thirteen points, including five field goals.

It was a typical first game of the season in that both games resorted to a long list of substitutes. George Washington used twelve players to ten for the visitors.

Carey, Haun and Allshouse were the Colonials' principal scorers. Motyka, formerly of Devitt Prep, broke into the George Washington line-up at right forward and accounted for a pretty field goal. Wallace, the veteran left guard of the Colonials, was a tower of strength on the defensive but failed to figure in the scoring.

Graham Gets Chance Despite Recent Loss

New York, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—The State athletic commission ruled today that the bantamweight title bout between Charley (Phil) Rosenberg, champion of the class, and "Bushy" Graham, Utica (N. Y.) contender, will be staged in Madison Square Garden January 7, as scheduled, despite Graham's defeat last week by Tony Canzoneri.

The commission took the stand that inasmuch as Graham met Canzoneri at catch weights and as a substitute for "Bud" Taylor, he should not be deprived of his chance to wrest the title from Rosenberg.

PARSON GOLF WINNER.

Pinehurst, N. C., Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Donald Parson, of Youngstown, Ohio, won the finals of the season members' golf tournament here today by defeating Edward D. Scofield, of New York, 2 and 1.

Following Through with Shirley L. Povich

ROGERS HORNSBY has departed from St. Louis, and with him has departed the period of plenty for big league ball players. The Hornsby case is but another of the succession of moves by major league club owners to retrench themselves in the business of conducting high-grade baseball on an economic basis.

The transformation has been gradual and subtle, but pronounced. The ball players once again have been reduced to their former status as the employes of baseball, mere chattels to be sold or traded at the will of the magnates, to be directed and paid like the humblest clerks at the discretion of the club owners.

Since the close of the 1926 season, the magnates, by wholesale discharges of managers and the release of stars, have sounded the demise of the reign of the ball players and the retrogression toward the days when five-figured salaries were a rarity and long-term contracts unknown.

Baseball, luffing along in the selfsame easy manner that marked the game since the organization of the American league in 1900 received its first injection of frenzied finance in 1920 when New York's two colonels, Ruppert and Houston, of the Yankees, proceeded to buy the league pennant by purchasing outright at fancy figures the stars of the Boston Red Sox.

Babe Ruth, Sam Jones, Waite Hoyt, Joe Bush, Herb Pennock, Everett Scott and Wally Schang were involved in the deals that transferred a pennant-winning team in Boston to Father Knickerbocker's children in the Bronx.

Rupert and Houston were the first to pay the high salaries to their ball players. The one objective of a big leaguer was to play for a New York team. Other magnates were forced to meet the competition of the Yankees or the Giants and high salaries soon became general. With them the demands of the ballplayer increased.

Efforts of the club owners to build or buy pennant-winning teams contributed to the frenzy of the finance of the game. Soon the ballplayers were dictating their own terms virtually and usually carried their points. For a span of years New York clubs with their prodigious check books held the upper hand and witnessed three intercity world's series.

First hint of the concerted move of the magnates to put an end to the high salaries of ballplayers came with the resignation of Tris Speaker as manager of the Cleveland Indians. Previously Ty Cobb had resigned as pilot of the Tigers for reasons considered personal and Eddie Collins had been released outright by President Comiskey, of the White Sox. Speaker's departure from the game so close upon the heels of Cobb and Collins carried much significance. Three high salaries were lopped off major league rosters.

Hornsby's case, engineered by President Breadon, of the Cardinals, was the most apparent and open display of the new attitude of the club owners since the close of the 1926 season. Hornsby was made a flat proposition of signing up at $50,000 for one year or be traded. He refused and was traded and the deal proved the most sensational in recent years.

Even the man who led his team to a league pennant and then to the world's series championship was not to flaunt the power of the club owners—not in their present attitude toward high salaries and long-term contracts. Hornsby, firm in the belief that he was too valuable a player to be disposed of was rudely disillusioned. Breadon merely went a step

Hornsby Deal Put Up to Landis

St. Louis Chamber of Commerce Wants Trade Called Off.

Director Calls Action of Breadon "An Insult to Fans."

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Backed by the protest of fans, the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce and Mayor Victor Miller took steps today in an effort to prevent the trade of Manager Rogers Hornsby, of the world's champion St. Louis Cardinals, to the New York Giants, as announced last night by Sam Breadon, Cardinal president.

Breadon and John J. McGraw, Giant manager, insisted, however, that the deal would go through and K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, declared he had no jurisdiction to intervene in the dispute between Breadon and Hornsby.

Hornsby himself, although asserting he had not been treated fairly, conceded Breadon's right to trade him. He said he would consult an attorney and take "whatever steps I consider best to protect my best interests and my $50,000 investment in the Cardinal club."

Hornsby, while "confessing it is one of the hardest blows of my life to part with the fans of St. Louis," sent a letter to Breadon this afternoon taking exception to some of Breadon's published statements.

"If you say I wanted to leave St. Louis, that is untrue," Hornsby wrote. "But to terminate relations with you, that is the truth."

Breadon, who declined to offer Hornsby a contract for more than one year at $50,000 because he feared the three year contract requested by Hornsby might prove a financial burden to the club, declared "flattering fiends" had given Hornsby "too big an opinion of himself." He said the Cardinals were "a good team with Hornsby and they will be a good team without him."

Breadon said he had not decided upon a new manager, although he had several in mind. He would not name the prospects, but said that Branch Rickey, whom Hornsby had succeeded as manager, would not be reappointed.

Comments on the trade were divided in support of Hornsby and Breadon or expressed neutral views in the controversy, but almost universal regret was expressed at Hornsby's departure.

Some of the comments follow:

Mark C. Steinberg, Cardinal director: "The deal is an insult to the fans of St. Louis and to the board of directors of the club."

Harold Bixby, president chamber of commerce: "Is there no way in which the deal can be stopped?"

Victor Miller, mayor: "The most wonderful Christmas present Breadon and Hornsby could offer to St. Louis would be a satisfactory adjustment of their differences."

Stephen M. Wagner, president board of education: "Mr. Breadon was absolutely justified. Hornsby asked too much. You can't ask for more than the boss gets."

George H. Williams, former United States senator and former

Maloney and Delaney Tentatively Matched

New York, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Jim Maloney, Boston heavyweight, tentatively has agreed to meet Jack Delaney, of Bridgeport, Conn., in the light heavyweight champion's next bout here, Promoter Humbert J. Fugazy disclosed tonight.

The fight is contingent on Maloney's defeating Harry Persson, Swedish heavyweight, in their ten-round fight tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden, Fugazy said. Negotiations for an indoor arena as the scene of the match will be closed before January 1, the promoter predicted.

Spokesmen for Fugazy said the latter had been unsuccessful in his attempt to bring together Jack Sharkey, of Boston, and Delaney, who last night stopped Bud Gorman.

BOOKIES HIT BY RUSE AT TIA JUANA

Show Prices Swelled As Wires to Track Are Unavailable.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—Weird betting on the third race at Tia Juana today closely followed by the announcement that all telegraph wires leading into the Lower California race course had been disconnected on order of the Mexican government, threw race track bookmakers in Chicago, New York, Jersey City and other cities into a panic.

When the result of the race had trickled in and the weird betting was followed by still more weird place and show mutuel prices on the horses that finished in the money, Chicago bookmakers discovered they had been hit for more than $50,000. A big commission man in close touch with the betting, not only in Chicago, but in other cities, estimated the coup had netted profits of close to $150,000.

Early in the afternoon, two hours before post time for the race, thousands of dollars in commissions rolled into Chicago to be wagered on three horses in the third race, each horse being played to show.

The horses wagered on were Tin Hat, Sir Lanny and In the Eye. For every thousand that arrived to be wagered on Tin Hat and Sir Lanny there came $2,000 to be wagered on In the Eye to finish as good as third.

Soon after the bets had been placed still more money came out of the West and from the East to be wagered on Somers Heir to place and show in the same race. These wagers were hardly down when announcement came that telegraph service into the Tia Juana track had been discontinued.

That made it impossible for the players in Chicago and other cities loaded up with bets on his race to send their money back to the track to be wagered in the mutuel machines.

While Chicago bookies frantically were trying to lay off their bets in New York and while Detroit and Jersey City bookies were trying just as desperately to get their wagers placed in Chicago, came the flash on the final result of the race.

In the Eye, which had been backed for thousands to show, won the race. In the mutuel bet ring he paid $2.30 for 1 to win. But to show the odds against him were $3.30 to 1.

Tin Hat and Sir Lanny were cut out of the money. The bookmakers won these bets. But Somers Heir, on which there had been a late plunge of place and show money, finished second, and paid 7:30 to 1 to place in the mutuels. To show he was at the still longer price of $9.70 to $1.

Bookmakers who accepted the bets and who won the Tin Hat and Sir Lanny money lost three times as much on In The Eye to show. They lost from seven to nine times as much on Somers Heir to place and show.

Chicago bookmakers tonight were trying to determine who engineered the coup and who won the money. Much of the money wagered in Chicago came from New York, after it had been placed there by persons now at the Tia Juana track, it was learned.

"Lay Off" Signing Cobb, Landis Told McGraw

New York, Dec. 21.—When Ty Cobb was dismissed as manager of the Tigers about a month ago and waivers were asked on him, the Giants and the Robins were prepared to claim him.

John McGraw, manager of the Giants, said today that, preparatory to making the claim, he telephoned Commissioner Landis, in Chicago, to find out whether it would be all right for the Giants to put in a claim for him. According to McGraw, Landis replied:

Hodskin Wins Twice In Cue Tournament

N. B. Hodskin won two matches last night in the handicap pocket-billiard tournament being staged at Elmer's parlors. He defeated C. Wilkan, 100 to 54, and then took on R. Leonard, whom he trounced, 100 to 87.

H. W. Tallman and John Ruppert will meet tonight at pocket-billiards, with A. W. Watts and G. E. Grenfeld crossing cues in the three-cushion event.

Smith Stars as Post Bowling Marks Fall

Two Washington Post bowling league records were broken in yesterday's matches. "Ollie" Smith, anchor man of the Rubys, established a new individual game mark, spilling the maples for a 132 game which beat "Chick" Darnell, of the Picas, a single pin. Smith's fine work led his team to a new game record despite a "dummy" score of 80. The Ruby's total was 532, which succeeds the 507 game rolled by the Picas earlier in the race.

TRIS SPEAKER EMPHATIC IN DENIAL

Calls Himself "Goat;" Asserts Leonard Lied Deliberately.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Tris Speaker, former manager of the Cleveland Indians, in a written statement given out tonight in connection with the baseball scandal charges by Dutch Leonard, former Detroit pitcher, declared that he was "innocent of any wrongdoing" in connection with the game mentioned in charges announced in Chicago by Commissioner K. M. Landis.

Speaker was charged by Leonard with conspiring with Ty Cobb, Wood and Leonard to throw a game September 25, 1919, to Detroit.

Tris characterized himself as the "goat" of the game played seven years ago, and declared that Leonard deliberately falsified any statement he has made that implicates him.

"The testimony on file in the office of Commissioner Landis will vindicate me," Speaker declared. "I am not mentioned in the letter written to "Dutch" Leonard by either Ty Cobb or Joe Wood. I knew nothing of any wagers being made on the contest or of any 'fixing' whatever.

"The only thing they have against me is the word of the man who is behind this flareup, Leonard. I have requested repeatedly that Leonard be brought in to face me but he has positively refused to come into a meeting.

"Leonard has deliberately falsified in any statement that implicates me. I never bet a single penny on that or any other game and was entirely ignorant of any bets being made until June or July of this year.

"It seems strange the powers-that-be of baseball should take the word of a man of Leonard's caliber to the effect that I was implicated when my name does not appear in the case in any other manner, shape or form.

"I had been told when Leonard was waived out of the American league that he made the statement that I was a fine kind of a friend to have and he surely would get me sometime. I must say he took a nice way to make good on his threat. He should have taken into consideration that I was only the manager, not the owner of a ball club, and that I had an obligation to my employer, the late Jame C. Dunn, to protect his interests by not adding a man fore Commissioner Landis, left for Cleveland before the charge of scandal was made public, but Cobb said he understood that Speaker's resignation had been requested by the management of the Cleveland club in view of the Leonard charges.

Ban Johnson, president of the American league, withheld a formal statement pending examination of the evidence, but he did say that "both Cobb and Speaker saw the handwriting on the wall, and decided to pull out." He said he was surprised that the testimony was divulged at present, and that he regarded both Cobb and Speaker as having been "very drastically dealt with."

Commissioner Landis, although giving out the complete testimony of Leonard, discounted its value as evidence because Leonard, who is in California, had repeatedly refused to present the charges at a hearing at which Cobb and Speaker could be present.

He made no ruling, in view of the fact that Cobb, Speaker, Leonard and Wood all are out of baseball, and said that if changed conditions necessitated a decision as to what attitude organized baseball should take in regard to the four, such a decision would be forthcoming.

Leonard has been out of organized baseball since he was waived to the Pacific Coast league in 1925, and refused to report. Wood has been out of the major leagues since he became baseball coach at Yale university several years ago. Cobb and Speaker resigned after the 1926 season. Speaker to enter business and Cobb with the expressed hope of becoming owner of a minor league organization.

In support of his charges, Leonard produced two letters which eventually reached the commissioner. One was from Wood and another from Cobb. Wood's letter accompanied a check for the $1,500 Leonard had put up to make the bet, and his $130 winnings. Written a few days after the 1919 season closed, it explained that the best bet to be gotten was $600 to $420, odds of 10 to 7 on Detroit, and that some of the principal was not staked.

It related that Cobb "did not get up a cent." Cobb's letter, written to Leonard October 23, 1919, from the former's Augusta, Ga., home, said "Wood and myself were disappointed in our business proposition as we had $2,000 to put into it and the other side quoted us $1,400, and when we finally secured that much money it was about 2 o'clock and they refused to deal with us." Cobb told Landis this was a veiled way of giving Leonard the information he had asked him to get from Wood.

Cobb, asserting that he "never bet a cent on an American league baseball game," admitted that his letter to Leonard bore upon a betting proposition, but denied that he had shared in or had known of any plan to "throw" the contest, and called the bet to which he referred a wholly legitimate one of the sort frequently entered into by baseball players. Despite his own habit of refusing to bet on games in his own league, Cobb said it was a frequent custom among players to bet on their own team and that he "sometimes had knowledge of bets like this,

Cleveland Club Has None Of 1919 Players on Roster

Cleveland, Ohio, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Not one of the Indians who took part in the allegedly "fixed" game of September 25, 1919, now is with the Cleveland club, with the exception of Jack McAllister, who sat on the bench.

George Uhle and Charley Jamieson, still Indians, were members of the team them, but did not play. The late Ray Chapman took part in the game the day before, but was replaced by Lunte in the contest of September 25. Chapman was back in the line-up September 26, at Cleveland, having been replaced for one day only.

Leftfielder Jack Graney is engaged in the automobile business in Cleveland; First Baseman Joe Harris is an extra player with the Washington club; Larry Gardner managed Asheville during the last two seasons; Bill Wambsganis, living in Cleveland, recently was sold by the Athletics to Kansas City. Elmer Smith did some great batting for Portland, Oreg., during the last season.

Steve O'Neill, after last season with the Toronto champions in the International league, was signed, two weeks ago, to catch for the St. Louis Browns.

VESPASIAN WINS LAKE CHARLES AT NEW ORLEANS

Daniel Horse Cops Fourth Straight

Flighty, Paying 60-1, Upsets Dope in the Third Race.

Fire Dog, Odds-on Favorite, Accounts for Opening Number.

JEFFERSON PARK, New Orleans, La., Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—W. Daniel's Vespasian, with Jockey Kelsay in the saddle, scored his fourth straight victory when he won the Lake Charles handicap, the feature of the program here today. He carried 122 pounds, conceding weight to his field, and ran the 6 furlongs in the fast time of 1:12 3-5.

Vespasian rushed to the front and was held under restraint. Bulletin attempted to race along with him, but found the pace too hot and dropped back. Vespasian then went on and won, hard held, by a length. Bulletin beat Old Slip a nose for the place.

Frank Kelly, the New York sportsman, put over the winner when Fire Dog, racing in his silks and odds-on favorite, scored in a romp in the opening event. Palatine Lad gained second money and Sieg Margon third.

At the start, Fire Dog almost got in trouble by outbreaking the barrier. He broke running but Johnson, who had the mount, had to take him up, which allowed Sieg Margon to outrun Fire Dog to the stretch. However, in the final furlong, Fire Dog came along and, taking command, won by three lengths. Palatine Lad was second by a length and a half over Sieg Margon.

E. McCowan's Private Seth, a long shot, annexed the purse in the second race, a 9 furlong gallop. He won by a length and a half over Four Sixty, with Nereid third. Four Sixty jumped away to the lead and led to the final sixteenth, when Private Seth came with a rush on outside and won going away.

Garry Winfrey's Flighty sprung a surprise when she galloped off with the purse in the third race, a 6 furlong sprint, paying $122.40 for a $2 ticket. Flightly was neglected in the betting by the public, but why, is a mystery, for her recent races here have been good. The price was all out of proportion.

Flighty was ridden by F. Stevens and was off none too well, but Stevens worked his way up on the outside of field, took the lead in stretch and, increasing her advantage, won by two lengths. Everglade beat Red Heart three lengths for the place.

Grey Face, with Arnold up, won the fourth race, a six-furlong sprint for 2-year-olds, in which twelve competed. Jenny Dear, favorite, was second, with Miss Relvue third. The race was run in a shower and the time of 1:14 2-5 was real good. Coy led the field to the stretch, where she tired, and Grey Face, closing fast, won going away by half a length. Jenny Dear defeated Miss Relvue two lengths for the place.

The favorite players put over another when Payman led his field home in the sixth race by half a length. Star Falcon was second by three lengths over Alard.

The last event was won by Clique, with Commissioner second and Duckweed third.

Auths Meet Celtics at Barracks; Roses Face Collegiates.

TWO games are scheduled for tonight in the Washington Senior basketball league. The Auths will tackle the Boys Club Celtics and the Epiphany Roses will meet the Washington Collegiates in a double-header at the Washington barrackers, starting at 7 o'clock. On the same floor Friday night, the Arrows face the Independents, with the Clovers and Elliotts clashing in the other game.

Another series is booked for next Sunday. The Arrows and Collegiates will square-off in a preliminary to the Anacostia Eagle-Washington Wonder game at Congress Heights at 2 o'clock.

In the Sunday nghit preliminary to the Washington-Brooklyn game, the Park View and Independent fives are due for a battle.

A meeting of the league has been scheduled for tonight at the Times-Herald building, starting at 8 o'clock.

Tonight's game with the Boys Club Celtics will be an important one for the Auths, who have been in action twice without a victory. Bill Sanderson entered his team in the race before it had been sufficiently organized, but the Southwest boys forced both the Kanawhas and Roses to the limit before bowing.

Meeting the Celtics, the Auths are now in their best form. In addition to their two league games, the tossers have practiced faithfully and are confident of victory.

The Epiphany Roses remember the scare given them by the Auths and are not likely to let up a minute on the Collegiates, who have shown in and out form to date. If the Collegiates are on their game, the Roses will have to step.

DETROIT FIVE PUT OUT OF LEAGUE

Games With Washington Canceled—Celtics Here Sunday.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 21.—Because of its poor showing in the present American Professional Basketball league race and its apparent failure to make any effort toward adding the necessary strehgth to put it in a class with the other clubs in the circuit, President Joe Carr tonight announced the disenfranchisement of the Pulaski Post five, which has been representing Detroit.

Membership in the league likely will be held to the eight remaining clubs, although this matter will be discussed at a meeting to be held at Cleveland Thursday, when several applications for the berth will be considered.

As a result of President Carr's action, which takes effect immediately, games in which Detroit is scheduled will be canceled during the remainder of the season.

Detroit's disenfranchisement means that the Palace team which went to the Ford City for games last night and tonight will idle there and then will complete its trip by meeting Chicago in the Windy City Friday and Rochester on the latter's court Christmas night.

Washington's next home game is scheduled for Sunday, when the famous Celtics will be met at the Arcadia. The fact that the New Yorkers have been beaten by both Fort Wayne and Rochester within a three-day period has bolstered up the hopes of the locals. One thousand extra seats will be installed for this game, but fans planning to attend it should not wait as tickets, which have been on sale for over a week, are going fast.

HORNSBY TRADE IRES ST. LOUIS CITIZENS

Cardinal director: "I am not familiar with the real merits of the controversy, but am very sure that Mr. Breadon thinks he has done the best thing for the club."

Phil De C. Ball, president of the St. Louis Brown: "My experience with Mr. Breadon is that he is a clever trader. I do not think he would let sentiment interfere with a business deal that he thought was for the best."

Heine Mueller, former Cardinal, now with Giants: "This is the greatest news I've heard since my mamma told me about Santa Claus."

Landis Says Hornsby Case Beyond His Jurisdiction

Chicago, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Commissioner Landis said today he had no jurisdiction in the dispute between President Sam Breadon, of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Rogers Hornsby, manager of the world's champions.

"It is a situation for Breadon and Hornsby to settle between themselves," the commissioner said, commenting on the telegram from the St. Louis chamber of commerce, which protested Hornsby's trade to the Giants and urged Commissioner Landis to prevent.

Deal Absolute, No Cash Involved, Says McGraw

New York, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Rogers Hornsby will not go back to the Cardinals no matter what happens, John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants, said today. He also denied rumors that cash was involved in the trade that sent Jimmy Ring and Frankie Frisch to the St. Louis team for Hornsby.

"There is no possibility of the Hornsby deal being called off," McGraw told the Associated Press. "The trade is consummated, completed and ended. Hornsby is a Giant and Ring and Frisch are Cardinals. Nothing can change their status. The deal has been confirmed by telegrams exchanged between Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, and myself, with John A. Heydler, president of the National league, agreeing."

McGraw revealed that the details of the trade actually were arranged in New York eight days ago. They were made subject to the outcome of Breadon's final conference with Hornsby on the salary question.

"As for the cash-involved story," McGraw added, "that is the bunk. There was not a cent involved, although it has been said that $100,000 changed hands. I will give $1,000 to any charity any one names if it can be proved that a penny was involved in the deal."

McGraw does not feel that Hornsby, minus his managerial responsibilities, will demand more than $30,000 for 1927, although the latter's split with the Cardinals was due to insisting that he receive a three-year contract at $50,000 a year. The salary issue probably will be threshed out when McGraw and Hornsby get together.

Hornsby probably will captain the Giants next year, McGraw indicated.

"I think the deal should benefit both Hornsby and Frisch," McGraw added. "Neither had a particularly good playing year last season but both are young and have many more good years of baseball left in them."

YOSEMITES BEAT APACHES.

The Yosemite tossers last night defeated the Apaches, 26 to 19. Shaw, former Tech high star, was the winners' big gun, with six scrimmage goals, with J. Ady performing best for the losers.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

BY BERT E. COLLYER

HELP! help! Better chloroform me or I'll tell the whole cockeyed world what's on my mind. Also, and for further edification, I will elucidate it is not that which was bothering Sophie Glutz. None other than the "tip" was broadcasted last evening—from Jeff park to the effect WILD ASTER is the cat's whiskers. The slickers have the stage all set and they do not care a rap if they lose the horse." Personally, I belive this old pelter has been dropped into a soft spot—providing the going turns muddy. If it remains fast, I would not touch him with a 10-foot pole. DRY MOON, LONG POINT and RUNDARK are closely bunched.

Bad band of mavericks named in the opening dash. About the best way to beat this kind of nags is go get yourself a nice long buggy whip.

LAWLESS is well placed in the third, though GREEN BLAZES was the hottest kind of an overnight tip. SABINA is also a safety valve, with MONARCHIST and TALEQUA well up and in the order named. DRUMMER BOY, which went down to defeat last time, is given one more chance. Personally I believe this one a bit better than ordinarily rated. MEDLEY will rule the choice, with HAWK GOD a close-up second choice. The latter may find the going more to his fancy today. SIR PETER, this way rigged, is taken to beat the Bradley pair of BROADWAY JONES and BENEFICENT. On what the Idle Hour pair did the day previous it is only fair to presume that the big master is getting his horses ready at this track to shoot over at the Fair Grounds. BROADWAY JONES is a really first-class racer, but may need one under his belt.

Wow, boy, the fat is in the fire—here comes the devil. None other than BIG SWEEP, and they do tell me Vanz has a whale of a wager riding.

Injury Cancels Mat Feature at Arcadia

An injury suffered by Martin Luedecke in a recent bout in Boston forced him to cancel his match with Charley Hanson, scheduled at the Arcade last night. The program was limited to two amateur bouts, and exhibitions by Charley Hanson with the Havens brothers.

In a match between 125-pounders, Clarence Bruce defeated Ernest Rice in 22 minutes on a reverse and rift lock. Bud Havens defeated his brother Bill, who is South Atlantic champion, in straight falls. The first came in eight minutes on a head and arm lock and the second in six minutes on a reverse body hold.

Amateurs and Pros On Mutual Mat Card

Wrestling fans are promised two treats at the Mutual theater Friday night. The main bout will bring together Bobby Mainfort, who has been cleaning up regularly, and Jack Collins, who has made quite a reputation for himself down Norfolk way.

Preliminary to this, Dutch Green, of the Mohawks, and George Kiatta, of the Waverly Athletic club, will face each other and a "dog-eat-dog" bout is sure to result. These clubs are keen rivals in all sports and are planning to turn out in full force to see their representatives take the mat.

TWO CENTRAL TEAMS ARE VICTORS

High Varsity and Reserves Win From Woodward Fives.

CENTRAL HIGH'S tossers, appearing more like miniature editions of the Washington professional league players with each game, yesterday guarded, passed and shot their way to a 42-14 victory over the Woodward school team, which is likely to stamp Coach Burt Coggins' five as the favorites in the coming championship race.

Woodward has victories to its credit over Business and Tech, and appeared much stronger in bowing to Western than against Central yesterday.

Central made it a double victory when the Blue and White Reserves jumped on the Woodward lightweights, of the prep school league, for a 31-11 triumph.

A cautiously-played first period resultd in Central leading by a 5-3 margin. Those ten minutes were evidently used by the Blue and White as a warming up of its short-passing game, for in the second quarter all hands started popping the ball through the ring and when the half was reached Central was ahead, 26 to 7.

While the Blue and White did not again go on a scoring spree, it retained possession of the ball most of the second half and scored 16 points to 7 for Woodward.

The teams were evenly matched as to the height and weight of the players and neither made a substitution. The superior speed of the Central players in both running and handling the ball was apparent from the start of the game.

All of the Central players figured in scoring, with Forest Burgess and Peter Nee tied for high honors with 10 points each. Hayes and Gilbert, Woodward's forwards, scored two field goals each.

Tom Thacker led the Reserves to their victory over the Lightweights, making six field goals and a foul for a total of 13 points. Yingling and Miller accounted for a trio of baskets each.

The Reserves went to the front at the start of the game and were never headed.

EASTERN HIGH FIVE DEFEATS STRAYER'S, 23 TO 22

O'Brien's Foul Shot Nets Victory

Business College Five Ties Score With Minute to Go.

McAllister Is Leading Point Scorer for Guyon's Team.

THE same spunk that made "Buck" O'Brien, of Eastern High, the best defensive player in the last scholastic football race served to bring Eastern a 23-22 triumph over the Strayer's Business college five yesterday in the Eastern gymnasium.

With the score tied and less than a minute to play, O'Brien was fouled by "Bus" Freed and with victory depending on the success of his free shot, O'Brien tossed the ball through the rim.

O'Brien was playing in place of Capt. Hogarth, who was forced to watch the game because of a sore toe. Strayer's was also without a star player. Joe Croson, the tall center, was the absentee.

The game gave evidence of a nip and tuck battle at the start. Both teams exhibited the "clinging-vine" sort of defense which limited the scoring in the first quarter to 9 points, divided, Eastern, 5; Strayer's, 4.

At the end of the first half, the score was 9-all. Eastern forged ahead at the beginning of the third period and worked its way to a 17-12 lead at the end of the third quarter. Strayer's came back strong, however, and gradually cut down the margin. Coleman tied the score with a fine shot. O'Brien's victory point followed.

Harry McAllister returned to the Eastern line-up and led his team in scoring with 7 points. Ferdinand Cappelli, former Eastern player, showed a liking for his lod gym and sank four liking for his old gym and sank four

Epiphany Rose Five Beats Covenant, 39-22

The Epiphany Rose tossers continued their winning ways last night when they journeyed to the Congress Heights auditorium and took the Church of the Covenant quint into camp by a 39-22 score. The Roses displayed their usual snappy brand of passing and combined this with a defense that held the losers scoreless for the first quarter. At half time the "flower" quint was in the van by an 18-10 score.

Thursday night the Epiphany tossers will play host to the Woodside dribblers in a game scheduled to get underway at 8 p. m.

just as I have known of club owners betting on horse races, or on baseball games."

"I have been in baseball for 22 years," Cobb said, with a quaver in his throat, as he talked of the charges. "I have played the game as hard and square and clean as any man ever did; all I thought of was to win, every year, every month, every day, every hour. My conscience is clear. I will rest my case with the American fans, and will match my record in baseball against that of anybody connected with the game."

Cobb ascribed Leonard's story to pique over his dismissal from the Detroit club in 1925 and to his desire for money.

"Leonard got $20,000 for those two letters, I understand, from American league officials. I think, too, that he tried to sell them to newspapers on the Pacific coast. If Leonard had anything on me, do you think I would have released him in 1925? I always was friendly with him, but I had to let him go for the good of the club. If I had feared anything, or had anything to fear, is it reasonable that I should gain his ill-will by getting waivers on him?"

This explanation of Leonard's action found corroboration in Wood's testimony before Landis. Asked if Leonard had any reason for fabricating such a story if it was not true, Wood testified:

"He had about seven years to frame a story around these two letters, and he was very bitter against Cobb, because he let him go to the Coast league. I guess he was also bitter against Speaker because he didn't claim him and keep him in the league. In order to get at those two fellows he had to bring my letter in and incriminate me, and he had no regard for that. He did not care who he got as long as he reached his end. That is the way it looks to me."

Cobb told the commissioner:

"I believe Leonard was after whatever money he could get out of these letters. I see no possible reason why he could be sore at any other club for waiving on him, because the other clubs knew he was considered a bolshevik."

Cobb went into detail, however, about friction within the club, between Cobb and the pitchers, just before Leonard's release. Leonard refused to work out of turn in the closing days of the pennant race, he said, when Cobb urged him to.

Despite Leonard's charge that the game was "fixed" to assure the Detroit team third place that year, the Tigers finished fourth, half a game behind the third place club. Cleveland finished second. It was in the same year that the Chicago White Sox finished first, lost the world series to Cincinnati and subsequently were the subject of scandal when it was revealed that Cicotte, Felsh, Jackson and others on the team were dismissed from baseball on evidence that they had accepted bribes to throw world series games.

Leonard's story, told to Judge Landis at the former's California home last October 29, after Leonard had repeatedly refused to tell it before Cobb and Speaker at a hearing here, included this essential testimony:

"After the first game between Detroit and Cleveland, September 24, Cobb, Speaker, Wood and I happened to meet under the stand and, of course, the talk was about baseball, and that we (Detroit) wanted to finish third. Speaker said, 'Don't worry about tomorrow's game. We have got second place cinched and you will win tomorrow.' Everybody agreed that if it was going to be a set-up we might as well get some money on it.

"Then we talked about getting the money on the game. Cobb said he would send West down to us. (Fred C. West was a private officer at the ball park, and was acquainted with the bookmakers.) I was to put up $1,500, and as I remember it, Cobb $2,000 and Wood and Speaker $1,000 each. I had pitched the day before and was through for the season, so I gave my check for $1,500 to Wood at the ball park and left that night for Independence, Mo. Several days later I received the Wood letter with a check for $1,630. He wrote that West was only able to get up part of the money and that my share of the winnings was $130.

"During the talk under the stand, about the next day's game, Speaker said he would go in and pitch himself, if necessary. There was not very much talk and we did not stay there very long. There were just the four of us and no other player was in on it.

"When I met Wood the next spring, I said to him: 'What do you think, Cobb wrote me that he did not get any money up on that game.' And Wood said: 'He told me the same thing.'"

Failing to get Leonard to come to Chicago to a hearing, Landis had gone to California to see him, but after his return he again failed to get Leonard to appear here.

"The reason," Commissioner Landis noted in the record, "was that 'they bump off people once in a while around there.'" Leonard also had told Landis his business required his presence in California.

Finally, Landis called the hearing without having Leonard present, and yesterday met Cobb, Speaker, Wood and West in his office here.

Cobb admitted that he wrote the letter which Leonard had produced. It was in response, he said, to a request by Leonard that he ascertain from Joe Wood the amount of money wagered on the game.

"Leonard was leaving the club, with the season about over," Cobb testified, "and wanted to find out as quickly after the game of September 25, 1919, as possible from Wood the amount that was paid."

"When did you hear," Landis asked, "that a bet was to be put on the game?"

"Leonard came to me and wanted to know who would be a man they could trust. I pointed out West."

"What did you understand Leonard to mean?"

"I figured that he wanted to bet on the ball game."

"Had you had any conversation with him before about betting on ball games?"

"No, sir."

Cobb said it was his impression that Leonard wanted to bet on that day's game, instead of the game on the next day.

"Did you have any conversation with Wood about this bet?"

"Not until I asked him about the amount of money that was bet."

"Did you have any conversation with Speaker about the game?"

"None whatever."

"Did you bet on the game?"

"Positively did not."

"Did you have any conversation with anybody about your betting on the game?"

"I did not."

Landis asked Cobb to explain his letter to Leonard.

"It is apparent," replied Cobb, "that in a way, I tried to veil the betting end of it as a business proposition. I wanted to convey the information he had asked for. I stated to him just what Wood had told me.

"The amount of $2,000 to $1,400 quoted was entirely different to the information Wood conveyed to Leonard in his letter, which would indicate that I was not in on the betting proposition, and that Wood merely put me off by giving me the wrong information and a fictitious amount.

"In my letter, I state 'The information given to me by Wood was that there was no money bet.' If I was in on the proposition, Wood certainly would have given me the true information. I was merely giving Leonard the information Wood had given me."

"That information was that Wood had not got up a cent. It was at 2 o'clock, and the other side refused to deal with him."

"You say in that letter," countered Landis, "that 'We completely fell down.' What about that expression?"

"That," Cobb answered, "is just in keeping with the veiled manner in which I tried to give Leonard the information he had asked me to get."

"Was there any such conversation as Leonard relates with Wood and Speaker and yourself?"

"Positively no. If such a frame-up was true, why should we stop a few minutes under the stand and arrange such an important matter?"

"Had you ever heard of West's placing bets?"

"Positively not. He is the only man I knew of that was there handy, that I figured he could trust."

Cobb said that when the affair was resurrected late last summer he went to West and asked him about it, and that West declined to tell him because "the only men he knew in the matter were Leonard and Wood."

Wood went before the commission and identified his letter to Leonard.

"Tell me about that bet," Landis directed.

"The day before the game," Wood answered, "Leonard came to me and said Boland was going to pitch against us and that in baseball the last few games of the season, with nothing at stake with a ball club, it eases up. He asked if I wanted to go in on a bet. I told him I did not care to put up as much money as the $2,500 he suggested, but a friend of mine from Cleveland said he was willing to take a third of it.

"The day before the game, he told me West would be at the hotel. West came up the next morning and said the best he could get was 10 to 7. Detroit was the favorite. We decided to lay the money. In a little while, West came back to the hotel and said all he could get was $600 against $420, but that he could get more up at 5 to 2. We talked that over and decided not to bet at these odds."

Wood said he saw Cobb at the ball park both September 24 and 25, but had no conversation with him except after the game on September 25, when Cobb asked him, "How much money did you bet on this game today?"

"I asked him, Why," Wood testified, "and he said, 'Leonard asked.' Thinking it was none of his business, I gave him an anonymous and incorrect reply."

Wood said he never talked to Speaker about a bet on the game.

"It was not exactly a practice," Wood declared, "but it was not uncommon for ball players to bet on a game, even in the middle of the season. I recall one instance when the whole Washington team went broke—that is, they lost all the cash they had with them—on a ball game that I pitched and beat Walter Johnson. They won it back the next day, when Bob Groom beat our club."

"Who did they bet on?"

"On their own ball club."

Speaker testified before Landis that he had "no knowledge whatever" of the transaction alleged by Leonard, and no such "under the grandstand" conversation as Leonard detailed.

The former Cleveland manager said he learned last June or July that Leonard was trying to implicate him with the letters.

"Mr. Johnson (president of the league) came to Cleveland," Speaker said, "and told me that Leonard had some such letter from Wood. He asked me if I knew anything about it and I said no. Then I asked Wood about it. I had never heard of it before."

Speaker said that he used his regular line-up in the Detroit game of September 25, and that "Since I had the management of the club (in August, 1919), I always tried to win every ball game."

"I notice," Speaker said, in looking over the box score, "that I made three hits in five times up; two of them three-baggers If I had known anything about the game being fixed, or if I had money placed on the game, I certainly would not have been out there making that kind of a record, and I would not have permitted Wood to have remained out of the game."

"I see by the score that Cleveland never was out of the game until the eighth inning, when Detroit scored two runs and then we were only four runs behind. There is many a ball game when four runs are scored in an inning."

West testified that he placed the bet in question for Wood, and that he had no knowledge that Leonard had a share in it. He never placed any money for Cobb or Speaker, he said, and never heard of their betting on a game.

He never placed any bet but this one, he declared, although he "usually did favors for players."

Griffith Not Surprised If Nats Bet on 1912 Game

Clark C. Griffith, president of the Washington club, expressed himself as "dumbfounded" when asked what comment he had to make on the scandal involving Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker, Joe Wood and "Dutch" Leonard.

"I don't know enough about it to talk," Griffith said, "but I want to say right now that, in my opinion, Cobb and Speaker are not crooked ball players at heart. Of course, if they are guilty of the charges against them, they will have to pay the penalty, but I feel that their long and otherwise clean records should entitle them to much consideration.

"It looks to me as though, with the race practically over, they jokingly made some comments and did not figure on the betting angle at all. Now these thoughtless remarks, which possibly meant nothing at the time they were made, make things look mighty dark for them."

Regarding Wood's statement that the whole Washington team bet on itself against Boston in 1912, when "Smoky Joe" and Walter Johnson were staging some memorable pitching duels, Griffith said that he "would not be surprised" if this were a fact.

"All of New England was smoked up over these games," the Nat president said. "Everybody else bet on them and it is more than likely that some of our players did. You must remember that these Johnson-Wood battles were hot ones and the boys naturally felt that it was up to them to show their confidence in themselves and in Barney.

"While I do not believe in players making any kind of baseball wagers, it must be recognized that there is a difference between players betting on themselves to win—which means that they will give all they've got—and betting on the other fellow to beat them—which means that they will not try to win. If Washington players bet, it was on themselves and there is no great crime in this."

Leonard Noncommittal In Scandal Discussion

Fresno, Calif., Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Hubert B. ("Dutch") Leonard, a principal in baseball's latest scandal, refused today to discuss reports that he had submitted evidence to Baseball Commissioner Landis concerning betting on an alleged "fixed game" between Detroit and Cleveland on September 25, 1919.

"I will neither deny nor confirm the commissioner's statement," Leonard said. "I wish to be noncommittal at present."

Commissioner Landis visited Leonard at the latter's ranch near here last September. When questioned Landis said he was paying Leonard a social visit and that his visit had nothing to do with the difference of opinion between Leonard, the Mission club of the Pacific Coast league and the Detroit club. He spent one day with Leonard.

"Good-Fellowship" Noted In Alleged "Fixed" Game

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Frank J. Navin, president of the Detroit American Baseball league club, denied tonight the charges brought against Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, former managers of the Detroit and Cleveland teams. "Commissioner Landis has the entire matter in charge," he said.

Asked if Cobb's statement to the effect that "Dutch" Leonard, former Detroit pitcher, had been paid $20,000 for information he had gathered together, the Detroit club owner, replied: "I don't know. Maybe they paid him for the letters if they could not get them any other way."

Navin insisted that Leonard was let out because his pitching arm was bad. Cobb was responsible for this move, he admitted, but said that he and others had been criticized before Leonard was released. He did promise, however, to say something "when I have gone into the matter more fully."

Any question dealing directly upon the charges brought against Cobb and Speaker he referred to Commissioner Landis.

Detroit sport writers expressed no surprise today at the disclosure of the charges against Cobb and Speaker, declaring they had been aware that "Dutch" Leonard, former pitcher of the Detroit Americans, had admitted such allegations, and that last August, before laying his case before American league officials and Commissioner Landis, he came to Detroit with photostatic copies of correspondence with Cobb. At that time, they declare, Leonard sought only reinstatement in major league baseball.

The game between Cleveland and Detroit, upon which the charges against Cobb and Spueaker were based, was the last home game of the season, September 25, 1919. Statistics published the following day showed that Cleveland apparently was safely berthed in second place, while Detroit was fighting with New York for third-place honors. The standings showed:

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Chicago	88	49	.642
Cleveland	83	54	.606
New York	76	59	.563
Detroit	77	60	.562

In their description of the game, the sports writers described how the two teams edified the crowd by "good-fellowship;" that Cobb was the only player not offered opportunity to fatten his batting average; that Tris Speaker was virtually presented with two triples, while Speaker reciprocated by permitting a triple for Bernie Boland, pitching for Detroit.

Cleveland, they pointed out, was safely in second place and a defeat meant nothing to the Indians, while a victory for Detroit would help materially in the fight for third place, all of which, they said, impressed the Detroit fans with the good-fellowship of the visiting team.

Fred C. West, mentioned in the correspondence, Cobb and Leonard, was an usher and press-box attendant at Navigation field.

The box score of the September 25, 1919, game follows:

40 MITTMEN TO TRAIN AT WESTERN

Joe Bateman, Veteran Trainer, Handling Candidates.

MORE than 40 students of Western High school will start training for boxing after the Christmas holidays under the direction of Joe Bateman, veteran instructor who developed Henry Lamar, former A. A. U. light heavyweight champion, now competing in professional ranks. Lamar was a star football player at Western a few years ago.

From this group of candidates Bateman will pick a team to enter the South Atlantic A. A. U. championships, to be held in Baltimore this winter. Training will be done at the Washington auditorium.

Bill Stanley, son of Senator A. O. Stanley, of Kentucky, was elected captain of the team. Stanley is a middleweight who has shown much promise in amateur bouts.

Coach Bateman is hopeful that other local schools will take up boxing, which is a popular collegiate sport. One or two matches with out-of-town scholastic teams may be arranged.

The veteran instructor is even willing to help other schools get started in boxing. While he is primarily interested in the Western team, he says he will be glad to help boys of other schools. He may be reached by calling Cleveland 1441.

The Sportswoman

By DOROTHY E. GREENE

GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY seniors successfully defended their interclass basketball title which they won last year when they again last night outplayed the freshman team, 30-16.

The first year players staged a game but losing match because of the fact that every member of the senior line-up was a varsity member last year with the exception of Catherine Shoemaker, who made the varsity in 1923 and 1924.

Outplaying their opponents in every quarter the seniors lead from the start with Miss Merla Matthews scoring heavily. The freshman defense was a bit weak in spots, but the forwards knew what to do with the ball when it found its way into their hands. Miss Edith Sowers scored twelve of the freshman total.

TITLE PLAY POSTPONED.

Columbia Heights division of the Elementary School Basketball league, and the interplayground basketball city championships will remain undecided until after the holidays according to Miss Maude Parker, of the playground department, who has decided that the weather is conspiring against the two big basketball events this year.

E. V. Brown school, section B title-holders, will figure in the final match of the school play against Parkview, the section A champions, and Georgetown playground has reached the finals and is waiting for their opponent in the title match to be decided by two unplayed games.

POLOIST DELAY MEETING.

The Washington Polo club match between the Red and White teams which was to have been played this morning at the Washington Riding and Hunt club has been postponed and another date will not be set until after Christmas according to Miss Maud Preece an officer of the organization.

CHRISTMAS TREE PARTY.

The annual Christmas tree party of the Red Triangle Outing club will be held this evening in the assembly hall of the Y. M. C. A., 1736 G street northwest, at 8 p. m.

SALLY LOOP OPPOSES DRAFT

Seven of Eight Clubs Favor Abrogating Major Pact.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Seven out of the eight clubs in the South Atlantic Baseball league will vote to withdraw from the draft agreement with major league baseball clubs, according to telegrams received here today and made public by Felix Hayman, president of the Charlotte club.

Mr. Hayman made public the telegrams after it became known that W. G. Bramhall, president of the South Atlantic association, the Virginia league and the Piedmont league, was polling the Sally league members on the question of withdrawing from the agreement.

Telegrams have been received from the heads of the Macon, Augusta, Spartanburg, Greenville, Knoxville and Asheville clubs stating that they were voting to withdraw from the draft agreement. These, with Charlotte, make seven against it. No word has been received by Mr. Hayman from Columbia.

Mr. Hayman and "Bud" Moore, who are the chief owners of the local club, are opposed to the draft, they let it be known today. "This draft has cost our club something like $30,000 during the last few years," Mr. Hayman said today. "We have been forced to sell good players for a trifle above the draft price because we knew that other leagues would draft our men at the close of the season if we did not dispose of them to the best advantage before the draft season began.

"Take the cases of Ben Paschal, Roy Carlisle, Cleo Carlisle, Gardner, Joe Stripp and others. We were forced to send these stars out for almost nothing when we might have held on to them and received a nice price had it not been for the draft. Of course we can not say what the attitude of the other owners in the Sally league will be, but Charlotte will cast its ballot in favor of withdrawal."

V.M.I. Names Raftery Head Football Coach

Lexington, Va., Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—William C. Raftery, backfield coach for the past five years at the Virginia Military institute and formerly head coach at Washington and Lee university, has been elected head coach of the V. M. I. flying squadron.

Raftery was made chief mentor by the V. M. I. athletic council today after Head Coach Blandley B. Clarkson had announced that he did not wish to be considered available as coach next year. Maj. Clarkson will continue to serve in the position of graduate manager and the athletic council voted unanimously to recommend him for the office of director of athletics should such a position be created by the V. M. I. board of visitors.

Hornsby's case is certain to live long in the memories of the ball players. If a star like the former manager of the Cardinals could not demand his price and receive it, then there is small chance that the rank and file of the ball players can continue to make their petty demands and see them fulfilled.

The club owners after a period of docile obeisance are again in control of the situation. They have undermined the belief of the invincibility of the stars of the game by the simple method of relieving them from duty and by mutual agreement of the magnates seeing these stars with their heavy salaries slip out of the pastime.

Only by working in agreement could the magnates effect the transformation and that they have worked in perfect accord is attested by the fact that Cobb, of Detroit; Speaker, of Cleveland; Collins, of Chicago; Hornsby, of St. Louis; Sisler, of St. Louis, and McKechnie, of the Pirates, have either been released outright or relegated to the ranks minus the huge salaries and with their demands stifled by the firm action of the club owners.

to the club roster whom I know had run his race as a major league pitcher.

"It has been a strain and trying ordeal for me, but there is real satisfaction in knowing that my name is not connected with the case in any manner except by word of mouth of a veritable Judas.

"I feel confident the day will come when Leonard, if he has a spark of manhood in him, will agree to appear before the commissioner of baseball and clear my name of the smirch he has placed thereon. I am absolutely guiltless, and the evidence on file with Judge Landis will bear me out.

"In conclusion, I want to say that the testimony on file with the commissioner, together with the explanations given by both Wood and Cobb, proves beyond doubt there was no thought of wrong doing on the part of either man, and there is absolutely nothing to show the ball game was fixed."

CUT IN NEWSPAPER MAIL RATE SOUGHT

Publishers Association to Ask Senate to Change Measure Passed by House.

An attempt to have the Senate amend the postal measures that have just passed the House so as to include a reduction in rates for daily newspapers will be made by the American Newspaper Publishers association, it was announced yesterday.

Second class mail subject to zone rates has shown a steady decrease in volume. Publishers declare this is due entirely to prohibitive rates. Newspapers and magazines have increased their output one-third in six years. Other means of transportation have doubled, but second class mail has declined.

The present rates, the publishers declare, are with the Pullman surcharge the only war taxes that have not been removed by the government. The publishers point out that the government hoped to make $10,000,000 by increasing the postal card rate to 2 cents, but instead in 22 months has lost $6,000,000.

had been singled out by the legislative branch of the government for "special persecution" and denied the right in the reign of law to which every citizen is entitled.

It does not lie within the power of the legislative branch of the government, Littleton declared, to adjudge the oil lease invalid, to compel the executive to appoint special counsel to deal with particular individuals and thereby unduly magnify and exaggerate the offense sought to be charged. The right of every individual must stand or fall by the same law, Littleton contended. His client was not asking for delay, he maintained, but added that time enough ought to be taken to obey the Constitution and the laws of the United States.

Littleton asserted that the Senate resolution of February 8, 1924, directing the President to appoint special counsel, and the subsequent acts of Congress, passed July 3, 1926, whereby his client was barred from having his special appeal decided by the Court of Appeals here and whereby the government was given extended powers to summon witnesses from abroad while the defense was denied such powers, all combined to show that his client was not being prosecuted through the ordinary channels but by the employment of special agencies which unduly burden his defense and deny him due process of law.

Calls Machinery Oppressive.

The President would have been liable to impeachment, Littleton declared, if he had failed to follow the command of Congress that he set up "some sort of oppressive machinery which would inflict more injury and do more damage to my client than is done to any other citizen in the United States of America by the application o. the ordinary rules." All the government special counsel had to do "was to read to the grand jury that Congress had said that my client was guilty of a crime and that they had been sent there for the purpose of having him indicted," Littleton continued.

"I don't say that is all they did," he added, "but it was all that was necessary to be done."

After Littleton had concluded in an even half hour, Levi Cooke, of counsel for Fall, stressed the contention that his client had been singled out for a special kind of justice by Congress. The Senate resolution names his client, he said, and constitutes an absolute privation to Fall to be tried by due process of law. Peyton Gordon was not in charge of the prosecution, Cooke declared, though the law provided that the United States attorney should be. The recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the Myers case whereby the legislative was denied the right to encroach upon the executive branch of the government was cited by Cooke in connection with his argument that the legislative had issued a mandatory injunction upon the executive in directing the appointment of special counsel.

Roberts Addresses Court.

Owen J. Roberts addressed the court briefly at the conclusion of Cooke's fifteen-minute argument. The present motion to quash, Roberts said, was based on the contention that the district attorney was in the grand jury room and took part in the prosecution.

The indictment in the present conspiracy case, Roberts asserted, was returned like every other indictment in the regular way. The fact that the government was given enlarged powers under recent act of Congress to obtain testimony from witnesses abroad did not mean that the defendants must under the Constitution be given corelevant rights, Roberts declared, citing authorities to support his contention. He also characterized the present motion as a dilatory motion, and said the defense had cognizance of all the necessary facts long ago to have made the motion at an earlier date.

Pomerene said good reason existed for the appointment of special counsel, and added, "I assume it was in the minds of men that the Department of Justice should not be in charge."

George P. Hoover, of counsel for Sinclair, concluded the argument. Congress had not the power, he asserted, to single out any individual for special prosecution.

"Due process of law means equality, and when you depart from equality you depart from due process of law," he declared.

PRICES OF BONDS DRIFT UNSTEADILY DOWNWARD

OTHER GROUPS ARE DULL

New York, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—A preholiday tightening of credit conditions, reflected in the calling of bank loans and higher money rates, unsettled the bond market today and prices drifted irregularly lower. Instead of seeking investment in bonds, funds started to flow away from Wall street in the form of year-end disbursements and Christmas currency.

Foreign obligations apparently have reached levels where they no longer attract buyers. The entire list turned reactionary today, with free offerings of French, Belgian and German issues and rather heavy selling of Polish 8s, which declined more than a point.

The most interesting development in this field was the announcement by Speyer & Co. that $4,500,000 Bulgarian 40-year 7 per cent loan would be placed on the market tomorrow at a price of 92. An additional £2,400,000 issue of sterling bonds will be offered in Europe.

A fair demand developed for high-grade public utilities, but railroad and industrial issues went begging. Denver & Rio Grande Western 5s slumped more than a point, Elkhorn Coal 7s fell to a new low for the year, at 96, and Granby 7s declined 2¼ points. Trading in the new Standard Oil of New Jersey debentures started at 101⅞ and the bonds later sold up to 102.

The final step in the major financing program of the Long Bell Lumber Co. will be taken tomorrow with the sale of $3,250,000 five-year 6 per cent notes, convertible into first mortgage bonds of the Longview, Portland & Northern railway. The notes will be priced at 98. Offering also will be made of $7,500,000 Wisconsin Central three-year 5 per cent notes.

CURB MARKET REVIEW.

New York, Dec. 21 (By the Associated Press.)—Wide fluctuations in several of the high priced issues featured today's irregular curb market. Trading in the general list was in reduced volume, with the price movement showing further irregularity. The sudden apathy of the public was explained by the approach of the Christmas holiday, firmer call money rates and the lack of any immediate incentive for a resumption of the upward movement.

Confused price movements characterized the oil group, but the main drift was to higher levels. A sudden demand for Prairie Pipe Line carried that stock up 1½ points to 1.27¼, duplicating the year's high. Galena Signal Oil preferred (old stock) jumped 9 points and the new stock 5, while Ohio Oil soared 10 points to 350. Strength of the South American issues was the outstanding development in the trading in miscellaneous oils, Carib Syndicate moving up 2 points.

A jump of 12 points in Giant Portland Cement to a new high record at 80 was the outstanding gain in the industrial list. Botany Cotton Mills and Ford of Canada each moved up about 3 points on odd lot transactions, while sharp recessions took place in Butler Brothers, Curtis Publishing, Fajardo Sugar, Lehigh Coal & Navigation, Victor Talking Machine and Yellow Taxi of New York.

Baking shares were under further pressure as a result of the Senate investigation of recent bread mergers. Motor and coal shares were quiet. Radio issues showed narrow fractional changes, the reports of heavy holiday sales of radio sets being offset by rumors of price cutting among some of the smaller manufacturers.

Trading in the mining issues was confined largely to the socalled "penny stocks." Revival of activity in Falcon Lead followed the publication of a report that the ore shipped to the mill for the week ended December 5 totaled 1,083 tons of a net value of $8,664, an increase of 30 per cent over the average weekly shipments in November.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—Reports of heavy rains in parts of the South where considerable cotton is supposed to be still in the fields failed to inspire any general or aggressive buying in the market today. The undertone was generally steady, however, and while January eased off from 12.26 to 12.18 in early trading, it closed at 12.22, the general market closing steady at a net advance of 24 points on December and of 2 to 6 points on later deliveries.

The opening was steady at an advance of 4 to 12 points on covering and fresh buying promoted by relatively steady cables and the Southern rain news. This initial bulge carried the market up to 12.65 for December and 12.72 for May, but Southern hedging and realizing supplied the demand and led to moderate reactions.

December sold off to 12.60 and May to 12.65, but the market steadied at these figures and held generally steady the rest of the day. The interest in December has been very much reduced, as trading in that delivery ends at noon on Friday, but little covering sent the price up to 12.77, or 24 points net higher at the close. Perhaps the near-month steadiness had a sustaining influence on the later deliveries, and past prices were within 3 or 4 points of the best on the active months.

The comparatively small volume of business was regarded as indicating that neither the light ginning figures of yesterday nor the unfavorable weather news of today had stimulated fresh interest and that the market already had been evened up in preparation for the holidays. Rather conflicting reports were circulated about the Southern spot situation, but except for small offerings at the opening there was very little indication of hedge selling here during the day.

Private cables said that buying by trade and continental interests had absorbed hedge selling in Liverpool, but complained that business in cotton cloths were slow in developing and that yarns were offered freely in Manchester.

Exports today, 29,485 bales, making 5,078,628 so far this season. Port receipts, 73,402. United States port stocks, 2,985,192.

What's Behind Your Stock

Northern Pacific Railway Company

The Northern Pacific Railway Co. operates over 3,000 miles of main track which extend from Duluth and Minneapolis to the Pacific coast. Furthermore, connection into Chicago is had over the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy which is owned jointly by the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern systems.

Since a considerable part of the Northern Pacific railway's traffic originates on its own lines and is quite well diversified in character, net income has held to a fairly steady level except during a brief period following the world war. In 1925 net income totaled $17,944,288, this being the largest figure reported since 1921. The present year has seen a considerable additional improvement in net earnings.

This railroad has not a high capitalization and funded debt accounts for only a little over half the total.

There is no preferred stock issue outstanding. On the common stock, dividends have been paid regularly since 1899. From 1905 to 1921 the payments amounted to 7 per cent annually. During the last five years, including 1926, payments have amounted to 5 per cent per year.

PAN AMERICAN AEROS REACH BROWNSVILLE

taking off on the runway of Kelly field 24 hours behind their schedule.

With farewell kisses from their wives, the pilots bounded along the concrete runway, glided into the air and were off a few minutes before 11 o'clock. The mud of Duncan field, which yesterday had held them to the earth, had no influence today as the ships nosed into the blue sky.

At 10:45 a. m. "the dog," a reserve plane fully equipped, was brought to the head of the mile-long runway. Lieut. H. A. Halverson was at the wheel, and in a few minutes Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chief of the army air service, snuggly dressed in khaki coveralls and flying helmet, with a folded parachute strapped to his back, mounted into the cockpit behind Lieut. Halverson.

There was a sputter, a deafening roar, a puff of black smoke and then the plane began to move down the runway with ever-increasing speed, leading the flight squadron on what Gen. Patrick termed the most momentous flight ever undertaken by the army.

The ship rose gracefully into the air, about half way down the concrete road at 10:51 a. m.

Maj. H. A. Dargue, commander of the squadron and his aid, Lieut. E. C. Whitehead, already were in the ship New York, with their motor thundering. Scarcely had Gen. Patrick's ship cleared the ground when down the runway came the swiftly speeding boat bearing the name of America's largest city. The wheels bounded up from the ground, once, twice, and then the ship took to its wings, folding up its land wheels into pockets in the hull of the boat as it rose. Maj. Dargue went up at 10:52.

The other ships rose at one minute intervals. Following the New York, came the San Antonio, piloted by Capt. A. B. McDaniel, aided by Lieut. C. McK Robinson. Quick action by the athletic pilot of the San Antonio averted what might have been an accident. The ship's wheels skidded off the runway striking the soft ground a short distance from a group of men taking pictures. Capt. McDaniel had to take his course at a tangent to the runway, and the ship headed toward the group. One of the photographers dropped to the ground just in time to avoid being struck by the landing gear.

After Capt. McDaniel, who is second in command, came Capt. Ira C. Eaker, and Lieut. Muir S. Fairchild in the San Francisco, then Capt. Clinton F. Woolsey, and Lieut. John W. Benton in the Detroit and Lieut. B. S. Thompson and Lieut L. D. Weddington in the St. Louis.

Circling Kelly field, the ships went into formation, with Maj. Dargue, at the apex, Capt. McDaniel and Capt. Woolsey on the right, Capt. Eaker and Lieut. Thompson on the left. Gen. Patrick's ship was leading by about half a mile as they thundered over the field hangars and headed off toward San Antonio. They circled over the Alamo city, and then disappeared to the south. Several escort ships followed them.

Gen. Patrick returned to the field before noon to say that the ships were off to a good start. The reserve ship, after leaving the commander of the air service, then took off to trail the main squadron. It is to be used for replacement. At 1:36 p. m. the squadron was circling over Laguna Madre.

Davis and Davidson Wish Army Fliers Good Luck

(By the Associated Press.)

The army fliers who took off yesterday from San Antonio, Tex., on the South American journey, received messages from Secretary of War Davis and Assistant Secretary Trubee Davidson wishing them "Godspeed and a happy landing."

"The War Department and the army greet you on this auspicious day," Mr. Davis said. "The mission upon which you are about to embark is traditional of the part the army has played in the developing of our country. It will be instrumental in furthering the happy bonds of friendship existing between the nations of the two American continents. As air messengers of good will, you carry with you the best wishes of your comrades in the service."

Mr. Davidson wrote:

"On the eve of a flight which I am certain will be one of the outstanding feats of aeronautical history, it is my desire to congratulate you, and the officers selected for the Pan-American flight, on the splendid work performed in preparing for this event. The Pan-American flight will require a devotion to duty worthy of the highest traditions of the army air corps. You have all demonstrated that you are worthy of representing the United States on this mission of good will to our sister republics, and you carry with you the good wishes of the War Department. Godspeed and a happy landing."

ALIEN PROPERTY RIGHTS OF CUSTODIAN UPHELD

FOLLOWS HIGH TRIBUNAL

Philadelphia, Dec. 21 (By A. P.).—The United States circuit court of appeals, in a decision of far-reaching effect, today held that the alien property custodian is the "owner" of patents, copyrights and trade-marks seized from their German owners, with all the powers of the original owners to sue for their use by American manufacturers.

The decision, said to be a precedent for upward of 100 similar cases pending throughout the country, set aside the dismissal by District Judge Lynch, of New Jersey, of a suit by Frederick C. Hicks, alien property custodian, against the Anchor Packing Co. for the recovery of royalties for the use of the Austro-Hungarian trade-mark, "Tauril," used in connection with high-pressure sheet packing made of asbestos and rubber.

Three parties claimed ownership of the original trade-mark. The original owner, the Austro-Hungarian concern, Actiongesellschaft; the Anchor company, by virtue of the fact that it had the exclusive right in America to use the trade name, and the alien property custodian, who claimed it by virtue of its seizure under the trading-with-the-enemy act during the war.

Judge Lynch dismissed the custodian's suit, holding that he was not vested with ownership rights by virtue of the seizure and that the real owner was the Austro-Hungarian company.

The court of appeals, however, rules that under the amendments by Congress to the trading with the enemy act, which originally was a measure for the conservation of enemy property confiscated during the war, the custodian became the full and unqualified owner of all such property. The court ordered the case sent back to Judge Lynch to be tried on the basis of the custodian being the owner of the trade-mark, and entitled to be paid any royalties for its use by the Anchor Co. Today's decision was handed down by Judge Woolley.

(By the Associated Press.)

Decision of the circuit court of appeals in Philadelphia sustaining the right of the alien property custodian to sue, as the owner, to recover royalties for use of patents, copyrights and trade-marks seized from German owners during the war, is in line with a ruling by the Supreme Court in the chemical foundation case, Howard Sutherland, custodian, said last night.

"It is an interesting decision," he added, "and is in line with several others confirming the powers which Congress evidently placed in the custodian."

Injured Taken to Hospital.

All of the injured, with the exception of the Tyler woman, were treated at Casualty hospital by Drs. Joseph Rogers, head of the institution; Clyde Cantrell and H. E. Phelps. Blanche Tyler was treated at Sibley hospital.

Immediately after the collision, Traffic Policeman L. S. Fullmer flashed word to police headquarters and physicians from Casualty hospital and reserves from the Sixth precinct were dispatched to the scene.

They assisted several persons from the derailed car and held back the crowds that were attracted to the scene by the sound of the impact and the cries of the injured. Dr. C. P. Halstead, pharmacist, of the Peoples Drug Store at North Capitol and H streets, assisted the more seriously injured into the store and gave first aid treatment until the arrival of the ambulance from Casualty.

Conductor H. M. Anderson, of Berwyn, Md., who was in charge of the District line car, said every seat in his car was filled and that men and women were standing in the aisles and were crowded on the rear platform.

Passengers Thrown to Floor.

When the car was struck, he said, almost every one was thrown from their seats. Passengers standing on the platform were thrown to the floor and were splattered with fragments of glass.

"After the impact," Anderson said, "my car wobbled along for about 25 feet and then left the track. The women passengers were screaming and attempting to get out of the car. I opened the doors just as soon as the car stopped and then helped them out."

Virtually all of the passengers were laden with Christmas bundles. Street car traffic on H street and North Capitol streets was tied up for almost an hour, until mechanics succeeded in replacing the derailed car on the track.

Many of the passengers on the H street car narrowly escaped death or serious injury. Fiester, who was standing on the rear platform when the collision occurred, was thrown through a door on the opposite side of the car.

Anderson estimated that more than 60 persons were riding on his car when it was struck. He was uninjured.

MRS. HOUCK FEARED LAPSE, FRIENDS SAY

no message. He partly dressed the baby and played with him until the nurse girl, as usual, called.

"Being somewhat worried about his wife's continued absence, knowing that she was upset over his mental condition, he looked for her in the neighborhood and inquired of a few people if they had seen her. No one had. He communicated with his physician, who called at the apartment. There were no signs of any struggle, no furniture broken, as has been falsely reported.

"Dr. Houck was not excessively disturbed, and did not at that time, and still does not, believe his wife committed suicide, considering it only as a vague possibility."

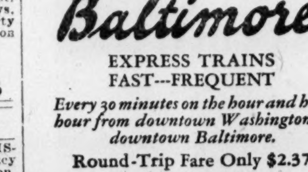

Later in the day, the statement said, Dr. Houck went through an "acute mental episode" that led to his hospitalization in Hornell, N. Y. Dr. Houck was arrested in Hornell while walking through the streets in his underclothes and after he had caused a violent scene in a hotel.

Dr. Houck, the statement said, did not know his wife was missing until he read about it in a newspaper.

A. D. Loffler Keeps Pledge With Contribution; Church Societies Send Funds.

Another of the fourteen Christmas opportunities is closed, with a subscription of $500 from an anonymous giver. This is No. 9, the family of a widow and three children, one of whom is old enough to work. No. 14 was closed several days ago. This leaves twelve of the opportunities still lacking their full quotas.

Besides the check of $500 for Opportunity No. 10 sent by Mrs. Marshal Field and acknowledged in The Post yesterday morning, this opportunity where the mother is suffering from the early effects of child labor and parental cruelty was credited last night with another check to the amount of $350. This donation originally was intended for No. 9, but was received after that opportunity had been closed and since has been transferred to No. 10, leaving this opportunity with less than $75 to complete its quota.

A. D. Loffler, chairman of the Almas temple Christmas charity committee, sent in a check of $350 yesterday, in payment of a pledge made early in the campaign for the benefit of the fourteen opportunities. The Mu-So-Lit club sent a check for $70 to be divided among Opportunities 7, 11 and 13.

Among other organizations contributing during the last 24 hours are the Columbia Typographical Union, contributing $50 to be divided among ten of the opportunities; Y. W. C. A. branch of Gallaudet college, Pearce Bible class of Takoma Park Baptist church, Golden Rule Christian Endeavor Union, of the District, and Bladensburg, Md., and the G. P. O. Relief club. CONGRESS HONORS NORTH POLE FLIERS

Medals and Advance in Rank Voted Byrd and Bennett by House.

Congress gave its meed of tribute to Lieut. Comdr. Robert E. Byrd and Aviation Pilot Floyd Bennett yesterday for their north pole flight.

The House passed without debate bills already passed by the Senate advancing Byrd to the rank of commander on the naval retired list with the highest pay of that grade, and advancing Bennett from aviation pilot to the grade of machinist. On both men the congressional medal of honor was bestowed, which entitles them to seats on the House and Senate floors.

At the instance of Senator Swanson, of Virginia, the measure was passed by the Senate a few days ago. Just as the House was about to adjourn yesterday Representative Drewry, of Virginia, obtained unanimous consent for the consideration of the bills and they were passed within two minutes. Majority Leader Tilson, of Connecticut, commended Mr. Drewry, pointing out that he had sought to give similar recognition to the men at the last session of Congress but had been unsuccessful.

EQUAL PAY FOR ALL TEACHERS IS ASKED

Association Favors Presenting Plan to Congress; Indorses Combination Idea.

Equal pay for all teachers regardless of the grade they instruct was asked yesterday by the District of Columbia Congress of Parent-Teacher Associations, meeting in the Arlington hotel. The organization went on record as favoring a move to present a bill in Congress according the same remuneration to teachers of all grades.

The so-called playground and school combination plan, which would seek the location of schools near natural playgrounds, was indorsed. Mrs. Mary T. Bannerman, chairman of the legislative committee, presented both resolutions. An account of work done by the preschool committee was given by Mrs. George W. Lady, chairman. Membership in parent-teacher organizations of the District has increased during the past year, a report showed.

Lieut. Col. J. Franklin Bell, engineer commissioner, gave a brief address in which he asked the parent-teacher associations to help select an assistant municipal architect for Washington. This man, Commissioner Bell said, would have supervision of school playgrounds. The assemblage voted to assist in finding such an architect. The Romany Travel club presented stereopticon views.

U. S. HANDS-OFF PLAN FAVORED FOR MEXICO

Should Solve Own Problems, Thompson, Writer, Tells Anthropological Society.

Mexico should be allowed to work out her own problems, Wallace Thompson, journalist, author and authority on Central American countries, yesterday told the Anthropological Society of Washington, meeting in the new National museum. Thompson was introduced by Dr. Neil N. Judd, president of the organization.

In an address on "Appraising the Mexican," Thompson discussed the racial origin of Mexicans and referred to their gradual adoption of modern civilization. Pointing out the curious contrast between descendants of cruel Aztec and kindly Maya Indians, the speaker declared Mexico now is divided into three groups of individuals—aboriginal Indians, Mestinos and whites. There are about 6,000,000 aboriginal Indians left, Thompson said.

Alluding to the struggle between the Catholic Church and the Mexican government, Thompson said there is no trouble between Catholics and Protestants. The Catholic Church, he pointed out, firmly is entrenched in that country. Thompson is the author of several books on Central American states, among them "The Mexican Mind" and "Rainbow Countries of Central America." Both Dr. Ales Hrdlicka and Prof. Walter W. Hough, celebrated anthropologists, attended the lecture, in addition to many other scientists of note.

Monday was the busiest day in the history of the postal service in Washington, Postmaster William Mooney announced yesterday. More than 2,000,000 pieces of mail were handled at the postoffice and all employes worked 12-hour shifts to deliver the mail on schedule.

C. E. Schooley, superintendent of mails, pointed out that the mail trains have been arriving on schedule and have been unloaded readily, but it has taken 900 extra employes working 12 hours a day to do it.

Sanitarium Staff To Aid Poor Children

Instead of presenting Christmas gifts to each other this year the patients and medical staff of the Washington sanitarium and hospital contributed money, which they would have expended for these gifts, to a fund which will be used to purchase presents for a number of poor children.

On Christmas night the children will be brought to the hospital and will be presented with clothing and other necessities which will be taken from a large Christmas tree. Nurses at the hospital have been busily engaged for several months making useful articles for the children. More than $200 was contributed at a meeting of the workers at the hospital Sunday.

Fierce Pigmy Buffalo Placed in Zoo Here

A pigmy buffalo, the anoa, arrived at the Zoo yesterday, bringing with him one of the fiercest dispositions ever placed in captivity. It was obtained in an exchange from the Zoological Gardens of San Diego.

The anoa stands about three feet high, is black and has short, sharp horns. It seems to live in a perpetual rage and the longer it stays in captivity the fiercer it becomes, according to Dr. William M. Mann, superintendent of the zoo. It inhabits the Philippine islands, where it has been driven back into the remoter jungles.

$50,000 SUIT FILED IN BRIDGE ACCIDENT

District and Capital Traction Co. Blamed for Plunge of Auto Through Rail.

Miss Kathryn A. Collins, Clifton Terrace apartments, who was riding in an automobile driven by Mrs. John A. Standish on February 11, last, when it plunged through the guard rail on the Calvert street bridge, filed suit yesterday in circuit court against the District government and the Capital Traction Co. to recover $50,000 damages. Mrs. Standish was killed in the fall of about 60 feet from the bridge roadway to the ravine below. Miss Collins was seriously injured.

Through Attorneys Easby-Smith, Pine and Hill, the District government is charged with having allowed the guard rail to be in a defective and unsafe condition for about two years prior to the accident. The Capital Traction Co. is charged with having, for several days prior to the accident, swept the snow and ice from its car tracks onto the roadway, thus making the roadway level several inches higher than the level of the bridge crosswalk, all of which, it is alleged, caused the machine to veer toward the rail and plunge through.

HESSE TELLS POLICE TO HUNT CRIMINALS

Stop Arresting Little Fellows Who Do Not Hurt Any One, Chief Says.

"Let our patrolmen stop arresting little fellows who don't hurt any one and devote their attention to apprehending crooks that are preying on the community," said Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, superintendent of police, yesterday, as he issued a memorandum of instructions that Christmas carol singers and venders of Christmas trees and wreaths were to be left undisturbed. The memorandum said:

"Do not interfere with persons selling Christmas trees and wreaths from door to door, or in vacant lots, or on parkings where no inconvenience will be caused the public. Do not interfere with groups of church people singing Christmas carols early Christmas morning unless there is complaint to the effect that annoyance is caused to residents thereby.

ROBINSON APPROVES INCREASE IN WAGES FOR NAVY YARD MEN

MAXIMUM STORE RATE NOW PLACED AT $4.40

Retention of Present Scale of Philadelphia Workers Will Be Protested.

Wage raises for about 200 local employes of the Navy Department are provided in the report of the wage board of review, which was approved by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Robinson, and made public yesterday.

The pay of 113 "quarter men" and "leading men," or subordinate supervisory employes of the Washington navy yard, represented the largest group increase locally, and several raises were given small groups.

Quarter men who last year received 30 cents an hour, in addition to their trade pay, for supervision, are raised to 36 cents an hour for supervision, and leading men from 15 cents to 18 cents an hour. Fifty-eight quarter men are affected locally and 55 leading men.

The maximum rate for store men has been increased to $4.40. Present rates are $4.24 and $4, and will not be changed. A higher minimum rate of 40 cents was fixed for junior chemists.

Other Groups Affected.

Raises affecting other small groups of local workers follow: Apprentices, first class, from 55 cents to 60 cents an hour; second class, 45 to 48 cents; gas welders, 80 to 83; pipe coverers and insulators, 83 to 85; pattern makers, 95 to $1; ordnance men, 72 to 75; molders, 92 to 94; wood modelmakers, 95 to $1; metallic cartridge case makers, 65 to 67; open hearth melters, $1.01 to $1.10; lead burners, $1 to $1.05; foundry laidie men, 60 to 65; gardeners, 60 to 62; foundry chippers, 63 to 64; electroplaters, 83 to 85; wood calkers, 80 to 82; buffers and polishers, 80 to 82; blue printers, 57 to 59; sandblasters, 68 to 70, and powder factory attendants, 75 to 80.

In general, wages of this year, nationally and locally, are continued at the same rates for next year. There are reports that retention of the old rate for Philadelphia navy yard workers will be protested.

Locally 17 out of 122 groups of employes were granted increases in pay to become effective January 1. Although the local wage board recommended pay increases for 77 groups, the general board reduced this to 17.
